La Noche Buena

(Holy Night)

By Isabel L. Fages.

José Ramón Linares trudged silently along. He watched the trail carefully for if he were to make a mis-step his mother's mare might stumble over a rock or shrub and become frightened. It was growing dark and even the sharp young eyes of the little boy were strained to the point of aching weariness.

Back in Culiacan, Old Mexico, the little village which had always been his home, La Noche Buena was being celebrated by los puebladores (the townspeople). During the evening of each of the nine days preceding Christmas a little party had called at some home and been turned away until Christmas eve which was this very night, when they would be received into the home of some favored family. There, before the nacimiento or manger scene peopled with little clay or wooden carved figures, every one would kneel and pray to the Child Jesus for some much desired favor.

How José Ramón Linares longed to be there, for what was Christmas without Las Posadas? (The Inns) He could see the sweet-faced maiden who, because of her many virtues had been selected to take the part of Mary, Mother of God. She would be so thrilled and happy to have been chosen for the coveted part this Christmas! Beside her, leading her reluctant burro would be the good St. Joseph, kindly and protective. He too, would have been selected for his fine characteristics which the spouse of the little virgin should possess.

In all the casas (houses) of Culiacan, candles would be burning before the nacimientos. Each humble, dirt floored room would be swept clean and fresh flowers would be set here and there in little pottery vases.

When the Mother of Jesus and St. Joseph had been received in the home, an evening of merry-making would be enjoyed by all who had followed in the procession, carrying their lighted candles and singing hymns. There was a hymn which was always sung at each of the houses representing the inns the Holy Family had been turned away from and the final verses would be chanted when, at last, they were admitted into the home representing the lowly stable of Bethlehem.

José Ramón thought his heart would break, so badly did he long to go back to Culiacan and pray before the image of the little Christ. But he had promised his father he would be a man and help care for his mother and two little sisters on the long journey to California. They had registered with the great Captain Juan Bautista de Anza from the frontier settlement of Tubac who had promised the viceroy of Mexico to lead an expedition of colonists to Alta California, where at the great port of San Francisco, a presidio and mission were to be founded.

Alta California belonged to Spain and to King Charles, the third, but England, France and Russia had cast envious eyes on the territory. Now, Spain who had long delayed colonizing was worried and had sent missionaries to found missions there in 1769. Four had been established, one at San Diego, the second in Monterey and a third and fourth at San Gabriel and San Luis Obispo. Two more were planned to be situated on the shores of San Francisco Bay and the Peninsula. In view of the Golden Gate, the presidio and pueblo were to be founded and José Ramón with his father, mother and little sisters were to have a new home there. Somehow on this Holy Night, José wished he had a brother with whom he might hunt, fish and explore in the exciting wild country where they planned a happy future! Not that he did not love his sisters! They were delightful playmates at times. But José Ramón was tired of playing dolls. He wanted to be a hard-riding captain with an obedient soldier companion to accompany him on his exploits.

Don Ygnacio Linares had told his family how worthy was to be their mission to California. They were all to help the good padres teach the Indians about the little Christ Child. Their king expected them to set a good example so their red brothers would learn to obey the precepts of the Church and the ten commandments and become loyal citizens of Spain.

So José Ramón squared his manly shoulders and strode along as though he was not tired at all. This afternoon it had been his turn to lead his mother's mare. His mother was ill. Women did not ride astride and in her full skirts, it was difficult for Señora Linares to keep her position as the horse picked her way along the rock-strewn mountain trails.

José Ramón heard his father say anxiously, "Surely our captain will give the order to stop and make camp soon, esposa mia, for see, the sun has set and it will soon be too dark to travel. Some of the horses and cattle can scarcely continue, so exhausted are they!"

"The Mother of God rides beside me!" José Ramón heard his mother reply. "I shall be patient for did she not ride a burro many miles the day of Our Saviour's birth? Like her, I have not a shelter, nor a bed. Ah, if I could only resign myself to these conditions as did she!"

"Thou has been brave, Gertrudes, mia," praised the father. "Last night when everyone else complained of the cold, you murmured not, but I venture none was more discomforted than thou. Truly, our holy patroness, La Virgen de Guadalupe (patroness of all New Spain and the expedition) rides besides thee, for see, the cavalcade is stopping. I shall waste no time with words but shall go now to see if El Capitan cannot arrange to borrow a field tent for us this night."

Addressing his son, he said, "Look after thy mother while I am gone. If she should become ill, call for help among our good compañeros."

"Si, padre mio" (Yes, my father) agreed the boy. Wonderingly he turned and stroked the horses nose and gazed up at his mother. She smiled at him, reassuringly.

José Ramón did not have much time to question his father's action, for like a flash he was back, with his two little girls clinging tightly to one another on the back of their father's horse. Brave Captain de Anza rode with them and as he drew rein before Doña Gertrudes, he swept his plumed hat from his head. He bowed and saluted her with the greatest respect.

"I am honored to come to your assistance, Señora, for with what heroism you have traveled this day, even though the trail was rocky and difficult and the cold intense!" said the captain. "But see, I have arranged to have a tent erected near my own so that all my medicines and supplies will be quickly available. One of the women will come and assist you. Nothing we can do for your comfort will remain undone."

"Gracias!" (thank you) murmured the woman. Her smile must have warmed the heart of the leader who had attended the welfare of his people so understandingly throughout the journey! They had truly rewarded him for his trouble with self-sacrifice and bravery.

José Ramón led his mother's horse to the tent the captain had pointed out and as she was assisted to the ground by the captain and her husband, the little boy heard a suppressed moan. "Little Jesus!" he whispered. "Have mercy!"

A strange woman came and looked after José's mother while he and his father fixed the simple supper over the camp fire. When they had eaten, the father wrapped blankets about the girls and bade them lie close to the fire. His sisters went to sleep right away, but the boy lay quietly, listening to the soldiers singing. A fandango was in progress and the gay tinkling of the guitars and joyous singing filled the night with a festive spirit. Now and then the entire company would chant some ancient Chrismas hymn. So homesick and lonely was José Ramón that he could not hold back the tears.

At last he fell asleep, warmed by the lively fire and soothed by the rhythm of the music. He dreamed of home and the little Christ in His crib! And he dreamed of dulces—lots and lots of dulces! (sweets).

Suddenly the little boy awoke! What strange sound was that he had heard! There it was again! Was it the wail of a tiny babe? Ah, yes! He remembered! It was Christmas eve and the little Christ Child had come at last. He lifted himself up on one elbow and looked about. A candle burned in the tent. Or were there many candles? The cry came again. José Ramón jumped up, gathered his blanket about his shivering form and ran to the tent. Peering inside, he saw a group gathered about his mother's crude bed. There were his father, the captain, Padre Pedro Font (Father Font, chaplain of the expedition) and the strange woman. They all stood gazing reverently at his mother. In the hollow of her arm, he glimpsed the small red face of a baby and as he watched, the tiny mouth opened and emitted another shrill wail.

José Ramón stood transfixed for a moment and as he moved timidly nearer, his father turned and put his arm about the shoulders of his first born.

"You have a little brother, José Ramón!" he whispered and drew the boy closer to the bed.

José Ramón stared down at the babe and smiled lovingly at his mother. Then he knelt impulsively and prayed. "Querido Jesusito! Muchas gracias (Dear little Jesus! Many thanks) for sending this little brother to me! If I could have prayed beside your crib in Culiacan, I would have asked you to send him. You have heard my prayer even though I could not come to you in your nacimiento. I know you will hear me now, for it is Christmas—the very best Christmas of all!"

EDITOR'S NOTE: The incident of the birth of the first white child in California "one minute before midnight, December 24, 1775, is based on historical fact gleaned from Bolton's "Outpost of Empire" and the lengthy diaries of Juan Bautista de Anza and Padre Pedro Font concerning the long journey from Old Mexico to California of an expedition organized for the colonization of San Francisco. Twenty-nine women journeyed thus on horse or mule-back over dangerous trails without benefit of wheeled vehicles to be the first of their sex to settle in this virgin land. The site of the birth is near Warner's Hot Springs in San Diego county. The Pass of San Carlos through which the travelers crossed the Sierras December 27, 1775 is marked by a plaque placed by Native Sons of the Golden West in 1924.

And whose little, bright eyes are blue,

Babe of Bethlehem

(By Bernard G. Hiss, Chairman of Southern District, Homeless Children Committee.)

The season has again arrived when we turn our thoughts to gifts—gifts manifesting the spirit of charity and good will. At Christmas time we symbolically repeat the offering of gold, incense and myrrh by the Wise Men of the East to the Babe in Bethlehem. Traditionally the natural recipients of our benefaction in this Holy Season are our children. For it is in their hands that our future lies. The training of these children to be good Californians and to assume the responsibilities of preserving the American way of life which we will pass on to them should be our greatest concern.

The Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Committee on Homeless Children have for over thirty years sought to impress the citizens of California with the virtue and necessity of adequately providing for "forgotten children." With very limited means this organization annually saves hundreds of children from institutional childhood and by supervising their placement in foster homes, assure us that they will be reared as good Americans and saved from becoming public charges.

The work of the Homeless Children Committee is dependent entirely upon the charity of its benefactors. As the cost of maintenance of children and their supervision after placing in foster homes has increased far beyond the needs of previous years, we urge all donors to be as generous as possible. Contributions may be mailed to the "Homeless Children Committee, Box 204, Hollywood, or to the head office of the Central Committee, 998 Eddy street, San Francisco.

At Christmas

He came to me at Christmas
With his winking twinkling light
And though he's always willing
He helps me most at night.

Sometimes when I am searching
For a bracelet or a ring,
In darkest nook or corner
He spies the wayward thing.

At night when I awaken
And wonder what the time,
Quick as a wink he tells me,
Without alarm or chime.

I would not do without him
And no amount of cash
Will ever take him from me,
My faithful little flash!

For Homeless Tots

THE FOLLOWING LETTER recently was received by Mary E. Brusie, secretary of the Central Committee on Homeless Children:

"Upon the request of our good friend Miss Martha Lewis of this city, I am handing to you our check in the amount of $50 representing the funeral benefit paid by this parlor in behalf of Brother James Frazier Lewis who passed away a few weeks ago.

"For your information, Frazier Lewis was a descendant of the early pioneers, his mother having been a member of the Donner party. He was a candy manufacturer. Miss Lewis is his only surviving relative and wishes to donate this money to the Homeless Children fund, in which work her brother Frazier was always deeply interested. Miss Lewis recently had the misfortune to fall and break her right arm and is now convalescing in the Sisters' Hospital on Bay street, Santa Cruz, so you may acknowledge this contribution to her there.

Very truly yours,
T. V. Mathew, recording secretary, Santa Cruz Parlor, No. 90, NSGW.

THE FOSTER PARENTS of a small adopted boy concluded their son was becoming entirely too proficient in the language of the older neighborhood boys and decided to send him to kindergarten. The mother dressed her boy in his blue Eton suit with turn-over white collar and black silk tie, brushed his refractory locks to a shine equal to his boots, and presented him to his teacher. The teacher, wanting to make the boy feel his welcome, placed her hand upon his slicked locks. He squirmed! Looking him up and down, she said, "Well, well, little man, do you know your letters?" Quite sure that he was not living up to his conscious ability, the boy replied, "Know my letters? Hell, no, I only been here five minutes."

Native Sons of the Golden West

Christmas Overseas

MEMBERS of the Native Sons of the Golden West numbering 2,000 enlisted in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and the Coast Guard in all parts of the world will each receive an identical Christmas box as the gift of the Order.

Wayne R. Millington, Grand President, announces that a check with the U. S. Post Office authorities and those in charge of the dispatching of mail to the armed forces assures that all the gifts will reach the members in the service by Christmas no matter where they are stationed.

The gifts this year are 20 per cent in excess of last Christmas, Grand President Millington stated, because of the increased number of men joining the various services in the last ten months. Also, the number is much greater than the total serving in World War No. 1.

Co-operation of the Native Daughters was given in packing, wrapping and mailing the gifts to the men in service.

Included were a varied assortment of articles as well as food stuffs. The choice of items was based on a questionnaire sent to the men in all parts of the world six months ago, asking what they desired most and would be practical as gifts. From the cross-section of answers from those in the air force, navy and the army, the packages were made up, Millington said.

Grand President Millington revealed that the NSGW bond sale campaign continues in all parlors of the State and this will proceed without curtailment for the rest of the year.

Arrowhead Candidates

HEADED by Grand President Wayne R. Millington, Grand Officers NSGW journeyed to Crestline in San Bernardino county Saturday evening, October 23, and initiated a class of forty candidates for Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 of San Bernardino. The following Grand Officers conducted the ceremonies:

Grand President Wayne R. Millington acted as president; Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss, junior past president; Joseph P. Coyle, Ramona Parlor No. 109, filled the office of senior past president; Grand Secretary John T. Regan occupied the station of first vice-president; Grand Second Vice-president Richard F. McCarthy acted as second vice-president; Grand Third Vice-president R. G. Power filled the chair of third vice-president; Grand Trustee Walter H. Odemar acted as marshal; Walter Gisler of Santa Ana was inside sentinel, and Donald E. VanLuven, Arrowhead Parlor No. 110, acted as organist.

This was also the occasion of the official visit of Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss to Arrowhead Parlor. He made an excellent address on the activities of the Order, and in addition paid a compliment to Arrowhead Parlor for the splendid class of candidates initiated.

Grand President Millington was the speaker of the evening, complimenting Arrowhead Parlor on the fine class of candidates, as well as on the general activities of the Parlor during the year.

Please send your contributions to the Homeless Children as early as possible, 998 Eddy Street, San Francisco 9.

Parlors Merge

"STRENGTH, security and future achievement" are expected of an enlarged Stanford Parlor whose merger with El Dorado Parlor was consummated Tuesday night, October 26 in Yosemite Hall in the Native Sons' building, 414 Mason street, San Francisco.

Grand President Wayne R. Millington, various grand officers and past grand presidents were present. Arthur T. Poheim acted as chairman and Grand Trustee Webster K. Nolan gave the official note of welcome to the new members, among whom was Mayor Angelo J. Rossi.

Grand President Millington dwelt on the upward swing of membership in the Order and ascribed it to the unity of purpose for which all Native Sons are working—exclusion of the orientals from California.

Grand Trustee Nolan's speach is quoted in part:

"If ever California, which has fought so brilliantly for its preservation and integrity, stood challenged, we stand challenged now! Our Congressional delegations, and the delegations of the western states, now stand ignored, and Congress itself stands impugned, because a federal agency, assuming arbitrary powers, has supervened all the natural rights of the people, and firmly informs us that we must re-accept that element of Oriental life that not only condones all that we condemn but holds in contempt all that we uphold.

"We hear again the voice of that great Native Son of San Francisco, Dr. C. C. O'Donnell, first crier, in 1881, against Japanism. There were only 500 Japs in California then; in 1900 there were 24,000; in 1920, 72,000; in 1930, 128,000. And their rate of increase is five times that of the white race! I have lived in Japan as a newspaperman, and I know there is no such thing as a Jap loyal to anything but his own unassimilable blood! That is why they believe themselves to be the "Sons of Heaven"—because they know their blood cannot be absorbed by any race on the face of the earth! They will continue so to believe until we raise the Stars and Stripes on the heights of Shimoneseki and garrison her principal ports with troops of the fiercely fighting and fearlessly principled white race!

"We hear again the voices of those pioneers who founded our great parlor—Stanford No. 76—born in the hot glory of the fight against the insidious oriental—with whom at last we are in a struggle to the death—Stanford Parlor, named not after a university founded five years after this parlor was created, but in honor of a then living symbol of freedom and fraternity—the war governor, Leland Stanford, who (though every representative in Congress from California was then a Southern secessionist) fought with the inspired help of Thomas Starr King to maintain California for the Union, and who decreed, when they raised the flag of the rebellious Pacific republic at Stockton, that that flag should be lowered and only the Stars and Stripes rendered salute. Those were the days of trial and peril for the Stars and Stripes in California, and it was Governor Stanford, the boy from Shirttail Canyon, who championed the cause to which we Native Sons of the Golden West, then and today, have consecrated ourselves in deathless devotion! Governor Stanford died in 1893 while serving his ninth year as our United States

Native Daughters of the Golden West

Merry Christmas

If we could only say it as we did when we were children,—say it not as mere words written on cards, but with the thought that the whole world is celebrating the birthday of Christ! For Christmas is everyone's birthday. It is the time for going home and the time when all men are as children again. The memories of Christmas are the recollections of familiar sights, sounds, odors, tastes and age-old music. In normal times Christmas is the brief season of happiness and enjoyment for families whose members have been dispersed and scattered far and wide in the restless struggle of life and are reunited again. How many of the old recollections and dormant sympathies Christmas time awakens!

From a once peaceful nation to a nation at war, the scene has shifted. The United States is held in contempt by warlike countries because of our horror of war, but we are now a welded nation marching onward and upward with the hope that we shall conquer and permanently preserve the American ideals of justice and liberty. We march onward with trust and faith in our hearts, praying that the ideals which shaped our past shall build our future.

We are thankful as the holiday season approaches that Christmas means for us, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace and good will toward men!"

MARY B. NOERENBERG,
Grand President, Native Daughters of the Golden West.

November 20, 1943.

Numerous gifts were received by the Grand President and deputy grand presidents of the two parlors. Many grand officers and past grand officers were present and were introduced. Martha Field of Buena Vista Parlor and Madeline King of Orinda Parlor were the chairmen of the successful affair.

United Nations Theme

Flags of the United Nations were used in the decorative scheme when El Pajaro Parlor, Watsonville and Santa Cruz Parlor entertained Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg jointly at Santa Cruz. A potluck supper preceded the meeting. The banquet hall was artistically decorated with red, white, and blue streamers, red and white tapers and small flags of the allies at each cover. Community singing enlivened the supper hour.

Large flags of the United Nations were arranged against a background of baskets of flowers in the meeting room. Gowned in white, the officers of Santa Cruz Parlor made their formal entry carrying red and yellow arm bouquets. Leula Swasey presided over the business session. Past Grand Presidents Mae B. Wilkin of San Francisco; Stella Finkeldey of Santa Cruz and Bertha Briggs of Hollister were welcomed and presented with corsages; Charter member Anna Lorenz, was similarly honored. Three candidates were initiated by Santa Cruz Parlor. They were Mary Pappas, Thelma Bond and Wanda Smith. Arista Mellor sang the odes and "I Love You California." A colorful pageant of the flags of the United Nations was formed as Leona Geyer sang, "You're a Grand Old Flag." Leula Swasey then presented the Grand President with a redwood vase. Supervising Deputy Vira Albough and Deputy Cecelia Guff were introduced. El Pajaro Parlor conducted the business and closing ceremonies.

Interesting committee reports were made and Grand President Noerenberg spoke on the many worthwhile projects of the Order and called the attention of members to the recent Tule Lake uprisings, urging all to write to Governor Warren, commending him for his stand in demanding an investigation. She concluded her remarks with the challenge, "Native Sons and Daughters must see that California is kept free for Americans after victory is won." Deputy Cecelia Huff presented the grand president with embroidered pillow cases in behalf of El Pajaro Parlor.

Second Lieut. D. Maxine White, U. S. Marine Corp's Women's Reserve, a member of Californiana Parlor, Los Angeles, is on assignment from Washington, D. Governor Warren's proclamation setting aside this week as a period of ponderance on the basic principles of the "Bill" should awaken every Native Son and Daughter to the necessity of its preservation through the exercise of their own rights and privileges.

Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg paid her official visit to Chabolla, Liberty and Victory Parlors at Elk Grove, October 22. Members of her official family who accompanied her were: Grand Marshal Ethel C. Enos; Grand Trustee Henrietta Toothaker, Grand Inside Sentinel Maxine Bundy-Kelly; Past Grand President Edna Briggs; Supervising District Deputy Martha Buckley and Deputy Grand Presidents Ruby Lovett and Belle Bradford.

A potluck supper preceded the meeting with Ann Kloss serving as general chairman of arrangements. Decorations in the autumn colors were used to enhance the tables and lodge rooms.

The USO Hospitality Division appeals through Chairman Kerr for special consideration and response through the holiday season. Ascertain from the USO in your locality exactly how you can best help.

The Japanese at Tule Lake

By WALTER H. ODEMAR.
(Chairman of the Grand Parlor Committee on Japanese Legislation, NSGW.)

The recent action of the Japanese in the War Relocation Center at Tule Lake is the best possible evidence yet produced of the correctness of the position taken by the Native Sons and the Native Daughters as to the disposition of the Japanese people now interned in this country.

It should be remembered that almost immediately after Pearl Harbor these two Orders advocated the placing of all persons of Japanese ancestry into camps to be located east of the strategic Pacific Coast combat area. We called attention to the fact that place of birth made no difference to these people because they had all been taught the tenets of the Shinto religion either in their homes or in their Japanese language schools and we later learned that there were over 240 of such schools in California.

We showed that they consider themselves a master race, each a god, and that they are willing to die to assist their Mikado in attaining "his destiny" as ruler of the world.

We further called the public's attention to the Kebeis, those who had been born here and are nominally citizens of the United States. They were sent to Japan in the early formation period of youth to be taught Japanese nationalism and the Shinto religion under the guise of teaching them Japanese culture. We said that when the Japanese Foreign Office in 1937 announced that 50,000 of the Kebeis should be returned to the United States "where they could do the most good" did not mean the most good for the United States.

Many of these Kebeis are now being released from most relocation centers after simply answering "yes" to the question when asked if they would swear allegiance to the United States and foreswear any form of allegiance or obedience to the Japanese emperor or any foreign government, power or organization. What good is such an answer when the individual believes it is his religious duty to do anything and everything to assist his Mikado the "Son of Heaven" to rule this country?

The correctness of our position has been proven by the recent happenings at the Tule Lake Relocation Center where the Japanese —led by Kebeis, natives of the United States but educated in Japan—have rioted and made it necessary for the Army to take control of that center.

There is only one safe course for our authorities to take, the course advocated from the beginning by the Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

All persons of Japanese ancestry should be placed in and kept in relocation centers controlled and patrolled by the United States Army. Any other solution of this vital national problem will be a grave mistake. We cannot afford to let one individual with the training and background of these people roam at will in any part of our country. If we do, we most assuredly will regret it.

Honor Roll

"OUR STATE, CALIFORNIA,' was the theme of an address delivered by Grand President Wayne R. Millington on the occasion of the dedication of the Honor Roll at Sausalito, November 11. The dedicatory address was given by Past Grand President Seth Millington who is also a Past State Commander of the American Legion. The latter address was attributed by officers of all branches of the military service as one of the finest touching on the present war and the first world conflict.

The Roll of Honor has been erected in the Sausalito Park and inscribed thereon are the names of all residents of the community who are in the United States military services. Approximately 500 persons attended the ceremonies including the following Grand Officers of the Native Sons: Grand President Millington, Grand First Vice-president Raymond D. Williamson, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustee Webster K. Nolan, Grand Historian Peter T. Conmy, Past Grand Presidents Seth Millington, Charles A. Koenig and Harmon D. Skillin.

Sea Point Parlor No. 196 of the Native Daughters and Sea Point Parlor No. 158, Native Sons, were on the co-operating committee.

Hon. Webb H. Mahaffy, mayor, and the city council of Sausalito sponsored the memorial and Ernest Smith was the chairman of the day. An invocation was read by Robert E. Stone, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Sausalito. The mayor addressed the assemblage and introduced distinguished guests representing the four branches of the service. Following the unveiling by Laura Proctor "God Bless America" was rendered by the Hamilton Field Band of the United States Army Air Corps and the dedicatory address. Rev. Father Henry O'Flynn of Star of the Sea parish delivered the benediction and the Hamilton Field Band closed the program with the playing of "America."

At the conclusion of the dedicatory exercises a dinner was served in honor of visiting grand officers by the officers and members of Sea Point Parlor, Native Sons.

Clear Lake Parlor No. 135, Middletown, sponsored Pioneer Day, Saturday, October 2, at Herrick's Pavilion, in honor of the Pioneers in Lake county. Gina Urbani, president of the parlor, presided and introduced the pioneers, presenting each with a small corsage of poppies made by Sister Addie Munz, before they were escorted to their seats of honor by Marshal Leona Puser. The program consisted of a brief talk by the president on "Pioneer Roster Activities." She concluded with a memorial for the pioneers who have answered the final summons. Music was furnished by Organist Ruby Pierce. This is a yearly event for Clear Lake Parlor and as usual was well attended and a great day for reminiscing. Clear Lake Parlor purchased a $100 War Bond in October.

An extremely pleasant meeting and social evening was held by the parlor Tuesday, October 26. The honor of becoming permanent members was bestowed on charter members, Anna Terrill, Addie Penney, Cora Herrick, Bertha Brookins, Ada Johanson and Mary Bolyard, who have concluded forty-two years of membership in the organization.

A benefit dance for Homeless Children and other projects of the Order was held October 30. On the evening of November 9, members enjoyed an eventful evening. Not only were five new members initiated but Supervising District Deputy Edith Cavagnaro paid her official visit. Deputy Grand President Freda Skretting was present also. Speeches by both were enjoyed. Charter member Cora Herrick spoke on "Armistice Day." Plans are being made to present membership pins to members belonging to the parlor for twenty-five years or more.

Emulate Pioneers

That the hospitality of the Sierra Nevadas has in no way dimmed since the open-handed days of the settlement of the first pioneers was aptly emphasized in the reception accorded the recent official visit of Mary B. Noerenberg, Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, to Nevada County Parlors at Grass Valley.

About 140 members gathered Wednesday evening, November 10, at 6:30 o'clock, at Wesley Hall, Methodist church, where a delicious chicken dinner was served.

Introduction of the guest of honor was made by Verna Taylor, President of Manzanita Parlor No. 29. The invocation was pronounced by Rev. Mark Pike of the Methodist church which was followed by community singing, led by Third Vice-president Betty Hansen.

Following the dinner, the assemblage adjourned to the Auditorium Hall, where a special meeting was held jointly with Laurel Parlor No. 6, Nevada City.

Grand officers who attended were SDDGP Ruth Sinnock of Colfax and Deputies Dorothy Schumann of Nevada City, Alberta Cross of Colfax, Hazel George of Grass Valley and Beth Wilson of Nevada City.

Representatives were present from Los Angeles, French Corral, Alleghany, Colfax and Jackson. There was a banner attendance from Laurel Parlor, Nevada City and Manzanita.

Initiation work was exemplified by Laurel Parlor, headed by President Beryl Granholm. Manzanita Parlor conducted the opening and closing ceremonies.

The hall was beautifully decorated in yellow marigolds and autumn leaves. In front of the president's station was an emblematic V formed of lighted candles.

Quartz Parlor No. 58, NSGW presented the Grand President with a beautiful basket of golden chrysanthemums, the presentation being made by President Earl Covey.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Evelyn Richlin sang "The End of a Perfect Day" and Grand President Noerenberg, clever and talented whistled the accompaniment with musician Louise Wales at the piano.

The following day being Armistice Day, Grand President Noerenberg marched in the local parade, heading the Colfax, Nevada City and Grass Valley Native Daughters and also delivered an address before the large assemblage at Legion Hall.

Upon the arrival of Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg on November 10, a delegation of Manzanita Parlor members met and accompanied her to French Corral, where the official visit to Columbia Parlor No. 70 was made. A delicious luncheon was served at 1:00 p.m. followed by the meeting.

Western Shindig

Invitations to Coalinga Parlor's cowboy party held at the home of Polly Esrey, November 5, were in the form of a clever rhyme. Those attending were attired in cowboy outfits and prizes for best costumes were won by Rachel Dozier and Hazel Spidel. Decorations for the occasion were genuine bridles, saddles and ropes from the Esrey's collection. The evening was spent singing songs around the camp fire and playing games of true western origin. Refreshments were served chuck wagon style. Hostesses for the evening were Polly Esrey, Eleanor Nelson, Virginia O'Quinn and Evelyn Rygh.

A beautiful doll has been purchased and members have made a luxurious wardrobe for her. She is sure to make some lucky little girl happy at Christmas time.

Two Anniversaries

REINA del Mar Parlor, NDGW, Santa Barbara, will celebrate the 341st birthday of Santa Barbara and the 156th anniversary of the founding of Mission La Concepcion Purisima de Maria Santisima at Lompoc, the eleventh of California's chain of twenty-one missions, December 8.

December 3, 1602, Sebastian Viscaino sailed into the broad channel which separates the mainland from a chain of islands and the next morning cast anchor off the present site of Santa Barbara. Recognizing the birthday of Santa Barbara, martyred daughter of Dioscorus of ancient Rome, the Carmelite Friar who was the historian, aboard Viscaino's ship named the channel and the coast in her honor. On a cold December day in 1787, a small group of Franciscan padres and half-naked natives dedicated the Mission near the present city of Lompoc. Destroyed by earthquake in 1812, the site of the ruins of this mission became a state park in 1933. Mission buildings have since been restored by state and national forces. Recently a Coast Guard station was established there and Reina del Mar Parlor has just completed the furnishing of a day room.

The December 8 program evolving around the two anniversaries will be presented under the leadership of Mrs. Albert Ames, Third Vice-president, with Mrs. R. J. Schuld of the extension of the order committee as co-chairman. In co-operation with the Santa Barbara Community Christmas Tree committee every member will bring a present for a less privileged child on a home front in the midst of war.

Plans are being laid for a regional school of instruction for officers of Native Daughters Parlors in Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo counties. Preliminaries were worked out at a recent meeting at the home of Dr. Anna E. McCaughey, when Mrs. William A. Birss, Reina del Mar president, presided.

San Rafael Days

MARINITA PARLOR No. 198, Native Daughters of the Golden West, celebrated its tenth annual San Rafael Days Fiesta October 29, 30 and 31.

Opening of the three-day celebration was a dance for the enlisted men at the USO clubhouse in San Rafael. Father George O'Meara of St. Raphael's parish opened the festivities with an invocation. Senorita of the Fiesta, Eunice Hornsby and her attendants, Barbara Kahler and Evelyn Nerviani were presented. A Halloween motif was carried out with greens and chrysanthemums in the fall colors used as decoration in the clubhouse rooms. Refreshments were pop-corn, apples, cake and coffee served in front of the fireplace, where a cheerful fire burned. Saturday evening the famous "Spanish Market" was opened to the public with games, refreshments and fun for all.

Following the parade, the Spanish Market was again opened. Here merriment lasted until evening when parade prizes and trophies were awarded. Of signal interest this year was the presentation of the California Bear Flag to the Boy Scouts of America for their new building being erected in San Rafael by Mr. Jacob Albert, leading businessman.

A bond booth was installed at the Spanish Market and over $3,000 in bonds and stamps were sold. Another outstanding booth was that conducted for the benefit of the Homeless Children.

SGT. BLANCHE MOORE and Sgt. Elaine Aldridge are members of the United States Marine Corps Women's Reserve and were the first two women Marines to be initiated into the Native Daughters. They are members of Dolores Parlor, San Francisco.

Daughters in Service

EFFORTS made by the Native Daughters in the Marine Corps Women's Reserve recruiting drive have been a real contribution to the war effort, and the Marines are happy to acknowledge that fact and to extend to you heartiest holiday greetings and best wishes for the continued success of your fine organizations.

The United States Marine Corps celebrated the 168th anniversary of its establishment by the Continental Congress, November 10.

The anniversary found the Marines engaged in mortal combat with our national enemies in many theaters of active operations and particularly at Bougainville in the South Pacific.

From the original two battalions of Marines organized in 1775, the Marine Corps has grown to a land, sea and air military force of more than 325,000 men and women. It is equipped, trained and prepared for amphibious operations of the first magnitude.

Early in 1943, the Marine Corps began to accept women for enlistment in the Marine Corps Women's Reserve. The sole object of this program was to conserve manpower by utilizing all trained and physically fit men in the Marine Corps for active combat service overseas. The enlistment of women permitted the assignment of an equal number of men to duty overseas. The women were able to replace these men in those positions within the continental limits of the United States which were suitable for women. Thousands of women have responded to this call to the colors. After appropriate indoctrination and training, they assumed the burden of performing the tasks at Marine Corps posts and stations in the United States that formerly had been performed by men as a matter of necessity. With the passage of time, these women have proved themselves to be capable of performing these tasks with a high degree of efficiency, and the Marine Corps men have accepted women into the Corps with real enthusiasm.

During the last four months of 1943, the Native Daughters of the Golden West have contributed materially to the successful recruiting of qualified women for enlistment in the Marine Corps Women's Reserve in the State of California. They have publicized the program throughout the state, and they have been very active in encouraging eligible women to enlist. During the period the NDGW aided the Marine Corps Procurement and Recruiting Service in northern California, the district of San Francisco established the enviable record of enlisting more women in the Marine Corps Women's Reserve than any other district in the United States except New York.

Lieut. Col. Ralph E. West, U. S. Marine Corps, retired, Officer in Charge, Recruiting District of San Francisco, U. S. Marine Corps.

Veteran Welfare

With the addition of two new hospitals to the list of those to which Native Daughters have directed their state-wide attention for twenty years, making twelve in all, the Veteran Welfare work has increased this year, according to State Chairman Evelyn I. Carlson, NDGW. Additional funds will be necessary to supply the needs and small luxuries for the recreation divisions of these hospitals.

"Will you then, if possible, double your usual donation so that we may prove to these heroes of World War 1 that we have not forgotten but rather are proud and willing to pay tribute in this small way to those still living?" asks the chairman, in her annual plea for the Grand Parlor Christmas Veteran Welfare Fund.

Time flies! Don't forget the Homeless Children! This is the time to contribute for the fiscal year!

Service for the Service

Vallejo Parlor No. 195, NDGW, took over the A.W.V.S. Canteen for Thursday, November 18, and entertained the servicemen at a pre-Thanksgiving party. Homemade cookies and delicious refreshments were served. Entertainment and community singing were enjoyed by the men in the armed forces who visited the canteen that day. Matilda Pappas was chairman of the affair.

A similar affair will be held at the Navy Mothers' club for the entertainment of enlisted men when the parlor takes the club over for a day in the near future.

December 8 a dance for the boys in all branches of the service will be held at the Navy YMCA. Vallejo Parlor will act as hostesses for the affair and will provide refreshments for the boys. Mrs. Layol German will serve as chairman.

A generous donation has been made to the Occupational Therapy Department of the Mare Island Naval Hospital, where men who have received serious wounds in combat zones, are taught new skills such as wood carving, knot tying, pottery making and braiding. In this way they are enabled to regain the use of injured parts of their bodies, and at the same time they are provided with interesting activity for the long hours spent in the hospital.

Funds for these activities in the parlor's wartime program were raised at a recent rummage sale which proved highly successful. A donation was also made to the Vallejo-Mare Island War Chest.

Wednesday, November 17, Supervising Deputy Grand President Edith Cavagnaro of Calistoga Parlor No. 145, paid her official visit. Three candidates were initiated in her honor. Marian Brien, deputy grand president of Eschol Parlor No. 16, Napa, also was present. Refreshments were served and decorations were carried out in the Thanksgiving motif. Pauline Pappas was general chairman.

The Parlor as well as the Officers and Past Presidents' Club contributed generously to the Buddy Bed Fund in October and are now filling Christmas boxes for navy and army men convalescing in hospitals throughout the county. The rummage sale sponsored by the Ways and Means Committee on October 12-13 and the card party given on October 28 by the Homeless Children Committee were successes.

Deputies Meeting

A practice exemplification of the joint installation ritual of the two orders was held November 5 in the Native Sons' Hall, Oakland, by District Deputies and Deputy Grand Presidents. Deputy Grand President Ray Butler of Piedmont Parlor acted as installing deputy for the Native Sons.

A kindly cherished Sister has been called from among us and we deeply deplore the loss which severs family and fraternal ties.

Our dear friend and sister was the symbol of all that is kind and beautiful and good.

Resolved, That this expresion of respect to her memory be spread upon the minutes of the parlor; that a copy be sent to her family and a copy be sent to the Grizzly Bear Magazine.

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind.
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days
Sincere and true in heart and mind
Beautiful Memories she leaves behind.

Respectfully submitted,

Louise M. Todd

To the Officers and Members of Petaluma Parlor No. 222, NDGW.

We, your Memorial Committee submit the following resolution:

Whereas, Our beloved Sister Louise M. Todd has answered the call of our Heavenly Father and the ties of love, friendship and fraternity have again been severed, and our hearts are filled with sorrow in the passing of a loyal Native Daughter, a kind friend, and a loving mother to her family.

Therefore, Be it resolved that we extend our sincere sympathy to her bereaved family.

"I cannot say and I will not say
That she is dead. She is just away.
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
She has wandered into an unknown land.

And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since she lingers there,
And you — Oh you, who would'st yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return,

Think of her faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here.
Think of her still as the same, I say,
She is not dead. She is just away."

Be it further resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to her family, to the Grizzly Bear Magazine, and that it be spread upon the minutes of this parlor.

Respectfully submitted,
ZOURA TOMPKINS,
MYRLE KIRKPATRICK,
ADA OLIVERI,
ELSIE L. RICIOLI.

Pioneer Mother

EDITH MEDORA KIEFER, mother of Paul Kiefer of Ramona Parlor, NSGW, Los Angeles died at her home, November 13 at the age of eighty-eight years. Mrs. Kiefer was born in Placerville, August 24, 1855, the daughter of James B. Kiefer and Maria Garrett Barr. Her father came to California in 1849 and was a sheriff in Illinois previous to his migration here. Maria came to this state in 1851. Edith Medora's grandfather was Augustus A. Garrett who settled in Peoria, Illinois in 1832 and made two trips to California, establishing one of the earliest Masonic lodges in the state in Marysville.

Edith Kiefer was born in the Carry House, on the present site of the Hotel Raffles. Her father named the Old Ohio House, the Carry House and the Cedar Ravine. In 1859 the Barr family moved to Visalia where they managed the old Visalia House and the Exchange Hotel during the Civil War period. Edith grew up there and was educated in private schools, studied music under well known teachers and became an accomplished piano accompanist.

In 1874 she married Peter B. Kiefer and their son Paul was born in Visalia in 1880. They made many exciting trips to Los Angeles in the 1870's and in January, 1882 settled permanently there. Mr. Kiefer was a pioneer merchant and exporter of California wines and brandies. Edith Medora Kiefer was a leading figure in the civic life of the city. She was charitable and deeply religious.

Abbie Ann Green, widow of the late O. V. Green, died in her home in Etna, October 16, at the age of 102 years, 6 months and 15 days. She was born in Vermont and crossed the plains with her husband and one year old daughter in 1862, arriving in Scott Valley in the fall, where they settled on a ranch near Etna. In 1905 Mr. and Mrs. Green moved to Etna.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Angie Adams and a son, Charles H. Green, both of Etna; seven grandchildren and ten great grandchildren.

Carrie A. Rule, wife of Charles Rule passed away in Vallejo, October 18. A native of Lincoln, Placer county, Mrs. Rule was eighty-nine years of age and beside her husband is survived by two sisters and a brother.

Historian Passes

W. A. Chalfant, historian of Eastern California died at his home in Bishop, Owens Valley, November 5. Chalfant was editor of the Inyo Register for fifty-eight years until illness forced him to retire this summer. The veteran of many an editorial battle, the historian was widely known for his books, "Death Valley, The Facts," "The Story of Inyo," "Outposts of Civilization" and "Tales of the Pioneers." Chalfant was born in Virginia City, Nevada, and was the son of P. A. Chalfant, a member of the Manly Death Valley party who started the publication of the Inyo Independent in Independence in 1870. He leaves his wife Flora and three sisters.

Octogenarian

Robert Henry Carson, eighty-four, a resident of Schilling for fifteen years, and a native of Sonoma died October 24. He was born August 6, 1859 and is survived by his daughter, Hazel Strominger of San Jose.

A lifelong resident of Napa County, Ellsworth Leonard, eighty-one years of age passed away October 25. The pioneer was born on what is now the Struve ranch near Napa. He was the son of George Leonard, owner of the first sawmill in the county.

California Books

Charles Mills Gayley

By Benjamin P. Kurtz; published by the University of California Press; reviewed by Isabel Fages.

Charles Mills Gayley was aptly called the "Apostle of the world's great books" by his biographer. Gayley was one of the best loved professors of the University of California, having filled the chair of Professor of English. He was a teacher of literature and called his famous course, "Great Books."

Charles Mills Gayley was born in China, February 22, 1858. His family background is vividly portrayed in the interesting account of his parents' experiences as Presbyterian missionaries in China. His father, Samuel Gayley, died there a victim of the dreaded plague. The sad experience of his mother, Sallie Gayley, as she laid her loved ones to rest in the foreign land and sailed for England are among the most poignant paragraphs of the book. However, she remarried and reared a large family, but was always loving and considerate of the child of her first love.

Finally she bade him farewell and he sailed for America where he was to study and live with his relatives. His Alma Mater was the University of Michigan. After years of study and teaching, he came to California and was a member of the faculty of the University of California for thirty-four years.

December 31, 1930, Gayley was invited to become a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and in the following year, the Council of the American Association of University Professors, in view of his recent retirement and in recognition of his "distinguished achievements in teaching (and) research" invited him to become an honorary member.

Illness at last overcame the teacher and July 25, 1932, he died. "So passed in firm certitude of the reality of the spiritual life, Charles Mills Gayley, a man made in the grand and generous style, who for thirty-four years had been a vital and shaping force in the history of the University of California and of his adopted state. . . ."

Philosophy of Nature

By Joseph Grinnell; published by University of California Press; reviewed by Olive Lopez.

Philosophy of Nature written by Joseph Grinnell, is a work truly interesting and valuable to those interested in this subject. Grinnell was born in 1877 and died in 1939. His life was spent in the study of birds and mammals. He was born a naturalist and his lectures on the subject led many students to undertake researches in zoology under his direction. The volume was published in commemoration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the University of California.

Many gems of interpretation of the workings of nature are found in the volume. Among the many subjects treated are: the methods and uses of a research museum; the Colorado River as a highway or as a hindrance to the dispersal of species; barriers to distribution regarding birds and mammals; geography and evolution; tree surgery and a revised life-zone map of of California. Grinnell's references were taken from The Condor, The Auk, Popular Science Monthly; the University of California publications; The American Naturalist; Science and the University of California Chronicle. The volume sells for $2.

Bulletin No. 118

By The Department of Natural Resources Division of Mines, California, reviewed by Harry Lelande.

The Department of Natural Resources (Division of Mines) of the state is to be commended for the extensive and exhaustive report in a volume called The Geologic Formations and Economic Development of the Oil and Gas Fields of the State of California. It is designated as Bulletin 118 and more than four years were required for its compilation. It is an invaluable contribution to the geological history of the state. The volume is profusely illustrated and encased in the back cover is an Outline Geologic map of California showing all oil and gas fields and all drilled areas. One hundred and twenty-six geologists contributed articles for the bulletin, each on a subject or area well known to him.

California-Nevada Boundary Dispute

Written especially for The Grizzly Bear Magazine by Peter C. Conmy, Grand Historian, NSGW.

REFERENCE to the California School Directory discloses that the address of the Superintendent of Schools of Alpine County, California, is a small town across the line in Nevada State. This fact is cited to show that there is a very close relationship between the people who live along California's eastern border and those who dwell in Nevada. That this has always been the case is best illustrated by the story of Aurora, Nevada State, which was for four years the government seat of Mono County, California.

Mono County, situated on the eastern side of the Sierra Nevada, is still one of the sparsely settled, remote sections of the state. It is off the main thoroughfare, as it was in earlier times, removed from the important trails and passes. It was for this reason that the area escaped notice in gold rush days, and most of it was included in the then large County of Calaveras. Ten years of development of goldfields found some of the mines petering out, and men began to search for new sources of supply.

It was for this reason that in 1860 a group of young prospectors found their way across the Sierra and down the eastern slopes, then across the narrow valley of the Mono-Inyo country and up into the foothills of the easternmost Sierra Nevada. These men, led by one James M. Corey, whose home was in the Santa Clara Valley, discovered August 25, 1860, the famous lode known as the Emeralda field. The name applied by Corey signifies, in Spanish, emerald, but was given not because of the presence of precious stones but because Corey associated with the discovery some fact from Victor Hugo's novel, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the heroine of which was a gypsy girl known as Esmeralda.

The nearest settlement from the site of the Esmeralda was Monoville, about twenty miles west, and Corey and his friends immediately went there, reported their find, bought supplies, and retraced their steps to their newly discovered goldfield and commenced working. The little settlement of Esmeralda grew at once, but a short time later gave way to a nearby, but more suitable site which took the name of Aurora.

August 30, 1860, the miners round about assembled in Corey's camp and founded the Esmeralda mining district, which they defined as running five miles easterly and westerly and ten miles from north to south. This was the official beginning of the famous Esmeralda mines. By October the discovery had attracted widespread notice, which is witnessed by the fact that over three hundred and seventy-five claims were recorded. While much gold was taken out, the boom did not prove to be as valuable as expected. The veins, although numerous, were not deep. Says Wasson's "Bodie and Esmeralda": "The Esmeralda excitement was a wild dance of death or disappointment to thousands; any piece of paper having the word printed on it commanding high figures for a year or two, and being as valueless, comparatively, as a confederate script by the Spring of 1865."

While the Esmeralda excitement lasted, however, it attracted a large population to the area. This necessitated the establishment of a government. The sheriff of Calaveras County lived at San Andreas, miles away on the other side of the Sierra Nevada. The other part of the area belonged to Fresno County, the sheriff of which was stationed at the then county-seat, Millerton, situated on the western slope of the Sierra Navada foothills and on the bank of the San Joaquin River. In the spring of 1861, therefore, the California Legislature determined upon a subdivision of that portion of Calaveras and Fresno Counties which lay east of the summit of the Sierra Nevada. The Senate voted to name this Esmerelda County, but the Assembly insisted on applying the name Mono, the name of the Indian tribe which inhabited the region. Finally the Assembly had its way, and March 25, 1861, Mono County was ordered established. Aurora was made the countyseat.

During this same period there had been discovery of both gold and silver deposits in several parts of Nevada. Following the admission of California into the Union in 1850, Congress had created Utah Territory, which included the present states of Utah and Nevada. Now that mining was bringing a sizeable population to the western parts of Utah Territory it was felt that a division should take place and so, March 2, 1861, Congress detached what is now the state of Nevada from Utah Territory and created a new governmental district, the Territory of Nevada.

A territorial legislature was at once convened, the principal business of which was to create counties for the new territory. That area directly opposite the newly organized Mono County of California was shunted into Esmeralda County, Nevada. Notwithstanding the fact that the California Legislature had already named Aurora as the government seat of Mono County, the Territorial Legislature of Nevada decreed that Aurora should be the seat of Esmeralda County. This brought at once serious conflicts of jurisdiction. There were duplicate sets of officers, claiming authority, respectively, from the governments of California and Nevada. In the main, however, California exercised jurisdiction, as it was thought the California claim was a valid one.

The boundaries of the State of California were fixed by the Constitutional Convention of 1849. Written into the Constitution, they were accepted by the people when, November 13 of that year, they voted by an overwhelming majority in favor of the Constitution. These boundaries were officially validated by the Federal Government when, September 9, 1850, California was admitted into the Union under its Constitution of 1849.

The eastern boundary of California as defined by the Constitution could not be questioned legally. Until it should be surveyed, however, and landmarks established, those who lived near that boundary had no correct idea as to just where it was. So it was with respect to Aurora and the Esmeralda mining district. An ambitious California, seeking added wealth and resources for the state, claimed that it was within its boundaries. An equally ambitious Nevada, with little fertile soil, sought to capitalize on whatever mineral resources might be found, and so, it, too, claimed the Esmeralda.

That Nevada sought expansion into the more valuable area of California, is evidenced by the fact that one of the first acts of the territorial governor in 1861 was his recommendation to the Territorial Legislature that California be asked to cede to Nevada all land east of the summit of the Sierra Nevada. Needless to say, his recommendation was adopted, but California did not see fit to acquiesce. Had the request of Nevada been granted, the eastern parts of Modoc, Lassen, Plumas, Sierra, Nevada, Placer, El Dorado and Alpine Counties would have passed into the neighboring state, as well as all of Mono and Inyo Counties. In February 1862 the governor of Nevada was informed that California would not grant this request. Following this, Governor Nye then requested that the boundary between the two jurisdictions be surveyed.

The matter of an official survey had been pending for some years. As early as 1858 the Legislature of California requested the Federal Congress to appoint a commission to survey the state line. In 1860 Congress authorized the President to appoint the necessary commissioners. President Buchanan, however, failed to name the commissioners. In 1860 the California Legislature authorized the surveyor-general to survey the eastern boundary from the Oregon line to the Mount Diablo base line. In 1861 the miners of the Comstock Lode in Nevada desired to be annexed to California and the governor recommended that Congress permit the California boundary to be moved east to the 118th meridian, so as to include their settlements. This, however, was not granted and instead Nevada Territory was created.

The Civil War brought to the Congress far more important problems than the California-Nevada boundary, so that in order to complete a survey it was necessary for the two units, California and Nevada, to finance and conduct the project jointly. This was accomplished by two engineers, John F. Kidder representing California, and Butler Ives on behalf of Nevada.

Late in 1863 these men found Aurora was situated three miles east of the California boundary and therefore within the Territory of Nevada. In 1864 the California Legislature received this report, and recognizing it, settled the jurisdiction question for all time to come by relinquishing all claim to the Esmeralda area and moving the seat of Mono County from Aurora, Nevada, to Bridgeport, California, twenty-five miles to the west. As a matter of fact, the years proved that California had not lost a great deal when it was found that the Esmeralda was in Nevada, because by 1870 the Aurora mines were exhausted.

In the years that have followed the gold mining era men have found that there are other sources of wealth than the basic metal itself. Mono and Inyo, the counties of California's great eastern basin, have been found to contain not only gold, silver and copper, but other valuable minerals. Development has been slow, because of the remoteness of the area. The California Blue Book of 1942 lists a number of minerals which exist in abundance in Mono County and which in the future undoubtedly will be developed.

Aurora although officially situated within Nevada, is for all practical purposes a California mining town. It has the same traditions as so many of the old gold towns, so that one may truly say: "Aurora, Nevada, you are still Aurora of the California mining era. You are Californian historically. You are Californian in culture."

senator, seven years after this parlor was created, but which he could not join. We were not posthumous in extending him the accolade of adulation he well deserved!

"It is into this highly dedicated parlor that you, eminent sons of El Dorado now lend. And to you, the sons of El Dorado—name sacred because it was the name by which your glorious state was known to the world in 1848 and '49—to you we extend our arms, outstretched with welcome! For you were conceived before us, and will enrich and strengthen the fibre of our high ideals and aspirations.

"A day or two ago we read of the destruction of our great new submarine, the Dorado with her sixty-five men, off Japan. Submarines are named after deep-sea life. The Dorado was named after that amazing member of the Dolphin family which, when approaching death by removal from the water, assumes a glory of golden color which is the wonder and mystery of marine scientists. Such is the glory of our American boys who died on the Dorado and whose deaths give a greater glow to the candles of consecration that we Californians hold in our hands.

"And you my brothers of El Dorado, pass in colorful glory, in resplendant transition from a brilliant past to new life among brothers who welcome you as warmly as they hope to have you inspire them in the forward march that is the destiny of our Order!"

Refreshments were served in Sacramento Hall and entertainment furnished by the Delphi Trio.

Charities Benefitted

Rudecinda Parlor, San Pedro, served a turkey dinner Tuesday, November 16, in the local I.O.O.F. hall to 100 friends and guests. The financial success of the event was partly attributable to the fact that all the food was donated. Grace Boddie and Lillian Shipley were co-chairmen and several of the members helped serve the repast. The parlor's charitable projects will be benefitted from the funds. Ten dollars was donated for Veteran Welfare Chairman Catherine Morris for gifts for soldiers at Sawtelle. Marcella Sandoval made a stirring plea for the Homeless Children work at the November 22 meeting. Election of officers is scheduled for December 13 and the annual Christmas dinner will take place December 15. Members will exchange gifts and secret sisters will be revealed.

Armistice day was appropriately observed by Californiana Parlor, NDGW, Los Angeles, Tuesday, November 9, at the luncheon program held at twelve noon in the Women's University Club, 943 South Hoover street.

The guest speaker was Col. Charles W. Decker, a veteran of World War I and an authority on military and governmental procedure. He said he hoped the day marking the termination of the present conflict would be designated Victory Day and that the title should represent all it was intended to convey. Josephine T. Gaige and her Veterans' Welfare Committee were in charge of the luncheon and Charlotte Carpenter, program chairman, introduced Dorothy Dye who rendered several pleasing piano numbers.

Mrs. Horace T. Cooke, third vice-president related the story of the coming of her grandfather across the plains. Traveling in eleven oxen and horse-drawn wagons the party journeyed west in 1845.

Waffle Breakfast

Ontario Parlor No. 251 enjoyed a waffle breakfast at the home of Maude Van Fleet Sunday, November 1. The affair was quite a success. Present were Past Grand President Hazel Hansen, Florence Schoneman, Deputy Rena Churchill, and President Grace Poole of Long Beach Parlor. Wednesday, November 3, a Marine recruiting meeting was held at Ontario and at that time Betty Kuhn signed up. At the regular meeting of the parlor Wednesday, November 17, six new members were initiated. Lillian Groves presided and Deputy Rena Churchill attended.

The parlor is planning a potluck dinner for Sunday afternoon, December 17, to which the members and their families are invited. It will be the parlor's birthday and Christmas party.

Keep Your Hands Beautiful

Women whose hands are busy with war-time duties and added house-hold tasks use Chamberlain's Lotion. They know this clear, golden lotion helps keep hands soft, lovely, and free from roughness and ugly redness. It dries with such convenient quickness. Try Chamberlain's Lotion and you'll agree. Buy it at all toilet goods counters.

"Christmas in the Mines"

"Christmas in the Mines" is the name of a story written by John B. Haas and published in the Grizzly Bear, December, 1907. It describes the revival of Christmas customs of the "States" by the populace of "Pleasant Valley". The school house—"for mind you, we had one, and a right fine building it was—stood near the brook running through the valley, surrounded by tall pines and great live-oak trees. We had decorated it to perfection with evergreen branches, and a gigantic 'Merry Christmas' made of green branches and real berries. . ."

"It was during the Civil War. The majority of our people were good Union Men. We resolved to arrange things so that a good sum would be realized for the benefit of the sick and wounded soldiers.

"Christmas eve came. All day long visitors had arrived from the neighboring camps. Families in wagons from the more distant mountain ranches, young ladies and their beaux on horse-back and nearly all the miners for miles around on foot. Even our Indian population was well represented. The whole tribe with their squaws and papooses, led by their chief, Capt. Charlie, was on hand. . . .

"The crowd stood patiently waiting before the door and when it opened at a given signal, they poured into the large room and there was no end of expressions of delight when they beheld the Christmas tree with its hundreds of lighted tapers. The band, composed of a number of violins played, and the audience joined in singing 'America' with a will. . .

"When old 'Santa' had appeared and explained the object of the festival, the distributing of gifts began. It wasn't a dry matter of money either. Luck and chance played some queer pranks. It favored an old graybeard of a miner with a lady's hat, nicely trimmed with flowers and ribbons. A blooming young lassie got a razor. A young married lady was presented with a toy cradle and a baby doll in it, to the great amusement of her friends. An old gent, well known to the community as a stingy old party, got a gilded potato and when Jim Barclay, the longest fellow in camp, received on his ticket, a very short hoop skirt, and hung it over his long, drawn-out body, the fun became boisterous."

An auction was held, providing great hilarity and when the profits of the affair were counted, nearly three hundred dollars were realized. "After the singing of Battle Hymn of the Republic and Glory, Glory Halleluya, the audience dispersed."

Grand Officer Honored

Grand Inside Sentinel Maxine Bundy Kelly, a member of Sutter Parlor No. 111, NDGW, was honored at a reception following the meeting of the parlor, November 16, in the Native Sons Hall.

Myrtis Orr of Rio Rito Parlor, and Leone Hinrich presented vocal numbers and Virginia Hinrich rendered violin solos. The parlor presented gifts of hand painted china to the honored guest. Other distinguished guests were Grand Trustee Henrietta Toothaker of Woodland Parlor No. 90, Deputy Grand Presidents Harriett Hall, Helene Islip, Ruby Lovett, Myrtis Orr, Florence Morris, Edalene Sandrock, and members from Coloma, Rio Rito, Califia, Woodland, Chispa, La Bandera, Fern and Liberty Parlors.

Ethel Ludwig presided over the business meeting and the nominations of officers.

The committee of arrangements included Lily Tilden, chairman; Elizabeth Bennetts, Sadie Brainard, Lottie Patterson, Helene Islip, Charlotte Constantine, Adele Nix, Lorain Williams and Wilma Guttenberger.

California Becomes American

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the story of the Treaty of Cahuenga, dictated by the late Don Carlos Prudhomme to Isabel Fages. Don Carlos was a member of Ramona Parlor, NSGW. He was responsible for the gathering of much of the Native Sons collection in Los Angeles Museum, Exposition Park. This article is dedicated to his memory.

El Pueblo de Los Angeles was the objective of Commodore R. F. Stockton, who with his naval forces came down the coast in a man o' war, in the month of August, 1846.

According to history, Don Andres Pico, in command of the Mexican troops in that vicinity, was with his soldiers on a scouting trip along the coast. At La Loma Devisadero, or Signal Hill, Long Beach, General Pico and his staff were watching the ship, which they had sighted in the distance. One of the Mexican officers commanded his division to march around the hill, and form in various positions. This gave the impression that there were a great many of them, when as a matter of fact, there was only a handful. Officers of the ship were impressed by the effect of the maneuver, and concluded it would be unwise to launch an attack. The ship sailed south.

General Jose Maria Flores, in command in the pueblo, sent a corporal Ylario Ybarra, with fifteen soldiers to scout the coast. While there, some smoke was seen on the horizon, and Ybarra immediately sent one of his soldiers to the pueblo with a message to his commanding officer, saying the enemy was coming. General Flores lost no time in marching his men toward the harbor to check the foe. When the frigate came near the bay, and fired the first cannon shot, the Mexican soldiers retreated, and the marines proceeded to land. Among them was a negro named Fisher, who acted as guide. He was supposed to have been familiar with the country, and was to lead the invaders to the town. The marines marched around the slough, taking a northeasterly route toward the river. At the lowlands of the San Gabriel river, the army came upon a small hacienda owned by a Mexican. His crop of watermelons and canteloupes was devoured by the newcomers, who pounced upon it like a swarm of chapules, or grasshoppers. They ate everything in sight, and seeing nothing else to destroy, tramped on in a northwesterly direction. A mile and a quarter due west of the Dominguez ranch house, the American marines and the Mexican soldiers engaged in battle.

The latter were commanded by General Flores, assisted by Senores Jose Antonio Carrillo, Servol Varelas, and Francisco Cota, who was the standard bearer. Señores Minito Lugo and Ramon Valenzuela had riatas attached to the horns of their saddles, with which they dragged a small cannon here and there, placing it in the desired positions.

At the time of the affray, which took place on Dominguez hill, General Andres Pico resorted to an unusual means of combat and victory. A wild mustard field which was very dry was set afire. A brisk wind was blowing, and the marines were suffocated to the point of defeat. They boarded their ship, the Vandallia, but soon returned, overcame the Mexicans, and entered el pueblo de Los Angeles. General Stephen S. Kearny and his soldiers were en route to the village by the so-called southern route, through Santa Fe, New Mexico, to California. The first battle this division held with the Mexicans in this state was on December 6, 1846, in the valley of San Pasqual, San Diego county. Kearny lost eighteen men.

The second battle fought in the vicinity of Los Angeles took place January 8, 1847. It occurred on the west side of the San Gabriel river, east of Montebello.

The last battle between the United States in its conquest for California and Mexico is known as the battle of La Mesa. General Andres Pico, realizing that his men had suffered defeat on the previous day, and that the same thing might happen again, ordered his soldiers early in the night to make a number of bonfires, so that the invaders might be led to believe their troops had been augmented, and that many fighters were encamped there. The following day, the American soldiers resumed their march toward La Mesa, and met the Mexicans on January 9, 1847. A guerrilla or skirmish took place at Aliso Solo, the single sycamore, a landmark of the early days. This was about one and one-half miles southeast of Los Angeles on the present site of the Union stock yards. Jose Bautista Moreno was in command of the Mexicans, who were defeated.

General Kearny and Commodore Stockton entered el pueblo de Los Angeles, January 10, 1847, and found that Governor Pio Pico and General Flores had departed. General Andres Pico was in full command, but had retreated with his soldiers toward Verdugo. The Americans had had a victorious march so far, and with their brass band, and many banners flying, they marched through the village. It was the first military band ever to be heard in Los Angeles.

Commodore Stockton, with his marines, returned to the ships in the bay, leaving Lieutenant A. Gillespie in charge of a garrison of fifty men, instructing them to hold the pueblo. But Gillespie attempted to fashion the customs of California after a New England model, without the consent of the government. Revolt was the result. Such influential dons as members of the Dominguez, Pico, Sepulveda, Lopez, Machado and Lugo families were led by Don Jose Antonio Carrillo. Three hundred men besieged Gillespie's forces, and finally compelled them to evacuate and retreat to San Pedro. They remained in the harbor until Commodore Stockton sent Captain William Mervine on the frigate Savannah with three hundred soldiers and marines. The intention was to capture the rebellious pueblanos, or townspeople. Once again San Pedro beheld a war. Captain Moreno's men retreated, bearing their wounded on litters, and the dead in creaking carretas or ox carts. They had left their flag behind.

From the north came Lieut. Col John C. Fremont, and with him was Don Jesus Pico, a cousin of Don Pio and General Andres Pico. His life had been saved by Lieut. Col. Fremont, and the grateful paisano had aided the American in every subsequent undertaking. Upon arrival at San Fernando mission, the colonel prepared temporary quarters for rest, and was informed of the whereabouts of Don Andres Pico.

Don Jesus was dispatched to Verdugo Rancho, where his own people were located. He urged Gen. Andres Pico to make a treaty with no other than Fremont. With his relative the General journeyed to the mission near by, and reported to the American officer. On the following day, Pico met the general at el Rancho de Cahuenga at the appointed time. The usual formalities were exchanged, and they proceeded with the business of the moment.

This took place January 13, 1847, on the porch of an adobe house. Some say it was a chapel, but in reality it was a home, erected in 1844 by Don Tomas Féliz. The following articles were approved by the Treaty Guadalupe Hidalgo in Mexico, in the year 1848:

"Articles of capitulation made and entered into at this rancho of Cahuenga, this thirteenth day of January, Anno Domini, 1847, between P. B. Reading, Major Lewis McLane, jr., commanding artillery; W. H. Russell, ordinance officer; commissioners, appointed by J. C. Fremont, Lt. Commander United States Army and military commandant of the territory of California, and Jose Antonio Carrillo, commandante de escuadron; Agustin Olvera, deputado, commissioners, appointed by Don Andres Pico, commander in chief of the California forces under the Mexican flag.

"Article one—The commissioners on part of the Californians agree that the entire forces, on presentation of this to Lt. Colonel Fremont, deliver up the artillery and public arms, and they shall return peacefully to their homes, conforming to the laws and regulations of the United States and Mexico, but will assist and aid in placing the country in a state of peace and tranquility.

"Article two—The commissioners on the part of Lt. Colonel Fremont agree and bind themselves on the fulfillment of the first article by the Californians, but they shall be guaranteed protection, whether of life or property, whether on parole or otherwise.

"Article three—That until a treaty of peace be made and signed between the United States of North America and the Republic of Mexico, no Californian or Mexican citizen shall be bound to take oath of allegiance.

"Article four—That any Californian or other citizen of Mexico so desiring is permitted by this capitulation to leave this country without hindrance.

"Article five—That in virtue of the authority of these articles, equal rights and privileges are vouchsafed to every citizen of California as are enjoyed by other citizens of the United States of America.

"Article six—All officers, citizens, foreigners or others shall receive the protection guaranteed by the second article.

"Article seven—This capitulation is intended to effect such arrangements as may in the future be required by both parties."

The treaty is signed by P. B. Reading, major, California battalion Lewis McLane, jr., commanding artillery, California battalion; Jose Antonio Carrillo, commandante de escuadron, and Agustin Olvera, deputado. It is approved by J. C. Fremont, Lt. Colonel, United States Army, and military commander of California, and Andres Pico, commandante de escuadron y Jefe de las Fuerzas Nacionales en California. (Chief of National forces in California.)

The Children's Corner

"Would ye learn the road to Laughter-town,
Oh ye who have lost the way?
Would ye have young heart, though your hair be gray?
Go learn from a little child each day."

FAMILY REUNITED

The Letter we quote in this issue of The Grizzly Bear was written to the Homeless Children's committee of the Native Sons and Native Daughters. The writer was the eldest of four children, two girls and two boys. Two children were placed for adoption by an orphanage before the change in the California law made this impossible. Years ago the remaining children had been placed by the Homeless Children and the writer wanted to know her brothers and sisters, but her foster parents were unwilling while she and they were so young. The letter is dated September 20, 1943:

Dear Friends: Many things have happened since I had your letter telling me what could be done about meeting my brother John. My husband and I have met John and his family and, of course, we love John dearly, who with his family came to visit us on the 4th of July and in August, we went up to their ranch to be with him and his wife and children. During the early part of August, I had received information that I felt would eventually lead me to my other brother, Steven and one sister Anna. Steven was eighteen months of age and Anna an infant in arms when I last saw them. I was able finally to contact Steven's foster mother and she wrote me the dearest letter. I fell sure from her letter that she must be the sort of mother we all dream about. I have not met her as yet. She told me of Steven's life with them, his work, his wife and family, even sent photographs of them and of herself. She had told Stephen about his adoption when he was about ten years old but could not tell him anything about his own family as she had not been given any of the family history, or the name of the other children. She told Stephen of my inquiries and Steven called me by telephone and together we looked up John. They found that they have lived for several years in the same community and even had been patronizing the same barber. The boys were so happy to know each other and so proud!

We learned through correspondence that the foster parents of Anna who, like Steven is an only child, and while her foster parents knew there had been a brother and a sister I think that Anna did not know of her adoption. She is married to an officer in the Army Air Corps and is at present with her husband; when they return, the parents have given me to understand, they will tell Anna about her family. The parents have been very kind and understanding. I have tried to make them realize that, while I wanted more than anything to know my sister, their wishes were to be considered, that while I was happy to know Anna was alive and well cared for, I also wanted to do whatever they felt would be for their happiness and the happiness of my sister. Their letters have been wonderful, and I know that one of these days we will be together and I shall feel that my dearest dream has been realized, due in a great measure to the understanding and sympathy of wonderful folk like the Native Sons and Native Daughters. The gratitude of my brothers and me knows no bounds! We owe you so much! Gratefully yours, W. R.

New Natives

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gilgo of San Pedro are the parents of a new native daughter, Stephanie Paula. "Papa Paul" is a member of Stephen M. White Parlor, No. 263, NSGW.

November 19, 1943, a baby boy, Gregory Lynn, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Krebs. Mrs. Krebs will be remembered as Eloise Hiskey, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hiskey, members of Santa Ana Parlors NSGW and NDGW respectively.

A Native Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. George Selby. The blessed event took place November 6 at the Garfield Hospital, Monterey Park.

CHILDREN FETED

Pacific Parlor No. 10 NSGW, gave a Christmas party for children December 20 in the Native Sons building, San Francisco. The next night, December 21 they held their own annual Christmas high jinx in Sierra hall. Entertainment by talented youngsters, a Christmas tree and gifts for the little guests and refreshments featured the children's party, while a special Christmas treat of ""Tom and Jerry" enticed many members out for the high jinx.

The committee for the children's party were, Thomas G. Wyatt, Edward J. McGough, Harry Alexander, Bert D. Paolinelli and Chris Castro; J. Henry Bastein was in charge of the high jinx.

Oneonta Parlor No. 71, NDGW, Ferndale, enjoyed a real Christmas party December 10, following their regular meeting. A dinner was served at 7:30 followed by the meeting and the program which included: a vocal solo, "Birthday of the King" by Bernice Mills; Christmas readings by Verna Peers, Hattie Roberts, Grace Le Mar, Margaret Robinson, and Irma Hansen; singing of Christmas carols by all; trumpet solos by Darol Bryant and the exchange of gifts around a lighted Christmas tree. Hattie Roberts was chairman of the party.

Copa de Oro Parlor, NDGW, Hollister enjoyed a whist party December 1 with savings stamps being awarded to Nettie Hoyle, Eileen Hansen, and Hazel Gardner. Members packed twenty-one Christmas packages for hospitalized servicemen.

A WHITE CHRISTMAS

A white Christmas was enjoyed by the Clarence E. Noerenberg family (Grand President Mary) when they motored to Cedar City, Utah, to visit Air Student John. Even Goldy Locks the dog went along, but had to spend some time familiarizing herself with the scent of John's new clothes before she could make up her mind that this was her beloved junior master. The Noerenbergs were dinner guests in the barracks on Christmas day and enjoyed a splendid spread with all the trimmings. Music was furnished by a military band. The family left Los Angeles on Friday and returned Monday. The changes of climate, however, were none too beneficial and sore throats were brought home as souvenirs, along with the very pleasant memories of Christmas together with the son of the family.

The Year

January brings the snow,
Makes our feet and fingers glow.

February brings the rain,
Thaws the frozen lake again.

March brings breezes loud and shrill,
Stirs the dancing daffodil.

April brings the primrose sweet,
Scatters daisies at our feet.

May brings flocks of pretty lambs,
Skipping by their fleecy dams.

June brings tulips, lilies, roses,
Fills the children's hands with posies.

Hot July brings cooling showers,
Apricots and gillyflowers.

August brings the sheaves of corn,
Then the harvest home is borne.

Warm September brings the fruit,
Sportsmen then begin to shoot.

Fresh October brings the pheasant,
Then to gather nuts is pleasant.

Dull November brings the blast,
Then the leaves are whirling fast.

Chill December brings the sleet,
Blazing fires and Christmas treat.

— Unknown.

Babes Benefitted

The Christmas spirit prevailed at the annual Homeless Children luncheon held by Californiana Parlor, NDGW, Tuesday, December 14 in the Women's University Club, 943 S. Hoover street, Los Angeles. Ethel Fuller Smith, chairman of the parlor's Homeless children committee was in charge of arrangements and was ably assisted by the following members: Mesdames Isabella Granz, Amos Otis Evans, Belle Maguire, Dexter Monroe and Capt. Pauline Dabney. Tiny waxen angels and gleaming tapers adorned the tables.

Florence Irish, state chairman of music was chairman of the program. She spoke feelingly of "music in war" and presented the nationally known composer, pianist and reader Freda Pikey in a series of musical recitations.

Election of officers was held during the afternoon business meeting with the entire staff being retained with the exception of the marshal, Belle Maguire being elected to replace Isabel Fages in that office.

Many excellent reports were made. Three babies were adopted and secretary Ora Evans donated her five month's salary toward the USO fund. Emma Osborn, president donated the entire sum necessary for the adoption of a baby and ten dollars for the USO fund in recognition of the splendid work being accomplished by the committee chairman, Ernestine Aylward. Many past presidents attended and SDDGP Beatrice Wahrmund and DGP Ruth Jackman of Topango Parlor spoke enthusiastically of the parlor's activities. Topango Parlor were guests at the December 28 meeting when two new members were initiated. They are: Florence Minnick Kelsey and Ruth Le Vitt Hougham. A beautifully appointed tea table was arranged by hospitality chairman Isabella Granz.

Native Daughters of the Golden West

Challenge for 1944!

When we celebrate the first day of the New Year, we are following a custom that dates back to the very dawn of civilization. Nearly all peoples have observed a New Year's celebration even though the time varies. What a wonderful variety of customs we would find if we could travel around the world and peer at the new Year's customs in the various countries. Hans Christian Anderson thought of New Year's day as the birthday of the world and of each month as a traveler bringing gifts for each of us.

But these are momentous times, perhaps the most crucial in the history of civilization. Great issues are at stake. Victory and defeat are in the balance. In such a time, to what institution might we look for guidance and inspiration? Will it be a new economic system; a new form of government or a new religion?

Let us ponder! The Native Daughters of the Golden West was founded in 1886 and is now past fifty-seven years of age. The organization is no longer experimental or tentative, and the testing is in the hands of its members. Our projects are adequate for and adapted to the impelling purposes at hand. This year the parlors have been an indispensable adjunct in the spirit of co-operation and friendship. The membership has increased over 100 in new members with the prospect of several new parlors; the USO work, Red Cross, visits to the hospitals, the thousands of dollars sold in stamps and bonds, recruiting women in the United States Marine Corps; all these have been instruments toward victory.

Now at the most critical period, to be a Native Daughter implies no mere social relationship involving the privilege of recalling happy days and the romantic era of the old ranchos; rather it involves responsibilities and courage to accept the challenge of a great opportunity. What does this mean? Does it mean that you as a member are one of those willing to enjoy privileges provided by the sacrifices of others? Or does it thrill you with pride and hope that you have had a part in the projects of an organization that has the distinction of being the oldest and first patriotic women's organization in our state, united to serve mankind in a manner worthy of the Native Daughters of the Golden West?

As women of California, you are no longer concerned with the gossip over the back fence, you are concerned with global gossip, because your boy or your husband might be in Burma, Tarawa or Sicily or a prisoner of the enemy. You are trying to build a world for the boys and girls not yet born, a world of peace, security and freedom, a world of good men and women, where people can be friendly and go about without fear and hate in their hearts. You are a Native Daughter! Will you share in the gratification and pride that you have done your part in bringing "peace out of chaos"?

The gift we long for this New Year is peace! May our longing be fulfilled!

MARY B. NOERENBERG,
Grand President, NDGW.

Honoring Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg a dinner was given by East Los Angeles Parlor No. 266 in the French Cafe, Montebello, November 30, at 6:30 p.m. on the occasion of her official visit. The Pilgrim Thanksgiving motif was used on place cards and fruit was used as candle holders.

The Poppy Trail Villa was transformed into a garden of loveliness by great baskets of chrysanthemums and palms for the meeting following the dinner when an impressive candle light ceremony was enacted by an escort team gowned in Pilgrim costumes. The members of the escort team were Bernice Klotz, Mary Tassop, Frances Kanios, Judith McAllister, Betty Cordero, Eleanor Gandera, Cecelia Alvarez and Lola Jane Spears.

The twelve new members received into the parlor were: Jeanne Alvarez, Lucille Asti, Eileen Byers Clark, Castenia Cripe, Gertrude Hill, May Hunt, Florence Keeler, Mildred Leacock, Edna Price, Florence Ringgold, Josephine Robinson and Margaret Sloman.

Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg delivered a very encouraging speech and thanked the various committees for their outstanding work. Above all, let us not endure the coddling of the Japanese!"

Past Grand Presidents Grace S. Stoermer and Hazel B. Hansen, Grand Trustee Anna Schiebusch, SDDGP Eugenia Smith and DGP Margaret Burch responded to introductions.

First Vice-president Virginia Cook, presented the Grand President with a gift from the parlor, expressing their love and gratitude to "Our Mary" for her kindness and assistance.

Frances Kanios, chairman of the Homeless Children committee, reported a baby girl was being adopted by East Los Angeles Parlor. GRAND PRESIDENT'S OFFICIAL ITINERARY

San Francisco—Grand President Mary Noerenberg will, during January, officially visit the following subordinate parlors on the dates noted:

10th—Rudecinda No. 230, San Pedro.
25th—Institution of new parlor at Van Nuys.
29th—San Francisco District Meeting.

Joint Official Meeting

On the evening of December 14, Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg paid her official visit to Joaquin Parlor No. 5 and Ivy Parlor No. 88 of Lodi at Native Sons Hall in Stockton. A dinner honoring the grand president was held at Hotel Wolf. Ivy Parlor, with Verna Weesner in charge arranged the holiday decorations and favors. At the meeting the opening and closing ceremonies were exemplified by officers of Ivy Parlor and the initiatory work by the officers of Joaquin Parlor with Presidents Lulu Mae Gregg and Emma Moratti presiding. SDDGP Algie Gossett and DGP's Elizabeth Baker and Marie Vierra were honored guests. As each one was escorted to her station, a gift was presented. The Grand President also received several beautiful gifts.

Mrs. Noerenberg gave a very inspiring talk on the projects of the Order, also the part the Native Daughters are taking in war work. Other grand officers responded briefly. The young ladies of the Chinese Christian Association presented a pageant in costume, directed by Wilbur Chog.

Laura Mae Roesch, chairman of decorations arranged the hall in the Christmas theme combined with a bit of Chinese. A large lighted Christmas tree was the center of attraction.

Following the meeting refreshments were served in the club rooms. Guests were present from Ivy, Stockton, Caliz de Oro, El Pescadero, Gold of Ophir and Fort Bragg Parlors.

From the gardens of members, Topanga Parlor, NDGW, brought golden, scarlet and white chrysanthemums to fill large baskets which stood at each station when they honored Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg, December 3.

Following initiation when Elizabeth Driscoll Jensen was received into the Order, committee reports were made. A baby was adopted and it was announced that a layette was to be sent with the money for adoption. A bear flag had been presented to the San Fernando Post office and many worthy activities had been sponsored.

The grand president addressed the gathering and said in part: "When we return to the simple customs of the first Americans, America will not have to worry about juvenile delinquency. When we bring God back into our country, peace will reign".

Guests of honor included Grand Trustee Anna Schiebusch; Past Grand Presidents Grace S. Stoermer and Hazel B. Hansen; SDDGP Beatrice Wahrmund; DGP Elsie Bledsoe, all of whom had encouraging messages. Many parlors of district thirty-seven were represented.

Following the meeting, the members and guests were seated at long tables adorned with deep red 'mums; wax Santa Clauses and angels. Members had brought many delicacies to tempt the appetites of all.

Native Sons of the Golden West

Do Your Part!

"Coachella Valley Parlor, Indio, is but a fore-runner for others in the Imperial Valley. Before we are through the State of California will have parlors closer to each other than the Padres planned in locating their Missions," says Grand President Wayne R. Millington.

"The power, prestige and strength of the Order is increasing. Your parlor can and should be a factor in its community life. The combined strength of all make a powerful organization.

"One of our present and future duties is to warn against a negotiated peace with the Japs. Nothing less than unconditional surrender will answer the search for a lasting peace. It is obvious Japan wants time to utilize that which she hopes to retain by such a peace, and to raise another generation of Japs and half Japs, to carry on a conflict even greater than the present one.

"It will be difficult for our people to choose between carrying on the war with the present generation of Americans or to take what they can get now, only to pass on a more horrible war to our children, the next generation. Surely, to save the world from a more horrible race war, the very seeds of Japanese imperialism and the desire for world domination should be stamped out now.

"Santa Cruz Parlor No. 90, NSGW, has operated a wishing well for several years with marked success. Proceeds go to the Homeless Children Committee. Have you ever contemplated one in your city? It is suggested you try it. To date fifty-two parlors have contributed five dollars each to the Juvenile Welfare Committee. With fifty dollars from Attorney General Robert Kenny we now have $307.50. While the response has put us over the top, I wonder what reasons the many parlors who did not contribute have for their refusal. Make 1944 a banner year! Support the projects of your Order! Build up your membership! May every member of the Order and every parlor enjoy the fruits of a successful and prosperous New Year!"

The Reading Centennary

By Peter T. Conmy, Grand Historian, NSGW.

The years 1943 and 1944 mark the centennary of the coming to California of one of the most illustrious of her pioneers, Pierson Barton Reading. This man was the leading, if not the first, settler of the upper reaches of the Sacramento Valley. Redding, the present capital of the County of Shasta, is named after him, but the name is spelled differently and has been erroneously treated for so long that the misspelling has become a tradition which stands little if any chance of correction. It was in the year 1843 that the father of the northern valley entered California and in 1844 that he settled down to life therein. The Historical Society of Shasta county has observed this during the past year as the Reading centennary and, therefore, it may not be amiss to present the salient facts of his life here.

The party with which Reading came to California namely the Chiles-Walker Party, was one of the first organized overland expeditions into the far west. Reading was born in New Jersey, November 26, 1816, and was just a little past twenty-six years of age when on May 19, 1843, he set out with the Chiles-Walker group for California. In this same party was that distinguished leader of the frontier, Peter H. Burnett, who was destined six years later to become the first civil governor of California. Burnett, however, did not enter California at this time, but joined a subdivision which went on into Oregon. Twelve men California-bound of which Reading was one, safely arrived at Sutter's Fort on November 10, 1943. He went at once into the service of General Sutter, becoming his bookkeeper. From Sutter and Sutter's associate John Bidwell, Reading learned much about the new country in which he had taken up his residence. After a year's residence he accepted Mexican citizenship and shortly thereafter received from Governor Micheltorena a grant of 26,633 acres in the upper portions of the Sacramento Valley to which the name Buena Ventura was given. Following the conquest of California by the United States and the examination of all land grant claims by the United States Land Commission and the courts, Reading's grant was found to be in perfect order and was confirmed to him.

Reading seems not to have settled on his properties at first, however. During 1845 he continued on with Sutter and was away for a number of months with trappers. In 1846 he was active in exhorting the American settlers to revolt against Mexican misrule and did partake in the Bear Flag revolt. Shortly after the Bear Flag was raised it became apparent that war between the United States and Mexico had broken out. American men in California sought to enlist under the Stars and Stripes so that they might help their native country. For this reason John C. Fremont organized the California regiment of volunteers and Reading was one of the first to enroll. As he had had financial experience he was commissioned a major on the staff and served as paymaster. Following the close of the war he moved to his rancho which up to this time had been managed by a foreman. One of his first acts was to build an adobe house which still stands as one of Northern California's honored landmarks on the west bank of the Sacramento river just south of Ball's Ferry near old Cottonwood creek.

In the early weeks of 1848 Reading visited his old friend, General Sutter at the fort and learned of the discovery of gold. Greatly impressed with what he was told he expressed the opinion that there must also be deposits of the precious metal in the several creeks which ran through his extensive northern holdings. Returning home he at once began to scrape the beds of the several streams near his home and in March 1848 discovered gold in Clear creek. This spot became known as Reading's Bar. As the summer approached he determined to study the possibilities of gold deposits in the rivers of the mountains north and west of his adobe. In July his efforts were rewarded by the discovery of gold on the Trinity river.

The early part of 1849 found Reading in partnership with his old friends, Hensley and Snyder, operating a store in Sacramento. In the fall of the year, however, he again treked into the north country for the purpose of exploring the Trinity river. A year before he had come to the conclusion that the Trinity must empty into the Pacific at Humboldt bay. His exploration proved him to be both right and in error. The Trinity, he found, moves into the Klamath which in turn flows to Humboldt bay. In this expedition Reading and his companions were in great danger. The small craft on which they were cruising down the Klamath was swept into the Pacific and blown up the coast almost as far as Vancouver's Island. Fortunately they made a safe return.

Just prior to his following the Trinity and Klamath rivers to the ocean as described above, Reading in July 1849 discovered gold in what later became known as Shasta but took the immediate appellation of Reading's springs. Following the news of the gold find here it was not long before the place had a sizeable population. When Shasta County was created by the legislature on February 18, 1850, Reading's ranch was named the county seat and for a year his adobe served as the court house. In 1851, however, the seat of government was moved to Shasta, the center of population. May 19, 1888, Shasta having become depopulated, it was removed to Reading's ranch. Unfortunately a younger generation had confused Pierson Barton Reading, father of the area with Benjamin B. Redding, another distinguished citizen of early California. Benjamin B. Redding was land agent for the Central Pacific railroad. He represented Sierra and Yuba counties as assemblyman in the fourth legislative session. He was state printer, mayor of Sacramento, secretary of state and held other important positions. He died in San Francisco in 1882 and his land work with the railroad gave the impression that he had opened up the northern part of the Sacramento Valley. This explains why the city named after Pierson B. Reading is spelled Redding.

In 1850 Pierson Reading went to Washington, D. C. to settle his accounts as paymaster. He also stopped at Vicksburg and paid $60,000 which he owed on investments lost in the crisis of 1837—debts which he possibly could never have been compelled to pay but which his own sense of honesty dictated should be paid. In 1851 he was candidate for governor of California on the Whig Party ticket but was defeated. In 1852 President Fillmore appointed him land agent. About this time he again went east to marry and returning with his bride spent his remaining years on the Rancho Buena Ventura. He died there on May 29, 1866. Concerning his passing my grandfather, then the owner of the Shasta Courier, wrote:

"The many friends of Major P. B. Reading, the Shasta county pioneer, will regret to learn that he is no more. He died at his residence on the Buena Ventura Rancho yesterday. The Major was a generous hearted man and a courteous and polished gentleman, and his death will be mourned with sincere regret by all who knew him. The funeral will take place at Buena Ventura Rancho at 2 o'clock p.m. on Sunday."

A full century has now run its course since Pierson Barton Reading, the father of the northernmost part of the Sacramento valley made his entrance to California. Time has brought many changes and confusion has brought about the misspelling of the name of the City of Redding, but notwithstanding all this, a grateful people of the dear old county of Shasta recall with tender memories and sympathetic appreciation, the centennary of the pioneer settler of their section of California, that sturdy son of New Jersey, Pierson Barton Reading.

ANCIENT SAN GABRIEL

"Through a fossil unearthed by miners in the city's outfall sewer", says the San Francisco Chronicle, "a hundred feet under the Inglewood hills, half way between the town and sea, the San Gabriel valley is apparently proven to be as old as the Garden of Eden and shown to be one of the cradles of the animal kingdom . . . and the fact established that the San Gabriel valley has been part of the mainland since the beginning of time. England now ceases to be the mother country and Germany the fatherland to us, for these finds show that California was hoary with age when the British Isles and the German Empire emerged from the North Sea."—Grizzly Bear, December, 1907.

FORT GUNNYBAGS

"The huge bronze plate that was put up a few years ago on the two-story building, on Sacramento street, between Davis and Front, San Francisco, known as Fort Gunnybags, was found in a pile of debris near the seawall a day or two ago by Wharfinger Mautian and turned over to the Harbor Commissioners. It is intrinsically valuable, but had been carted away from the ruins of the old building along with other material, and dumped on the water front. It is in good order and will be held to the order of the society that had it placed on old Fort Gunnybags, where it commemorated the spot that was the headquarters of the Vigilance Committee in 1856."

Accusation Answered

By WALTER ODEMAR, Chairman, Grand Parlor Committee on Japanese Legislation, NSGW.

The War Relocation Authority, the branch of the government directly responsible for the riots at Tule Lake, when confronted by the inevitable fruits of its own maladministration of the war relocation centers, has now attempted to throw the blame for its mistakes upon the very organizations who have called the public's attention to those mistakes.

When R. B. Cozzens, an assistant director of the WRA, stated that the interruption of negotiations for the return of American soldiers and civilians now in the hands of the Japanese was "caused by the malicious campaign which has been carried on by agitators of race hatred including public as well as private organizations and individuals" he illustrated his complete lack of understanding of the motives of the organizations to which he referred and distorted the facts.

The Japanese government is having Tule Lake investigated because of the administration of Tule Lake by the WRA and not because of any other group or organization. We were not there but the WRA was in sole and complete charge until they had to call in the army to protect themselves.

We feel that if the United States army had been in control of the camps it would not have been necessary for any foreign government to make any investigation.

We know that any fair and unbiased investigation of our war relocation centers and of our war prison camps will show that our charges are being cared for in adequate and human fashion and in better circumstances than is required by any treaty or provision of international law, and none of us would have it otherwise.

If we could only feel that the Americans in the Japanese camps were receiving anything like the humane treatment we show our prisoners, many of us would be elated, but when we read of the appalling American death rate in Japanese camps admitted by Japan through the offices of the International Red Cross, and when we read the statements made by those recently returned from Japanese camps on the Gripsholm we say that any cessation of the exchange of prisoners by Japan is just another attempt to pull the wool over the eyes of the American public.

The Japanese are the ones who have always cried "race hatred" every time the facts became too clear to be clouded by irrelevant statements. Let us not fall in with the very plans made by the Japanese by calling each other names, but let us examine the facts and then act for the welfare of our people at home as well as for those in the Japanese prison camps. Let's let the United States Army take charge of all relocation centers. The internees therein will be humanely treated and Japan will have no legitimate excuse to refuse to continue the exchange of prisoners.

Senators Ernest W. McFarland of Arizona and Thomas Stewart of Tennessee have recently introduced a bill in the Senate seeking to expatriate the American born Japanese who refuse to swear allegiance to the United States. It is to be hoped that Congress will overwhelmingly pass this essential bill, for we have no place in the United States for persons who will not swear allegiance to it whether they were born here or not. It is recommended that all parlors of the Native Sons and Native Daughters pass resolutions endorsing such legislation.

The organization spoken of by Mr. Cozzens deeply regret any delay in the exchange of prisoners. In that regard it should be remembered that at the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West in San Francisco in May, 1943, the delegates unanimously passed a resolution advocating the exchange of Japanese, whether foreign or native born, for Americans in Japanese prison camps.

BILL OF RIGHTS

The following resolution presented by Grand Trustee Webster K. Nolan was unanimously adopted by Stanford Parlor, NSGW December 14, 1943:

Whereas, It is fitting that the Native Sons of the Golden West should join in the nationwide observance of the 152nd anniversary of the Bill of Rights, which charter of liberty became the law of our land on December 15, 1791, and

Whereas, Said Bill of Rights guarantees us the many freedoms that make American citizenship a priceless heritage, the occasion assumes particular significance now when the dangers of a totalitarian system "would wrap itself in the American Flag, and under its folds seek to set class against class . . ." be it therefore

Resolved, By Stanford Parlor No. 76, NSGW, that to guard our rights is human, to share them is sublime, but the Japanese are inhuman and therefore should not share in these American privileges to the extent that their treacherous way of life might subvert the American way.

Grand President Millington has enlisted the aid of John M. Johnston of Mother Colony Parlor No. 281, as Chairman of a committee for the securing, correlating and reporting, upon the state of the Order. A questionnaire will be forwarded to officers and members of the parlors for that purpose and a report will be made to the next Grand Parlor covering the findings of the committee, together with suggestions arising from information obtained.

The Mill Where Gold Was Found

CALIFORNIA became American January 13, 1847. It was a new year, the beginning of a new era in her colorful history. January 24, 1848, James Marshall discovered gold in the tail-race of a saw-mill he was building for John Sutter at Coloma on the American river and although gold had been discovered before in California, it was this momentous find that precipitated the gold rush upon the territory.

Gold had never meant much to the Spanish-Californians. The hides and tallows furnished by the large herds of cattle they owned provided their medium of exchange and gold made pretty jewelry for their ladies to wear. But Americans knew the real trade value of gold and thus shouted the discoverey to the entire world. The remainder of the story is well known to Native Sons and Native Daughters. Close upon the heels of the discovery, came statehood and California ranks among the greatest of all the states in agriculture, manufacturing, mining and transportation. Her homes, her schools, her churches, her government and her cultures—all have progressed to a high plane since those Januaries when history was made. California became American and the gold rush brought men and women from all over the world and from all walks of life to help build this great state! California gold saved the nation during the Civil war and we dare say has provided the means for combatting many a financial crisis. In January remember James Marshall, the man whose discovery caused one of the greatest migrations in the history of the world and brought to California its brilliant career as the "golden state".

The following story is an extract from "The Life and Times of General John A. Sutter" by T. J. Schoonover, published in Sacramento by D. Johnston and Company in 1895, and is "respectfully dedicated to the Society of the Native Sons of the Golden West".

"The arrival of Mormons extended the settlement (Sutter's Fort) and increased the demands for building material and for women. With a view to supplying the former article, Sutter sent out an exploring party with instruction to search for good timber, good water power, and good location with accessibility as the determining factor.

"James W. Marshall, of whom this work furnishes a brief biography was selected as the man best calculated to perform the task. He was at the time, in the maturity of his strength, being about thirty-five years old, and was active, strong, and energetic, and a good judge of timber. Accordingly, some time in May, 1847, he was dispatched with one of Sutter's most intelligent and trustworthy Indians as interpreter and guide, up the south fork of the American river to select a mill-site.

"Precipitous hills, overhanging cliffs and deep canons, along which a mountain stream dashes its winding way, have suitable locations for a sawmill, almost as far between as angel's visits.

"In due time Marshall reported favorably, stating that he had found a desirable location for a mill at a place called Coloma and about forty miles east of the fort. The water power, he said, was fine, the timber abundant and of excellent quality, and the plant could be easily reached by a system of natural ridges extending along the foot-hills in nearly a direct line from the fort."

After some delay, a contract was finally drawn up by General John Bidwell in August and Marshall thereby, was authorized to build the mill and receive one-fourth of the lumber as compensation for his services. Sutter was to furnish the building material and supplies and board and pay for the laborers.

"Marshall so far completed the mill as to cut some lumber in January, 1848. By experimenting it was found that the tail-race was insufficient to convey the water from the wheel. To remove this difficulty, the water was turned into the race from the river each night for the purpose of deepening its bed and cutting away its margin.

"One morning, about the twenty-fourth of January (established date of discovery) while examining the race, which was now empty, to ascertain what service the water had rendered him through the night, he saw some yellow grains sticking in the crevices of the rocks in the bed of the stream which on examination, he found to be some kind of metal, and it occurred to him that it might be gold.

"Late that night, in a heavy rain, he arrived at the fort, forty miles away, wet, bespattered with mud, and appearing very strangely. Sutter's surprise at his arrival on such a dark and stormy night at so late an hour was increased when Marshall said he wished to see him alone. They repaired to a private room. Sutter did not know what to think of the singular behavior of Marshall, who now asked to have the door locked.

"In after years, in relating this circumstance, Sutter said he kept one eye on his loaded rifle. Thinking it inexpedient to lock himself in a room alone with Marshall, he remained inert for awhile. On becoming convinced that they would not be disturbed, Marshall drew a pouch from his pocket and emptied about an ounce of the precious grains upon the table. The pieces of yellow metal, thus exhibited by Marshall, varied in size, of which a large grain of wheat would be an average."

After questioning Marshall, Sutter prepared a test of nitric acid and found the metal to be pure gold. Marshall returned to Coloma that very night, but Sutter followed the next day. He was not elated over the discovery for he realized that the fortune expended on his saw-mill would be lost should the gold fever assail his workers and thus asked that the discovery be kept a secret for six weeks, during which time the business of the moment might be completed. The secret finally leaked out in this way.

"A drunken teamster, in possession of the secret . . . was sent by Sutter to the mill with supplies. . . . In some way, he managed to procure a small quantity of the 'dust'. On returning to the fort, he repaired to a neighboring store kept by a Mormon and called for a bottle of whisky. Tanglefoot being scarce and expensive and the teamster poor pay, the merchant refused to let him have it without the cash. The teamster assured him he had plenty of money, exhibiting at the same time a quantity of gold dust. . . . The Mormon, knowing the character of the metal was astonished. He let the customer have the bottle of whisky and asked where he got the gold. He refused to tell until he had imbibed quite freely of the liquor, when he told all about the discovery at the mill.

"The exciting tale spread like a scandal in high life, running up and down the coast like a tidal wave. Nor was the news long confined to the sparsely inhabited territory of California. It crossed the continent, traversed the seas, and in a few months found its way into every fireside circle all over the civilized world."

GRATEFUL SMILES

The grateful smiles of 250 veterans of two wars were the reward of members of inter-parlor, Native Sons and Native Daughters of Los Angeles county for their efforts in giving men without families of Sawtelle Veterans' hospital a Christmas party replete with entertainment and gifts, the afternoon of Sunday, December 19. Margaret Phelan, chairman of inter-parlor was in charge of all arrangements and introduced PGP Eldred Meyer of the Native Sons and Grand Trustee Anna Schiebusch representing Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg of the Native Daughters who addressed the veterans.

Grand Organist Roger Johnson provided piano music throughout the program and accompanied Alfonso Fages in several lively songs and little Donna Rae and Buddy Ware Beattie whose clever dancing was thoroughly enjoyed. Christmas carols were sung by Frankie Walton and the entire audience which included members from many parlors in spite of the rain which did not dampen the spirit of hosts nor guests.

A dollar bill enclosed in an envelope with a handkerchief and card; cigarettes and matches, apples, oranges and a bag of assorted candies and gum were presented each veteran as his name was called. Gifts generously prepared by many of the parlors were distributed about the hospital to patients who were not able to attend the party.

INSTITUTION DATE SET

The new San Fernando Valley parlor which has held several pre-institutional meetings held its final one December 30 in Eagles' Hall, Van Nuys and formulated plans for their institution January 25, when Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg will conduct the ceremonies, assisted by Grand Trustee Anna Schiebusch, Past Grand Presidents Grace S. Stoermer and Hazel B. Hansen, SDDGP Beatrice Wahrmund and many others who plan to attend. Organizer Lura Pesqueria announces the goal of seventy-five charter members has been nearly reached. The parlor will be instituted in the American Legion Hall, Van Nuys and will meet the second and fourth Tuesday evenings.

Following the dinner, a brief business meeting was held with the president, Helen Garrison, presiding. Plans were made for New Year's activities. After the session, the choral group, under the direction of Tessie Socker, presented a group of Christmas carols. Clara Barton dressed in old fashioned nightgown, night cap and slippers and carrying a candlestick which came around the Horn, read a parody on Moore's "Twas the Night Before Christmas," using the officers' names in place of the reindeers.' California Books

THE GOLDEN SHORE

By George Armin Shaftel; published by Coward-McCann, Inc., New York. Price $2.75.

The Golden Shore is an historical novel that compels interest, but creates fear in the minds of students of California history, lest liberties taken with historical fact become tradition. In the story, a woman approaches Fremont and is directly responsible for the signing of the Treaty of Cahuenga, and although we know the true circumstances of the case, many who are uninformed will become misinformed.

The plot holds tremendous interest and the author displays a wide knowledge of California history; characteristics of all nationalities and types of settlers and pioneers. He criticizes where criticism is due and extolls where praise is deserved, regardless of repercussions from admirers of prominent figures which may be forthcoming. Descriptions are vivid, some being as horrifying as others are enthralling. Deeds of heroes and heroines, Spanish and Americans, Russians, Indians and English are made absorbing reading and this reviewer recommends that Native Sons and Native Daughters read the volume with an open mind, dispelling all prejudices. Hold your temper through one chapter and you will enjoy the next, since your idol will probably be re-elevated to his pedestal there and he whom you least admire will be condemned severely.

LINCOLN AND CALIFORNIA

SEABEES OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC

We're just sitting around and thinking about the things we left behind,
And we'd like to put in writing what is running through our mind.
We have sailed the sea for weeks on end, watching for a sub;
Landed on an island 'mid the coconuts and mud.
We've walked a million weary miles and slept out in the rain,
And been chewed by bugs and skeeters coming in an endless chain.
We have dug a thousand ditches and cleared ten miles of land,
Where jungle vines and lizards challenge every man.
We have stood our watch at midnight in the jungle green and high,
And heard the drone of motors as the Jap goes sneaking by.
We've heard the whistle of a bomb
speeding on its way,
But since their aim is not so good, we think we're here to stay.
Now, men! We're not complaining. Just give us a little time,
And we'll run them back to Tokyo and kill the yellow swine!
And when our work on earth is finished and the Reaper rings the bell, We'll be heading way up yonder, for we've done our stretch in Hell.

STEVENSON'S REGIMENT

GUY J. GIFFEN.

JANUARY 1, 1800, New York's population was increased by one at the advent of Jonathan Drake Stevenson into the world. There was nothing unusual in Jonathan's birth, and he was not born to be president, although he was destined to become a national character, with international complications.

Stevenson, on reaching his majority, took an active part in politics in his native state, holding several offices, including that of Colonel of the New York Militia. The "Colonel," in addition to some political obligations, made him the choice of President Polk and Secretary of War Marcy when they decided that that section of the North American Continent west of the Rocky Mountains, sandwiched in between Canada and of the American flag.

Propaganda had been freely distributed in printed form by the Government, extolling the Gila River, and generally referred to as California, should be added to the starry firmament advantages to be found in California by settlers on this Mexican sod; there was land to be had for the asking; there was unlimited water for irrigation; and, best of all, a climate excelled by none the world over. That these blandishments were successful is evidenced by the fact that the westward trek was well under way by the year 1845. One of these emigrant trains was that of the famous Donner Party, whose tragic fate shook the West. Added to the peaceloving settlers, who were unwittingly being used as the pawns in a larger game, were the armed engineers of Colonel John Charles Fremont, who listed among their instruments "one brass cannon"; and whose mission was, and still is, a matter of question, it being the more or less popular belief that Fremont was sent west to create a cause for the United States to declare war on Mexico.

The course of events moved faster than the heads of the Government in Washington had anticipated, however; and when Mexican soldiers fired on an armed body of United States Infantry, trespassing on foreign soil, it was as good an excuse as any for the opening of hostilities; and on May 13, 1846, President Polk proclaimed that "By the act of the Republic of Mexico a state of war exists between that government and the United States."

It also served as an excuse for the President to send a large number of trained farmers, mechanics and tradesmen to California, that much-coveted land, where they might be used as substantial material for colonization. In a letter from Secretary of War Marcy to Colonel Jonathan Drake Stevenson, dated June 26, 1846, the Colonel was informed that if he would organize a regiment of volunteers in the State of New York, consisting of young, single men of good character and trained in the various trades, it would be accepted. Their enlistment was to be for the duration of the war, and with the definite understanding that they were to accept their discharge on any distant soil then or about to become a part of the United States, without any claim for return transportation.

Stevenson immedately set about organizing the Seventh Regiment of New York Volunteers (which later became the First), under the laws of New York, and in the doing showed his very evident lack of sound judgment: first, by not providing sufficient medical examiners; and, second, by selecting the officers himself, instead of allowing each company to elect its own, as provided for by law in National Guard regiments. The lack of medical examiners caused much delay in the final acceptance of the men who were found otherwise desirable, causing a number of them to become impatient at the delay and leave the ranks in disgust (they were not deserters, since they had not yet been sworn in). Open mutiny occurred over the dissatisfaction in the selection of officers, and another source of trouble was the fact that the organization contained five or six West Point graduates under the command of a National Guard Colonel.

As the plans for the regiment were being completed, the Republicans very inopportunely opened a fight on the floor of Congress, opposing Stevenson as the leader of the expedition, on the grounds that he came from the slums and was, therefore, naturally unfitted for such a position of responsibility; declaring also that the regiment should be organized under, and by, the regular army; and finally, that there was no reason or excuse for such a unit, except for the purpose of taking land from a weaker country. The fight was both bitter and personal, and, while the Republican opposition undoubtedly had ample grounds for their vituperations, we can thank the Democrats for the fact that we of the West live under the American flag today. There was, of course, justice on both sides; but the major part of the battle was waged strictly on the political front of party formation. Congress has not changed much either, from that time.

Finally the feud wore itself out, except for the hostility to its organizer, Colonel Stevenson, whom the opposition wished to prevent from sailing with the regiment, a Captain Naglee being their choice to take command. To secure this end they caused civil charges to be preferred against Stevenson, who was haled into court and forbidden to leave its jurisdiction until his trial, which was indefinitely postponed. Another warrant for his arrest was given to the sheriff, who had instructions to serve it the day before the regiment was due to sail—a date which had been kept secret by Stevenson. Being informed of the plot brewing against him, the Colonel sent word to the sheriff that it was his hope to leave New York peacefully, but that he would sail, when ready. To insure this, he always kept an armed guard of his volunteers as an escort; and also informed both the President and Secretary of War of his actions, and received the following reply: "God bless you and speed you safely on your way."

August 26, 1846, three sailing vessels—the Thomas Perkins, the Loo Choo and the Susan Drew—departed from New York harbor convoyed by the U.S.S. Preble. Instructions issued by Stevenson were that the four boats should meet at Rio de Janeiro instead of endeavoring to keep within hailing distance during the voyage. This order has been criticized by members of his staff, for when mutiny broke out among the half-trained men, the Preble could not be reached to render aid. In fact, the Preble was not sighted by either the Loo Choo or Susan Drew from the time they left New York until they reached Rio, and is not again mentioned in the memoirs of members of the regiment.

The negotiating of Cape Horn was devoid of incident, and the vessels reached Valparaiso, Chile, January 19, 1847, where the Loo Choo was nearly wrecked on the rocks, her rescue being effected by a French steamer. In March of 1847 the three boats (without mention of the Preble) anchored off Yerba Buena, and found the "comic opera" war they were sent to fight was definitely over.

Upon its arrival in California the Regiment of New York Volunteers was scattered from Sonoma to La Paz, Mexico, at which latter point three companies saw what might be termed "action." The remaining members of the Volunteers who stayed in California put in their time doing police duty, making adobe bricks to repair buildings, and any other small chores that would keep these half-baked soldiers out of trouble. One enterprising merchant opened a shoe store in Los Angeles while he served with the Regiment, and Company C started a theater in Sonoma.

Orders were received in August, 1848, to disband the Regiment, and were executed without fulfilling the promises made by the Government to those who enlisted. Colonel Stevenson, who was loyal to his men, made a strong appeal to his superiors to allow the soldiers food, guns and so forth, in order to be able to begin their new lives with some equipment. but this request was ignored.

Stevenson himself located in San Francisco, where he practiced law along with other commercial and real estate activities. He married in 1851, and later founded New York of the Pacific, the city which he believed was destined to become the metropolis of the West. It is now known as Pittsburgh, (Contra Costa County). . . . Stevenson also served as United States Shipping Commissioner at San Francisco, and took an active interest in all civic affairs. When the Grand Lodge of Masons was organized in California in 1851, he was elected its first Grand Master. Colonel Stevenson was called to his reward February 19, 1894.

California

By Frank G. Tyrrell.

Where mountains lift their silent prayer,
And fertile valleys lie,
Where flowers breathe a perfumed air,
Beneath a starry sky,
Where flashing waters laugh and sing,
And fruitful gardens bloom,
Where Joy and Health their tribute bring,
There's California—home!

Her blushing morn and brilliant noon,
Her soft and dewy eve,
Make every hour a blessed boon,
And tired hearts relieve;
But when her glorious night appears,
And Heaven's lamps swing out,
Earth's noise no more assails our ears;
We hear God's angels shout.

The crescent moon her passage cleaves
Across the upper deep;
The breath of wings stirs whispering leaves;
The stars their vigils keep.
On terraced heights and sunny plains
All joys find quick rebirth;
Let come what may, there still remains
This paradise on earth.

And why not, in a land so fair,
Grow people, brave and free?
Erect, sincere, and fit to wear
The crown of sovereignty ?
Surpassing beauty may we know,
Reflected in our lives.
With body, mind and heart aglow,
The kingly spirit thrives.

January 31, 1851—The first orphan asylum in California was founded by protestant churches of San Francisco and was known as the San Francisco Orphan Asylum.

Time flies! Don't forget the Homeless Children! This is the time to contribute for the fiscal year!

CHRISTMAS PARTIES

The hall in the Native Daughters' home was gaily decorated with a Christmas tree and gift boxes when Buena Vista Parlor No. 68, NDGW, entertained about forty service boys December 16. A group of pretty girls in Hawaiian costumes presented graceful Hawaiian dances. Dancing, songs and games were enjoyed. The servicemen from thirty-two states received gift boxes. Light refreshments were served. Margaret Barrell was chairman of the party. December 20 a Christmas Party for members was held in the lounge of the home when residents were guests. A program, exchange of gifts, cards and refreshments were planned for the evening with Gertrude Bury, chairman.

Sebastopol Parlor No. 265, NDGW, held their annual bazaar December 10. Fancy work, potted plants, a country store and cooked food tables realized a fine sum for the treasury. The sale of Christmas cards was the largest ever. A public chicken dinner was served at noon and a Homeless Children card party was held in the evening. Anice Barger was chairman of Christmas cards; Gladys Simon, chairman for the dinner and card party; Georgia Truggs, chairman for fancy work; Pearl Thomas, chairman for potted plants; Hazel Baker, chairman for country store and Irene Nahems chairman for cooked foods.

A letter was received from PGP Stella Finkeldey of Santa Cruz Parlor, during whose term the parlor was instituted. She complimented the parlor on its rapid growth during this year which will have seen a one hundred per cent membership gain with the initiation of fourteen waiting candidates.

PGP Bertha Briggs, of Copa de Ora Parlor, was the guest speaker. She also commended the parlor on its growth under the presidency of Elmarie Hurlbert Dyke. During the past few months the parlor has participated in historical tours, sponsored an all soldier show for the amphibian engineers at Ford Ord; a card party for the Homeless Children, several initiations and numerous war activities.

Postmaster P. J. Dougherty extended congratulations and greetings from Monterey Parlor No. 75, NSGW, and praised the beautiful Christmas decorations, which carried out the colors of the Order. He stressed the necessity for continuing a strong stand against the return of Japanese to this community.

State Emblems

The State Flag

The flag which was first hoisted by early California settlers as a signal of independence, on June 14, 1846, was taken down on July 9, 1846, and the Flag of the United States of America was raised in its place. On February 3, 1911, by action of the California State Legislature, the Bear Flag was selected as the State Flag of California and consists of a flag of a length equal to one and one-half the width thereof; the upper five-sixths of the width thereof is a white field, and the lower sixth of the width thereof is a red stripe; there appears, in the white field in the upper left-hand corner a single red star, and at the bottom of the white field the words "California Republic," and in the center of the white field a California grizzly bear upon a grass plat, in the position of walking towards the left of the field; the bear is a dark brown in color, and in length equal to one-third of the length of the flag. The original Flag hoisted at Sonoma in 1846 was made of white cotton cloth with the stripe made of red cloth sewed on, and the figures and wording of the flag, were stained with lampblack and berry juice.

The Golden Poppy

CALIFORNIA'S state flower, the golden poppy was chosen officially as California's State flower by action of the California Legislature in 1903. Growing, as it does, throughout the length and breadth of the state, and hardly elsewhere, it is typical of California as its color aptly portrays the incomparable sunshine and climate of the state. It blooms in great profusion from February until May, and can be found in the lower valleys almost any day in the year. In the height of its season, when this matchless flower raises itself above the feathery green foliage of the plant, which is tipped with a deep, bronze red, it covers acres upon acres of the plains and mesas of California. It shuns the woodland, and unsheltered, revels in the warm sunlight. Most flowers are connected with legends or have their distinctive place in folk lore, and many efforts have been made to weave around this flower Indian traditions and legends, few of which bear the imprint of authenticity. Referred to throughout early California history by the varied names of Golden Poppy, Escholtzia, Flame Flower, La Amapola and Copa de Oro, it is now known universally as the California Poppy.

State Seal

THE GREAT SEAL of the State of California was designed by Major Robert Seldon Garnett and presented to the constitutional convention by Caleb Lyon on September 29, 1849, and finally approved October 2, 1849. The following description of the seal was written into the journal.

"Around the bend of the ring are represented thirty-one stars, being the number of states of which the union will consist upon the admission of California. The foreground figure represents the Goddess Minerva having sprung full grown from the brain of Jupiter. She is introduced as a type of political birth of the State of California without having gone through the probation of a territory. At her knees stands a grizzly bear, feeding upon the clusters from a grapevine, emblematic of the country's peculiar characteristics. The sheaf of wheat and bunch of grapes were adopted as emblems of the agricultural and horticultural interests of the State. A miner is engaged, with his rocker and bowl at his side, illustrating the golden wealth of the Sacramento, upon whose waters is seen shipping typical of commercial greatness; and the snow-clad peaks of the Sierra Nevada make up the background, while above is the Greek motto, "Eureka" (I have found it), applying either to the principle involved in the admission of the State, or the success of the miner."

—Glenn M. Anderson.

FIRST GRAND PRESIDENT

By Peter T. Conmy, Grand Historian, NSGW.

WILLIAM GRAHAM HAWKETT
First Grand President NSGW

Older members of the Native Sons of the Golden West often mention those who have served as grand presidents of the Order. Many of the earlier grand presidents have long since passed into eternity. Notwithstanding this their names are frequently pronounced in grand parlor sessions and other meetings. Some of these past grand presidents whose names the present writer has heard recalled in pleasant memory are Frank J. Higgins, 1880-81; Charles H. Garoutte, 1887-88; William H. Miller, 1890-91; J. D. Sproul, 1893-94; Frank D. Ryan, 1889-90 and Henry Clay Chipman, 1881-82. In all of his experiences in the Order the writer has been surprised indeed not to have heard any one mention the name of William G. Hawkett which stands first in the list of grand presidents, for he was elected at the first session of the grand parlor in 1878. Following the election of Richard F. McCarthy of Piedmont Parlor No. 120 of Oakland as grand third vice-president in 1942 which assures his succession to the grand presidency in 1945, it was stated by the leading members of the Order in his own county that in him Alameda county would have its sixth grand president, the earlier ones in order of seniority being, Robert M. Fitzgerald, 1893-94; Joseph R. Knowland, 1909-10; Harry G. Williams, 1922-23; William J. Hayes, 1923-24, and Edward T. Schnarr, 1941-42.

It seemed strange that the older men of the Alameda county parlors should fail to mention the name of William G. Hawkett, the first grand president, and the writer therefore, determined to ascertain why. Had he forsaken the Order which had thus signally honored him by voting him its first common leader? Had he passed into oblivion because of lack of appreciation or loss of records? These were some of the interrogations which passed through the mind of the writer when he began to unravel the facts concerning the life of William G. Hawkett of Oakland, first grand president of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

At the outset it should be stated that there was nothing reprehensible in the life of William G. Hawkett. He came from an honorable people, led a good life, and passed into eternity mourned by a devoted wife, four daughters and many friends. He was born in Placer county on March 23, 1856. His family gave the town of Forest Hill as his birthplace, but the membership roll of Athens Parlor No. 195, in his own handwriting indicates that he was born at Todd's Valley, a few miles away from Forest Hill. This is further corroborated in an article concerning him published in a volume entitled, "The Bay of San Francisco, the Metropolis of the Pacific Coast," a history written in 1892. The first nine years of his life were spent in the mining country of his native county and thus he made himself a part of the spirit of the rugged frontier on which he lived. In 1865 the family moved to Oakland where he continued to reside until his death. Educated at first in the district schools of Placer county he continued in the public schools of Oakland and attended the famous Brayton Academy, founded by that pioneer educator of California, Isaac H. Brayton.

At the age of fourteen Hawkett began his public service as a page in the California legislature, serving throughout two sessions and learning much about politics in a first hand way. From this position he went on to Gold Hill, Nevada, where he spent two years as a clerk in a quartz mill. He returned to Oakland at the age of nineteen and having had considerable experience in the world felt the need of continuing his education and graduated from the old Oakland High school which was located at Twelfth and Market streets of that city.

In 1876 he established W. G. Hawkett and Company, a grocery in West Oakland, which he successfully operated for eight months, selling out to H. M. Collins. In 1878 he was appointed a deputy county corder and served as such for almost six years. In 1881 he began his service as a deputy city assessor continuing until 1889. In that year he and Robert Leckie, who had been recorder of Alameda county formed the partnership of Leckie and Hawkett, Searchers of Records, located on Ninth street between Broadway and Washington, which firm was the nucleus of the larger organization into which it merged, the present Oakland Title Insurance and Guaranty Company.

From the firm of Leckie and Hawkett the subject of this sketch drifted into the internal revenue service and at the time of his death was serving in the San Francisco office as a deputy collector. As Hawkett's career was a political one, except for the years of his partnership with Leckie, it should be stated that he was an ardent Republican. As civil service regulations did not apply to the internal revenue department it is safe to assume that he began his appointment in that office in 1897 or shortly thereafter under the McKinley administration.

William Graham Hawkett was born of pioneer parents; a man and woman who typified the people who came to California in the early days. His father, Arthur Wellington Hawkett, came to California in 1852. He was born in New York State in 1826 and in his early years had been a sail maker and later a brick mason. Arrived in California, he followed the pursuit of a miner, and the old Oakland directories list him as such long after the family had moved to that city, indicating that he continued his activities in the mines on a part time basis at least. He did engage in construction work in Oakland, however. Arthur W. Hawkett constructed the first macadamized street in Oakland. He built the Wilcox block, the first two story building in Oakland, and later the Broadway and Berkeley blocks,. In his later years his mining interests were limited to quicksilver and cinnabar deposits. William Hawkett's mother bore the maiden name of Margaret Bromley Towner and was born in Canada in 1830. She joined her husband in California in 1853.

It was while he was a deputy county recorder, on October 8, 1879, that William Graham Hawkett married Emma F. Webb in Oakland. She also came of pioneer stock. Although raised in Oakland, she was born in Rancho Plana, Amador county. Four daughters blessed Hawkett's marriage. They were May Isabel, Frank Ethelyn, Marguerite Helen, and Virginia Gladys. The first and last named were drowned on July 15, 1912, but the two others survive and still reside in Oakland.

Old Oakland Parlor No. 2 was instituted on December 17, 1877. The records of the old parlor have been lost and all information in the grand secretary's office in San Francisco was burned in 1906. It is not possible, therefore, to determine just when Hawkett poined the parlor, or whether or not he was a charter member. A reference to the old Oakland directories shows the officers of the parlor for some terms but not for others. He is not listed in those directories mentioning the parlor, but may have served during the alternate years. In 1878 he was elected along with five others to represent his parlor at the first grand parlor, and was elected grand president for the 1878-79 term. Just what was accomplished under his leadership is not known because grand officers were not required to file reports. Hawkett was elected at the outset of the session and presided until it was closed. He was not present at the second session in 1879, however, nor did he attend a grand parlor again until 1897 when he represented Athens Parlor No. 195. Oakland Parlor No. 2 went out of existence in 1883. The present Oakland Parlor No. 50 was instituted in 1885. Whether or not he joined the new parlor is not known as all records of that parlor prior to 1903 have been lost. A number of the very old members of No. 50 state that they are positive he was not a member. A sketch of Hawkett printed in 1892 states that he was a member of Piedmont Parlor No. 120, but this parlor is also unable to verify this fact due to lost records. In 1895 he did become a charter member of Athens Parlor No. 195, which fact is verified by his signature on the charter roll.

Hawkett died in Oakland on March 11, 1901. For a number of years his ashes reposed in the Odd Fellows' Columbarium in San Francisco but now rest in the Oakland Columbarium at Howe and Mather streets, in Oakland. In religion he was an Episcopalian but he did not attend any regular church. His daughter writes, "He lived by the Golden Rule, 'Do unto others as you would have others do unto you,' and he really lived up to that." No finer tribute could be paid him than this.

Following in the footsteps of his father, Arthur Wellington Hawkett who was a charter member of Alcatraz Lodge No. 224 of the Masonic Order and of his mother who was an active member of Unity Chapter of the Eastern Star, Hawkett also was active in Masonic circles holding membership in both the lodge of his father and the chapter of his mother. His funeral was conducted by the old Alcatraz Lodge of West Oakland, the Master of which at the time was Charles E. Snook, well known attorney, and charter president of Oakland Parlor No. 50. In addition to his membership in Alcatraz Lodge, Unity Chapter and Athens Parlor, Hawkett also belonged to the Woodmen of the World and the American Order of United Workmen.

In reporting Hawkett's death to the 1901 Grand Parlor, Grand Secretary Lunstedt said, "William Hawkett of Athens Parlor No. 195 was elected grand president at the first session of the Grand Parlor held in 1878. Although active and respected in public life, he was very much a domestic man, and of too modest a disposition to care to take a permanent part in fraternal life, and so was not so well known in prominent places in our Order."

The Children's Corner

"Would ye learn the road to Laughter-town,
Oh ye who have lost the way?
Would ye have young heart, though your hair be gray?
Go learn from a little child each day."

The Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West sponsor through a central committee, the Homeless Children, a most worthy project. The Homeless Children is one of two authorized adoption agencies in the State of California. The central office is at 998 Eddy street, San Francisco 9. Telephone ORdway 5241. Mary E. Brusie is executive secretary. The Los Angeles office is located at 3924 Sunset boulevard 27. Telephone OLympia 4105. Dorothy Schlingman is in charge of the Los Angeles office.

Heart Stirring Letters

By Mary E. Brusie.

A GLIMPSE into the hearts of foster parents through their letters, portray the loving thoughtfulness and care of men and women who revel in the happiness of rearing their "chosen children" and of the response of the children to their blessings.

"Dear friends: I had occasion to write you in 1931, regarding our son's birth certificate. The boy and I have been alone for seven years and a great "pal" he always has been. As the enclosed picture proves, our son is very good looking and equally fine in every way. He enlisted in June of last year and sailed in December to Island.....; consequently I am alone. As he will receive his mail via San Francisco, I shall return to San Francisco and remain until I receive one letter from him, and I shall hope to see you, Miss Brusie, as I am ever grateful to your organization for this wonderful boy. I have received untold happiness through him."

Another Heart-thriller:

"The biggest thrill that has come to the ———— family was in the form of a tiny live bundle. He was six weeks of age and entrusted to us by the Native Sons and Native Daughters Homeless Children's Committee. We could not have selected a dearer child. In fact, our lives have revolved, rotated and oscillated around him since July 29, 1943."

Babe Adopted

Marinita Parlor No. 198, NDGW, San Rafael, has just adopted its fourth baby through the Native Sons and Daughters Milk Fund for Homeless Children. This newest "member" of Marinita has been named Juanita in honor of one of the parlor's members, WAC S/Sgt. Juanita Roberson. S/Sgt. Roberson comes from a military family. She was born in the Army Presidio at San Francisco and her father was a Staff Sergeant in World War I. She is stationed at Des Moines, Iowa.

Marinita Parlor will be honored February 14, Valentines Day, with the official visit of our Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg. Installation of the parlor's newly elected officers will take place on January 24 with Mrs. Gertrude Haisler succeeding to the office of president.

RED CROSS UNIFORMS

Uniforms of the American Red Cross and the duties of their wearers were explained by a member of the speaker's bureau, Maude C. Huddleston for Californiana Parlor No. 247, NDGW, at their regular meeting January 11, when they met for luncheon in the Women's University club, Los Angeles. The Red Cross committee of the parlor headed by Edith Adams prepared and served the lunch and arranged the program.

Mrs. Huddleston displayed a group of dolls attired in the uniforms and outlined the history of the Red Cross and its flag. She traced the origin of the organization back to the Swiss soldier who interceded with Napoleon III to allow medical men to remain neutral on the field of battle. Clara Barton asked President Ulysses S. Grant to sign the Geneva treaty and the United States thus became the thirteenth nation to sign. Several Californiana members were cited for their work in the Red Cross. Florence Kelsey, recently initiated is entitled to wear the uniform of the motor corps and Ernestine Aylward, the parlor's war activities chairman is a staff worker.

At the regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the Native Sons Hall association of Sacramento held on January 12, the following were elected as officers: John Monteverde, Sr., president; J. F. Didion, vice-president; Henry Wittpen, treasurer; Judge Percy G. West, secretary; Hugh B. Bradford, R. C. Cothrin, J. G. Fitzhenry, Manuel Joseph, Elmer F. Leavitt, John J. Monteverde, Jr., and Al Schaden, directors.

Long Beach Parlors

Long Beach has the distinction of having both a Native Sons and a Native Daughter parlor named for the city. They are for the daughters No. 154 and for the sons, No. 278. Together they accomplish many worthwhile projects and each year have a joint installation of officers which was held this year January 19 in the New Masonic Temple. Officers of both parlors were in formal attire, the Native Sons wearing white gardenias in their lapels and the daughters, sweet pea corsages, excepting the president-elect, Bernadette Paulson who carried red roses and past president-elect Grace Poole who carried yellow roses.

The installing deputy for the Native Daughters was Marie Schroeder of Santa Ana Parlor, No. 235 who was assisted by Adelena Marshall as acting grand marshal and Genevieve Hiskey as acting past grand president. Deputy Robert Castro of Wilmington Parlor No. 280, NSGW, officiated for the Native Sons, Martin Moxley was installed as president of Long Beach Parlor, NSGW.

Native Sons of the Golden West

In Retrospect

"JUST AS CERTAINLY as it is a yardstick by which the future can be gauged, 1943 will stand out as the year marking the rebirth of the Order. Future progress will dwarf these results. The pattern has been set; the die has been cast; from here the Native Sons are moving to their greatest heights. Only one factor is necessary; the energy, the enthusiasm and increased activity of all of us. The results justify our work. Let's keep it up, unabated!" reads Grand President Wayne R. Millington's message in Bulletin No. 8.

Eleven new parlors were instituted during 1943, three being re-institutions. There was a membership gain exceeding that of any year for the past twenty years and a pickup of membership losses of the past six years, restoring the Order to approximately the position of 1937. A tremendous increase in enthusiasm, activity and accomplishments was evident as was also added prestige of the Order in economic and polical life and more and more Native Sons elected and appointed to positions of prominence. Nineteen hundred forty-three was certainly a year of which to be proud. The Grand President urged secretaries to send in their year end reports so that a complete membership report may be issued.

The Native Sons of the Golden West have programmed one of their most ambitious years for 1944, with care of soldiers after the war and juvenile delinquency on the top of the list, Wayne R. Millington, grand president, announces. Prominent men and women in the business and professional life of California, members of the Native Sons and the Native Daughters, are chairmen or are serving on these committees.

Grand President Millington said the organization is active in support of the proper treatment of our soldiers upon discharge and the payment of a bonus on a graduated scale. Another ambition of the Order is to make the Golden Gate Cemetery down at Colma the Arlington of the West. When he discussed the payment of a bonus, Millington said the Order would support any policy that would actuate the Government to take charge of our servicemen when they are discharged so long as it would assure that they would not be dumped into the street with just a sum of money. A sustained program of veteran assistance will be supported, Millington declared.

Joseph J. McShane of San Francisco and Judge Frank G. Grand officers in attendance were PGP Claire Lindsey, Grand Vice-president Emily Ryan and Grand Organist Mae O'Keefe. Co-chairmen for the evening were Beatrice Nishkian and Lois Loss.

With Marion McGuire as chairman, a large and successful New Year's day party was accorded service men in Hospitality House by Sequoia Parlor No. 272, NDGW, Berkeley. Many of the men had just returned from the theaters of war. The affair began during the afternoon and in the evening a dance and program was given and refreshments were served. The parlor is hostess the first Saturday of each month, and entertainments are presented each time, with members of the parlor participating. In conjunction with the joint Homeless Children committees of the Native Sons and Native Daughters for Alameda county, an entertainment was given Wednesday night, January 26 in Oakland. Members of the parlor acted as ushers. Edna Williams was chairman.

The cause of civil liberty must not be surrendered at the end of even one hundred defeats.

California Remains American

By Isabel L. Fages.

As far back as 1850, the Reverend Walter Colton, mayor of Monterey, observed a leaning in California toward secession and claimed such would be the case if Congress did not sponsor an overland railroad to the Pacific coast. He predicted an independent nation here as a result.

David Colbrith Broderick, born of Irish parents in Washington, District of Columbia in the year 1820 deserted his pursuits as a laborer and came to California where he rose in politics to the status of senator. In Congress he upheld anti-slavery policies and in 1859, there was a decided break between the pro-slavery democratic party and the New Republicans, Broderick's organization. However, the pro-slavery party won out and Milton S. Latham was elected governor. The new executive fostered the plan to divide the state. He thought this plan would make it possible for the southern half to become a slave territory.

It was deemed wise, however, not to foster the idea of joining the confederate government until developments had proceeded further. California, according to Latham's idea, should join in the rebellion when it actually took place. In the meantime, she was to join with neighboring states and territories in setting up a Pacific Republic.

At last, Broderick, ever loyal and never failing in his endeavor to preserve the rights and freedoms of all classes, met death at the hands of the former Chief Justice David S. Terry. The latter resigned his office in order to fight a duel with Broderick. Colonel E. D. Baker, whom Broderick had sanctioned for governor during the previous election expressed the grief of the people of California during the funeral ceremony.

W. M. Gwin, one of the first senators to be elected to Congress by the state of California had steadily opposed Broderick in his stand and of course was in a better position to support the pro-slavery cause when his rival was out of the way. So boldly did he uphold the cause of the future confederates, that he almost disclosed the plans of the rebels before they had matured.

Engaged in fomenting the rebellion was the 1860 Association, instituted for the purpose of enciting the masses. It was a secret league of southern governors and other agencies engaged in winning over state governments. Representatives of the association were at work in California and Oregon. Many senators and three cabinet members were friendly toward the oncoming revolt. In February, 1860, Jefferson Davis submitted the doctrines of the extreme southern party to the United States Senate and the Pacific representatives voted for them.

Elijah R. Kennedy in his book, The Contest for California in 1861 explains the situation thus:

"It was not alone Senator Gwin's affiliations with pro-slavery leaders and Senator Lane's (Oregon) equally cordial affiliations, nor the public declarations and private assurances of these men, that inspired the southern leaders with confidence that California and Oregon would be on their side in the conflict they were forcing. Latham and Denver, at the moment rivals of Gwin in the party in California, succeeded in naming most of the delegates from their state to the democratic national convention in 1860. Yet when the committee on platforms, unable to agree, brought in two reports, one favoring Douglas's (Stephen A.) view that the people of each territory should settle the question as to whether slavery should exist within their borders; the other advocating the southern claim that slaves were property and that owners had the right to undisturbed possession of their property everywhere in the territories, the delegates from California and Oregon stood up and were counted for the latter report—the only free states that took that position."

Even though Lincoln won the vote by a small plurality in these two states, the Confederates still believed them friendly to their cause.

Ever since the establishment of the State of California as one of the United States, government officials had been men of southern tendencies and the newly organized Republican party was decidedly in the minority. Its adherents were ridiculed, but at last began to become powerful enough to be hated.

By 1860, rebel forces were looking for a leader and newspapers supported the secession movement. The legislature of that year was occupied with bitter debates and rabid secession sentiments were expressed. One assemblyman stated that 30,000 men were prepared to fight for the southern states if the Union should attempt to retain its hold on California in the event of secession. As a result enough ammunition to supply 75,000 Union men was shipped to California.

Latham had resigned as governor and was elected to fill Broderick's place in Congress. Thus it was that Lt. Governor John G. Downey stepped into the chair as chief executive of the state. His predecessor switched his loyalty over to the Union party. It was difficult to tell who was loyal and who was not loyal in California. In other parts of the country, persons either adhered to the pro-slavery democratic party or to the Federal government. In California, however, no one knew definitely, who was for whom. Those who sponsored secession and the possibility of a Pacific Republic, wondered if young governor Downey would make a suitable president for the contemplated independent country. Although the governor proclaimed his loyalty to the Union, he made several statements denouncing Lincoln's invasion of the rebellious south.

"Shortly after election day in 1860, Senator Gwin started for the 'states,'" Kennedy related. "Mr. Lincoln had been elected president. The secession determination was accordingly being carried along in hostile acts, and in the most radical states, steps were being taken to fulfill the threats made during the political campaign. There was no time to be lost. Buchanan was still president. The Pacific Coast had been divided into two military departments and each was commanded by a loyal officer. Before Senator Gwin left California it was confidently and boastfully asserted that one of his first duties on arriving at the capital would be to have a friend placed over the regular army force of the coast. I am not aware of any documentary evidence that Senator Gwin undertook that matter. There may be such. In this especial matter, documentary evidence is not essential. The occurrences prove the influences.

"(1) Senator Gwin arrived in Washington about the third of December.

"(2) It took nearly a month for a letter to go from Washington to California. Allow a few days for Gwin to impress Floyd.

"(3) On the fifteenth of January, 1861, official orders from the war department were received in San Francisco relieving the two loyal officers of their commands, consolidating the entire coast into one department and placing Colonel (Brevet Brigadier General) Albert Sidney Johnston in command.

"The blow—for blow it seemed—was not unexpected by friend or foe. It raised the secessionists to a high pitch of confidence. Loyal men were dumbfounded; but what could they do? The Federal office holders, postmasters, mail carriers, customs officials, marshalls, judges and the host of minor place holders and attendants were with few exceptions or none, in sympathy with the south. The state officers and about all of their subordinates were of the same mind, together with nearly half the members of the legislature. And now, as the threatened crisis was drawing near, the regular army, with its control of the fortifications, garrisons and munitions of war, was turned over to an officer undoubtedly designated by Senator Gwin. It mattered not that Captain Winfield Scott Hancock was stationed in the southern part of the state and that Lt. Philip H. Sheridan was at a post in Washington territory. There was no way by which these two and others who would be faithful, could co-operate and they were subject to the command of General Johnston."

The new military commander overlooked confederate meetings all over the state. "Oregon, Nevada, Arizona and the northern counties of California, were the field of a lively secession propaganda. The southern counties seethed with sedition," commented Mr. Kennedy.

General Johnston seemed entirely unaware of what was going on, but when he was offered a major general's commission, it was discovered a similar honor had been accorded him by those in command of the confederates. He was arrested and was later killed while in the service of the confederate army in the Battle of Shiloh. Brig. General E. V. Sumner was sent to fill his place.

When the news of the fall of Fort Sumter arrived the secessionists of California were defiant. In some places attempts to raise the Bear Flag took place. General Sumner said in his first report to Washington:

"There is a strong Union feeling with the majority of the people of this state, but the secessionists are much the most active and zealous party, which gives them more influence than they ought to have from their numbers. I have no doubt there is some deep scheming to draw California into the secession movement, in the first place as the 'Republic of the Pacific', expecting afterwards to induce her to join the southern confederacy."

Troops were called in and reorganized for the protection of cities and army posts. Los Angeles was claimed to be the most dangerous and troops from Fort Mojave were established there. The Bear Flag had been raised at El Monte and it was believed the same ceremony was to take place May 12 in Los Angeles. The Mormons in San Bernardino organized a battalion, while a group of loyalists of Santa Barbara wrote to the general, informing him of the movements of the secessionists.

DAUGHTERS EVENTS

War Activities

Vallejo Parlor No. 195 held a mammoth card party January 19 for the benefit of its War Activities Fund. The successful affair was under the chairmanship of Audelle Clark. Dances, parties, and gifts are provided for men in the armed forces and patients at the Mare Island Naval Hospital from this fund.

The Americanization Committee on January 26, under the chairmanship of Matilda Pappas presented small California State Bear flags to twenty new citizens who recently received their naturalization papers. A short history of the Bear flag's origin and the American flag code also were presented them. Ten members of the parlor attended the potluck dinner and program honoring the new citizens given by a local organization at which the presentations were made. Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg will pay her official visit to Vallejo Parlor February 2. A dinner and reception will be held at the Casa de Vallejo Hotel and a large class of candidates will be initiated in her honor. The occasion likewise will mark the celebration of the thirty-second anniversary of the parlor. Charter and twenty-five year members also will be honored at the dinner. Decorations will be carried out in the Valentine theme. Alice Gallagher and Pauline Pappas will entertain with vocal solos, accompanied by Juliet Bliss, parlor organist. Community singing will be enjoyed. Evelyn Low will serve as chairman for the evening.

"Difficulties must be overcome. Isn't that what difficulties are made for?"

Clear Lake Parlor No. 135, NDGW, Middletown, met in regular session January 11, and retained their incumbent corps of officers for the ensuing term. Gina Urbani is president. The parlor sent gift boxes to SDDGP Edith Cavagnaro who took them to the boys recovering from combat wounds at the Irnola Hospital. Corra Herrick and Clara Koehler reported that a donation will be sent to the Homeless Children. Levate Butler, DGP to Calistoga Parlor No. 145, journeyed to Calistoga January 17 with a group of officers and members from Clear Lake Parlor No. 135 to install the officers of Calistoga Parlor No. 145.

Deputy Grand President Theresa Cavagnaro of Calistoga Parlor No. 195 installed the officers of Eshcol Parlor No. 16, NDGW, January 10. Marian Brien was installed as president. A gift was presented to DGP Cavagnaro and refreshments were served by the January committee. Eunice Banchero was chairman of the evening. The parlor voted to purchase a war bond, and hostesses to serve at the Hospitality House January 19 were appointed.

Petaluma Parlor No. 222, NDGW, held their first meeting of the new year January 4 with Myrle Kirkpatrick presiding.

Letters were read and snapshots passed around from members who have joined the Marine Corps Women's Reserve. They are Barbara Armbruster and Marjorie Soldati. The parlor's adopted veteran sent his thanks to the girls for the box sent him at Christmas. Delicious refreshments were served to the members of the parlor and to the Native Sons by Ann Zala and her committee.

Silver Tea

A successful opening for their activities of 1944 was the Silver Tea given New Year's Day by Junipero Parlor No. 141, NDGW, in the lounge of the Forest Hill Hotel, Pacific Grove. Nearly 100 Native Daughters and their friends called between two and six to partake of orange sherbet punch, spiced hot cider, tea and dainty cookies.

An unusual musical program presented by the Cypress Singers, a chorus of Monterey Peninsula women under the direction of Reu Manhire and including a number of Native Daughters, was the special attraction. Sonny Vance, child artist often featured over KDON, sang and acted out a number of old favorites. President Elmarie Hurlbert Dyke greeted the guests and spoke briefly about the various Native Daughter projects.

The tea table was striking with the glitter from the crystal bunch bowls and candelabra reflecting the colorful Christmas tree ornaments arranged with English holly. Eleanor R. Frasier poured from the handsome silver service.

Alva Banta, chairman, Clara Scholes, Geneva Smith, Mary Farrell, Joan Giamona, Rose Cutino, Anita Church, Susan Pettas, Gladys Stalter, Alice Bentley, Marilyn O'Dea, and Leta Bancroft of Castro Parlor No. 178 composed the committee. Shirley Watson of Carmel and Barbara Foster of Pacific Grove were welcomed as new members in Junipero Parlor in December.

When the demand for California troops in Texas came, unionists of California were not in favor of moving them, thus leaving the state free to the attack of the rebels. A communication was sent by the most influential men of San Francisco to Honorable Simon Cameron, Secretary of War. In it they claimed the report that Sumner was to be sent in command of California forces to Texas had caused lively apprehension of danger. They also stated that the powerful native element had been won over to the secessionists' side. As a result the action was deferred for a time, and as the strife continued, she was called upon to mobilize several regiments and battalions.

During the entire period of the war, California contributed two regiments of cavalry, eight of infantry, one battalion of native California cavalry and a battalion of infantry. Several companies of volunteers went to Massachusetts and Washington territories, however, the California soldiers took no actual part in any of the great battles.

New Mexico, Arizona and California were coveted by the Confederate government and it was hoped that if these could be conquered, a fresh supply of men, horses and food might be obtained. They were successful in New Mexico and advanced almost to the Colorado river. Confederates in California organized under the leadership of Dan Showalter but were captured at Warner's Ranch by detachments of the First California Cavalry and First California Infantry. Several of the rebels had been commissioned as officers in the southern army and were held as prisoners of war at Fort Yuma.

Troops known as the "Column" consisted of the California companies assembled at Fort Yuma and a detachment was sent out under Lt. James Barrett, E. C. Baldwin and Jeremiah Phelan. They were ordered to follow the overland route as far as Tucson. This group reached the Pima villages without contacting the enemy.

At last Indian scouts reported a detachment of confederates were nearby. This was April 15, 1862 and the affray which followed took place near Picacho Pass. Lt. Barrett and two soldiers were killed and three other men were wounded. They were the first California men to be killed or injured during the Civil war. Two confederates were wounded and three taken prisoners. Twenty feet from the Southern Pacific railroad as it goes through Picacho Pass, may be seen the graves of the brave union officer and his men. The next day, the combined California forces repaired to the Pima villages where a permanent camp was established and named Fort Barrett in honor of their deceased comrade.

Because of the scarcity of water in crossing the desert, it was necessary to allow not more than four companies to move together. A detachment under the command of Colonel West proceeded toward Tucson and marched up the Gila river to old Fort Breckenridge near the fork of the Gila and San Pedro rivers. The American flag was raised and on the morning of the twentieth, Tucson was occupied. The rebels had abandoned the town when they heard of the approach of the Californians, and returned to the Rio Grande. When the regiment arrived at the river the confederates had fled. Union forces then were stationed at various posts for the purpose of scouting for Indians. Many were the conflicts with the savages during the military occupation and the California Column was kept busy quelling the uprisings.

The regiment left the Rio Grande, near Las Lunas, October 15, 1866 and arrived at Drum Barracks,* California, December 24. When they arrived at the presidio in San Francisco, December 31, 1866, all were mustered out but their captain, R. H. Orton. He was the last of the California volunteers to remain in service.

In the Record of California Men in the War of the Rebellion, 1861 to 1867, in the Adjutant General's office, this state's share in the war is told as follows:

" . . . The service they rendered was of as great importance as that rendered by those from other states. It was as severe, entailing long and fatiguing marches across burning deserts and among almost inaccessible mountains. They were engaged in hundreds of fights with Indians and small forces of Confederate troops on the frontiers in Texas and Mexico and they never knew defeat. It was a constant source of regret among them that they were never ordered East and the question was continually asked: 'When are we to be ordered to the seat of the war?' The government deemed it wisest to keep them on the Pacific coast and in the territories. They occupied nearly all the posts from Puget Sound to San Elizario, Texas and they did their duty faithfully, notwithstanding their disappointment. By their loyalty they preserved peace in these western states and territories and the flag of rebellion was soon driven beyond the Rio Grande.

* Wilmington, Los Angeles County.

California's Counties Formed

The twenty-seven original counties of California were established through the enactment of a law by the new state legislature February 18, 1850. They were: San Diego, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, Monterey, Branciforte, San Francisco, Santa Clara, Contra Costa, Marin, Sonoma, Solano, Yola, later called Yolo; Napa, Mendocino, Sacramento, El Dorado, Sutter, Yuba, Butte, Colusi, later known as Colusa; Shasta, Trinity, Calaveras, San Joaquin, Tuolumne and Mariposa. Four additional counties had been proposed but the scarcity of population within their suggested boundaries did not justify their existence. They were to have been Aveno, Leco, Monlino and Plumas. An amendment to the original law provided for the change of Branciforte to Santa Cruz, Yola to Yolo, and the redefining of the boundaries of San Francisco, Santa Clara, Contra Costa and Yolo. The only two names not derived from old Spanish and Indian were those of Butte and Sutter.

In 1851, Nevada, Placer, Trinity and Klamath were added to the list. At this time, Los Angeles county was extended to include San Fernando, Tejon and Tehachapi passes and San Juan Capistrano. Mariposa and San Diego counties each lost considerable territory through this change. The entire desert back country was also incorporated into this division. Colusi county took some land from Yolo. Yuba lost to the newly formed Nevada, Trinity seperated herself from Shasta and in turn gave up some of her territory to form Klamath, while Placer was composed of portions of Yuba and Sutter counties. Changes in boundary lines made Monterey and Santa Barbara the losers and San Luis Obispo acquired more land. Shasta's southern line and Sutter's northern boundary were altered and San Joaquin and Contra Costa counties adjusted their limitations.

In 1863 the third session of the legislature provided for the addition of Siskiyou, Sierra, and Tulare counties. The first was contributed to by Shasta and Klamath. Sierra county was formed of the mining section of Yuba. More than one-half of the southern portion of Mariposa formed the newly created county of Tulare. Boundary adjustments continued to be made.

State boundaries did not mean much to the legislators of that period for we find them creating a county entirely outside of the boundaries. This was Pautah county. Settlers who had made their homes in the valleys of the Truckee, Carson and Walker rivers adjoining the eastern boundary thus found themselves under the government of California, when as a matter of fact they were residing on a part of the territory of Utah. The forming of Humboldt resulted in the separation of the coastal territory from the mining section of Trinity. Alameda and San Bernardino counties were established. Contra Costa and Santa Clara relinquished land to Alameda. Because of the influx of Mormon population, the first division of southern counties resulted in the forming of San Bernardino and Los Angeles became about one-third less in size. During this session, Mare Island was placed in Solano county.

Three more new counties were created in 1854. Plumas became separated from Butte. A portion of Calaveras became Amador and Stanislaus was detached from Tuolumne.

Merced was formed from the valley section of Mariposa in the year 1855, and more clearly defined boundaries were established for all counties. Buena Vista county was proposed but was never formed. Other proposals met with defeat, but in 1856, San Mateo, Fresno and Tehama were organized. San Mateo took land from San Francisco, Fresno from Mariposa and Merced and Tehama from Colusi, Butte and Shasta. Del Norte was formed in 1857 when more boundary legislation was passed.

Mendocino was not formally organized until 1859. Until this time, it had been under the administration of Sonoma county. In 1860 there was a movement on foot to organize another county outside the confines of this state. This was to have been Washoe county occupying territory now included in the state of Nevada. The proposal was approved by the legislature but overruled by the senate.

In 1861 the division of Calaveras county brought about the creation of Mono. From a section of the northern end of Napa, Lake county was formed and more state boundaries were changed.

Three years elapsed before Alpine, Lassen and Coso counties came into existence. El Dorado, Amador, Calaveras, Tuolumne and Mono all contributed to the territory conceded Alpine.

Dr. Owen C. Coy to whose work, entitled California County Boundaries we are indebted for this information, has found his source material in the journals and statutes of the state legislature. He explains the peculiar facts surrounding the formation of Lassen county as follows:

" . . . The second of these counties was in the Honey Lake region. The people of this district had long maintained a spirit of independence regarding California and in fact considered and acted in the belief that they were outside the jurisdiction of this state. In 1856, a number of settlers near Honey Lake organized an independent territory called by them, Nataqua. The boundaries of this proposed territory included more populous regions farther south and east, whose people had but little, if any knowledge or interest in "Nataqua Territory," so the project was allowed to rest. There was, however, strong opposition on the part of a portion of the Honey Lake settlers to any supervision by Plumas county, created by the California legislature in 1856, with the result that when the supervisors of that county took steps to provide for the administration of that part of the county, they met resistance. Upon the creation in 1861 of Nevada territory which claimed as its western boundary the summit of the Sierras, this territory was organized as a part of Roop county (Nevada). This action brought on a clash with the officials of Plumas county, which became known as the Sage Brush or Border Line War. After a resort to arms and some bloodshed an agreement was reached to appeal to the governments of California and Nevada to have the boundary line determined by a joint survey.

"This survey showed Honey Lake to lie well within the boundary of California and therefore within Plumas county. The feelings of the Honey Lake people were, however, to be considered and since the district was claimed to contain a thousand people, the legislature was induced to pass an act creating the county of Lassen from that portion of Plumas lying east of the summit of the mountains to which was also added the eastern half of Shasta. . . ."

Tulare and Mono counties contributed to the creation of Coso and more changes in boundaries were made. In 1866, Inyo county was formed, in place of the previously proposed Coso whose organization had never materialized. The hitherto unauthorized county of Buena Vista was officially recognized as Kern.

The codification of state laws in 1872, produced a section in the political code under the heading of county boundaries. All were definitely defined. Under this plan, Ventura was formed from the eastern portion of Santa Barbara.

In 1874, Klamath county was dissolved and Modoc and San Benito were created. San Benito was formed out of a portion of Monterey. A division of Siskiyou produced the new county of Modoc.

For twenty years an attempt had been made to form Orange county out of the southeastern portion of Los Angeles and in 1889, this was accomplished. Originally the name for the proposed county had been designated as Anaheim and again as Santa Ana. In 1891 Glenn county was created after a similar effort covering a prolonged period. Colusi whose spelling had been changed to Colusa was divided in half for this purpose.

Three new counties were authorized during the thirtieth session of the legislature in 1893. They were Madera, taken from Fresno; Kings from Tulare and Riverside from San Diego and San Bernardino.

The epidemic for creating new counties was brought to a close by the following amendment to the state constitution introduced in 1893:

"Sec. 3. The legislature, by general and uniform laws may provide for the formation of new counties; provided, however, that no new county shall be established which shall reduce any county to a population of less than five thousand; nor shall any line thereof pass within five miles of the connty seat of any county proposed to be divided. Every county which shall be enlarged or created from territory taken from any other county or counties, shall be liable for a just proportion of the existing debt and liabilities of the county or counties from which such territory shall be taken."

The people adopted the law, November 6, 1894. General acts defining boundaries according to official United States surveys continued to be created and no new counties were proposed until 1907, when Imperial came into existence. In 1910 a more drastic measure was taken to do away with county division. It provided for a population of no less than 20,000 for the existing county. November 8, 1910, the people ratified the amendment.

East Los Angeles Parlor No. 266, NDGW, and East Los Angeles Parlor No. 277, NSGW, are making extensive plans for their annual valentine dance to be held on February 12 at the Poppy Trail Villa. The public is invited. Refreshments will be served.

Serra's Reburial

FRAY JUNIPERO SERRA

"No greater privilege has ever been accorded me, than that of examining and identifying the earthly remains of Padre Junipero Serra," reverently remarked Dr. Mark Raymond Harrington, curator of the Southwest Museum, Los Angeles, when he described the experience for the editor of the Grizzly Bear recently. Dr. Harrington has enjoyed an extensive and distinguished career as a scientist and author. Since his coming to California about sixteen years ago, he has devoted a great deal of time and research toward the restoration of Mission La Purisima Concepcion and Mission San Fernando Rey as well as his own adobe home in San Fernando. The story of the exhumation and reburial of Father Serra's remains follows:

No grave in the western part of the United States has commanded such importance as that of Father Junipero Serra —California's Knight of the Cross—whose cause for canonization is now being advanced by the Franciscan Fathers.

Only recently, the beloved padre's remains beneath the sanctuary of the Mission San Carlos at Carmel were exhumed, identified and reinterred under the direction of Most Reverend Philip G. Scher of the Diocese of Monterey-Fresno.

The Apostle of Christianity in California founded the first of twenty-one missions at San Diego, July 16, 1769. The following year he founded Mission Carmel, and the ninth and last personally founded by Serra was established at Ventura in 1782.

Lame, weary, scarcely belonging to this world, but with tireless devotion and spirit transcendent, Serra, at the age of seventy in 1783, for the last time made a pilgrimage on foot along El Camino Real from San Diego to Monterey. Along the way he did not fail to turn aside into the many rancherias to bestow comfort and sympathy upon the Indian disciples.

It was past New Year's before he reached Mission San Carlos at Carmel. Serra had taken his last journey. August 28, 1784, the exalted soul of Junipero, departed from this life.

The following day he was buried beside his faithful associate, pupil and friend, Father Juan Crespi, who had followed him from Spain to aid in the missionary work here. Father Crespi died January 1, 1782.

Two other Franciscans buried at Carmel were Father Julian Lopez, who died in 1797, shortly after arriving at the mission, and Father Fermin Lasuen, for whom Point Fermin near San Pedro, was named.

Father Lasuen was Serra's successor and the second presidente of the Missions. He died June 26, 1803. Counted among the great Franciscan missionary workers, Father Lasuen founded nine other missions following Serra's death. The other three of the 21 missions were founded by successors to Father Lasuen.

Following the death of Serra, Carmel remained an Indian mission until the period of confiscation in the 1830's and '40's. Later, the mission deteriorated to such an extent that three and four feet of debris piled up on the sanctuary, the roof caved in and just the walls were left standing.

The burial place of Serra was almost forgotten. Tradition remained, however, and Father Cayetano Sorrentini, pastor at Monterey, in 1856 was requested by Archbishop Alemany of San Francisco to instigate a search for Serra's burial ground.

After interviewing several old inhabitants, Father Sorrentini learned that Serra had been buried beneath the sanctuary at Carmel. The sanctuary was covered over with heavy clumps of earth and debris. A crew of Indian workers cleared the area and the casket was found and examined.

The Mission remained an outpost from Monterey, but a renewed interest in Serra's life and work began in 1882, when Father Angelo Casanova, pastor at Monterey, started the work of restoring Carmel.

Father Casanova and several associates worked for several months in clearing the debris, and on July 3, 1882, before several hundred persons from San Francisco, the grave of Serra was formally reopened for the second time.

On this day Father Casanova read in both English and Spanish the order for the reopening of the grave. Later he distributed parts of Serra's stole and the other Franciscans' stoles as relics. Some of the people present at the ceremony are still alive today. They have been interviewed and have added to the historical data on Serra.

The Mission Carmel was restored and formally dedicated in 1884 before a large gathering, including Gen. Mariano Vallejo.

The first public statue ever erected in honor of the Apostle of the Missions was constructed on the Monterey Presidio facing the bay in 1891.

Following the second opening of Serra's grave the interest in the mission founder never ceased, expanding from year to year. On the sesqui-centennial of his death in 1934 the Franciscan Fathers of California formally inaugurated the cause for the canonization of the beloved Serra.

As part of this procedure, Serra's grave at Carmel was reopened and the body exhumed, identified and reinterred during a three months' period which terminated last December 7.

The work was carried out under the most solemn obligations of secrecy by authority of Bishop Scher of the Fresno diocese, within whose confines the remains of Father Serra lie.

The identification of the remains was certified by Dr. Mark R. Harrington and Dr. Theodore D. McCown, assistant professor of anthropology at the University of California, and two eminent medical authorities, Maj. Richard F. Berg, chief of the surgical staff at Ft. Ord, and Dr. Clement B. Nagelmann of Santa Barbara.

When the identity of each of those buried beneath the sanctuary at Carmel was established, an identifying scroll was sealed in a copper tube and placed in each coffin.

That concerning Father Serra reads:

"The remains of the Rev. Father Junipero Serra, Apostle of California and founder of the Missions, buried on August 29, 1784, exhumed and identified in 1943, and reinterred in this new coffin on December 7 of the same year, by authority of the Most Rev. Philip G. Scher, Bishop of Monterey-Fresno."

The exhumation and reburial of Father Serra was done with all the historical, scientific and medical apparatus required by the Church, according to Rev. Maynard Geiger, curator of Mission Santa Barbara.

Past Grands' Banquet

The Past Grand Presidents of the Native Sons of the Golden West held a banquet in San Francisco January 15, with fifteen out of twenty-two living past grand presidents in attendance. Grand President Wayne R. Millington and Grand Secretary John T. Regan also attended.

The toastmaster of the evening was the dean of past grand presidents, William M. Conley of Madera, and many of those assembled responded to his call. Grand President Millington spoke for the grand parlor.

He entered the office of the sheriff in 1924 and occupied many positions of importance during his nineteen years of service. It was his idea to place the flags of Latin American countries in the Plaza de Justicia, between the Hall of Records and the Hall of Justice in Los Angeles. Capt. Ayres had traveled extensively in Latin America and was a student of hemispheric policy. In his youth he had been an actor and in the first world war was a merchant seaman. He collapsed at his desk in the Hall of Justice January 13 as the result of a heart attack and died several hours later in a hospital. He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Lena Melrose of San Francisco.

ELLA WIGHT YORK, the first girl child of anglo-saxon parentage born in Vallejo passed away December 28 in Mountain View Rest Home. Wight, brother of Mrs. York owns a log book relating the adventures of the journey to this coast in 1851. Mrs. Wight arrived in San Francisco in 1850 and in 1853 the couple were married. There were five children, four of whom were born in San Jose. Robert Wight, a San José Native Son survives his sister, as does also a daughter, Mrs. Zena Alva and four grandchildren.

Arlington of the West

Erection of a shrine at the Golden Gate National Cemetery on the hills above San Bruno by the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West of San Mateo county was urged upon San Mateo parlors of both Orders recently by Grand Trustee Webster K. Nolan, NSGW, well-known newspaperman.

Nolan on the occasion of his official visit January 15, was honored at a joint meeting of the Native Sons parlors of Redwood City, Coloma, Half Moon Bay and Pescadero, held at Redwood City. He called upon the San Mateo units to unite in efforts to erect the shrine. He declared, in the course of his address:

"There will sleep forever in the soil of San Mateo, above the vale of Millbrae, tens of thousands of heroes of the Pacific war. Let us be worthy guardians of our glorious dead; let us erect a Native Sons and Daughters shrine in this Arlington of the West. San Mateo will be host to countless tens of thousands who will come here to honor their fallen loved ones."

Steps are being taken, Nolan said, to establish a parlor of the Native Sons in Burlingame, where keen interest in the work of the Native Sons has been displayed. Assisting in the organization of the Burlingame Parlor is Hamilton W. Nolan, brother of Grand Trustee Nolan who resides in Burlingame.

Coincident with the termination of the war, Nolan said, will come the most colorful years of the Order of the Native Sons, when California will celebrate a series of centennials culminating with the hundreth anniversary of California's admission into the Union in 1950.

It matters not what be thy lot,
So Love doth guide;
For storm or shine, pure peace is thine,
Whate'er betide.

DO YOU WANT FREE ENTERPRISE?

This article was written by V. Orval Watts, economic counsel of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce at the request of the Legislative committee of the Native Daughters for publication in the Grizzly Bear Magazine.

The committee urges that legislative chairmen of every subordinate parlor or an appointee of the president read this article in parlor under "good of the order" or "new business" and be prepared to endorse the resolution which will be distributed to all subordinate parlors.—Grace S. Stoermer, State Chairman of Legislation, NDGW.

By Orval Watts, Economic Counsel of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

DO YOU REMEMBER COUÉ and his prescription? He claimed that we could cure almost any mental or physical trouble by repeating, "Every day, in every way, I am getting better and better!"

Similarly, many people seem to believe that our economic system can be assured of long life and prosperity by getting enough people to keep saying, "Free enterprise—it's wonderful!"

Coué, however, never cured cancer and he never made it possible to dispense with the rules of hygiene. Neither will propaganda telling of the glories of free enterprise keep it alive and prosperous when people do not establish and maintain the conditions necessary to make it work.

Many people, for example, who talk most about the importance of free enterprise, may be found advocating policies which restrict enterprise through "fair trade" laws, "protective" tariffs, or discriminatory and burdensome license fees on out-of-town or out-of-state competitors. Farmers denounce trade union restrictions of output and monopolistic practices of business. Yet they themselves vote for crop restrictions and set up organizations to restrict competition in the marketing of farm products. Trade unions denounce crop restriction and monopoly. Yet they often enforce restrictions as costly as any which they denounce.

This confusion of thought and widespread sabotage of freedom give much aid and comfort to the enemies of free enterprise. With semantic sophistry they propose to "preserve" free enterprise by certain government tax and spending policies designed to "put money into circulation" and to establish "freedom from want" or "freedom from insecurity." Their tax policies, which consist in near-confiscation of business profits and a levelling down of high incomes, are destroying the wellsprings of private capital and eating up the seed corn of private enterprise. Their spending policies, which consist in huge government hand-outs to non-producers, are destroying the solvency of both government and business, and thereby are making insecure the livelihood of everyone.

How far do we get then, by pointing to the splendid past achievements of private enterprise while we continue to maintain and increase the restrictions and burdens on it? Most restrictionists honestly believe—or say they do—that their restrictive policies come under the head of "proper and necessary regulation." Most inflationists likewise proclaim that burdensome taxes on capital and inflationary spending are necessary "to make free enterprise work" by providing markets and preventing over-investment or overproduction.

Wartime inflation is making many people forget that American business was stagnant and millions were unemployed prior to the war. The restrictions that were stifling enterprise then have not been abolished. On the contrary, they have been greatly added to. True, we shall have more money after the war and more government bonds which can be easily converted into money. But abundance of money never assured prosperity to any nation. In fact, disaster has always followed such inflation, and the downturn came just when the future looked brightest. The current inflation of money, credit and debt is no guarantee of postwar prosperity.

What is the answer? In view of the disagreements among leading writers and speakers on economic subjects, what is the honestly inquiring citizen to think? What is he or she to do to help promote the freedom, prosperity and progress which everyone wants? No one can give the final or complete answer. No one can lay out in detail an infallible program for progress. But a few principles should be kept in mind as we grope in the half-light of a dawning future.

1. Prosperity and progress depend on useful effort, not on waste or idleness. Whatever restricts or discourages people in doing their very best, therefore, is to that extent vicious. Whatever makes good things scarcer or harder to get is uneconomical and wasteful of human effort and resources. Our progress depends on building an economic system which preserves and expands opportunity and incentive for every individual to make his maximum contribution towards making goods more abundant and cheap.

2. Money is not wealth, and it is useful only when people don't have enough of it. When an individual has less money than he wants he will work to get it, and in doing so he will help produce the commodities and services which contribute to prosperity. (This of course assumes that the government is performing its primary function of preventing fraud and violence.)

3. Increased production does not consist merely in multiplying quantities of existing types of goods. Our prosperity would not be doubled merely by doubling the quantities of food, clothing, houses and so on which we now enjoy. Instead, progress in prosperity requires (a) changes in the proportions in which goods are supplied and (b) changes in the types of goods offered. It demands invention, enterprise and initiative. It means that workers must be ready to change jobs, capital owners must be ready to switch investments, merchants must find new markets for new goods, and consumers must experiment with new goods which give promise of improving their ways of living.

4. Opportunity for invention and enterprise means individual liberty. It means freedom for a man to offer his services in competition with his fellows, and it includes freedom to make his own bargains with his customers or employer, if he so desires. It means freedom for a man to persuade other people to lend him funds to start a new enterprise, to bid for land and labor, and to sell, at prices he deems satisfactory to himself, his services and products in competition with those of other producers.

At this point many people draw back and decide they do not really want free enterprise after all. They are not willing to take their chances in competitive markets. Instead, they want the protection and special privilege of organized restriction of price competition. Others, however, agreeing with Eric Johnston that the monopolist is a sissy, are willing to go on a little further.

5. Progress is made by a process of trial and error. No group of "experts" can tell us with certainty what changes are best in our ways of working and living. Their advice, based on specialized knowledge and experience, may be valuable. But their dictation and coercion is sure to take us up blind alleys or else destroy our will and opportunity to go anywhere. Freedom of discussion among the experts and between the experts and the layman is essential to progress. But progress is most rapid where the largest number of people are learning to make up their own minds and are freely choosing what to do and which expert to rely upon.

6. Government is compulsion. Taxes, for example, are forced levies on producers. They restrict freedom to buy, invest and produce. What are the advantages and limitations of coercion as an instrument for progress? When enforced, laws can restrict and prevent, but they cannot direct, create or inspire. They may provide freedom for producers by repressing cheating, thuggery and stealing. But government is not all-powerful. All the world's armies and navies can't build a good society. At best they can only protect good ones against bad ones. At worst they are instruments of enslavement and reaction.

7. Insecurity is part of the price we must pay for freedom. If a man is free, then he is free to make mistakes. Government can save people from the results of their mistakes only by taking money or time from welldoers and thus restricting opportunities to continue good conduct. A certain kind and degree of tragedy all of us want to prevent. But fear of failure is necessary to make men prize success. Fear of want is necessary to prevent waste and dissipation. This is, of course, only another way of saying that individual responsibility is essential to freedom and progress.

Here again some timid souls hesitate. They think they might prefer security to freedom after all. "Let someone else take the chances and perhaps win the prizes," they say. "We shall be satisfied to putter along as we are, if someone else will tell us what to do." The larger the proportion of a nation's citizens who will thus trade liberty for security, the smaller is the amount of intelligence available to run our economic system and the greater is the load to be carried by what remains.

Modern industry, vastly complicated and productive, was not built by a few geniuses and it cannot be operated, let alone improved, by a few experts. No individual and no small group of individuals have enough brains or knowledge to make any large proportion of the decisions necessary to make our economic system work for a single day. That is why a slave cannot be great or prosperous.

Slave masters, like the Nazis, may seize a great industrial system and for a time exploit it for their own purposes. But they cannot build such a system and they can-

STANFORD INSTALLS

Stanford Parlor No. 76, NSGW, San Francisco, held installation of officers January 11 in the Native Sons building. The following officers were installed: president, Harold A. Meyer; junior past president, George Carson; first vice-president, Webster K. Nolan; second vice-president, Judge George Harris; third vice-president, Charles Y. Stanley; marshal, Noble Andre; inside sentinel, Herman Bolte; outside sentinel, John Hauser; trustee, Arthur T. Phoheim. Refreshments were served following the ceremonies.

RANCHOS FOR SOLDIERS

Walter S. Home, a member of the legal staff of the Title Insurance and Trust Company and former secretary for the California Land Title Association was the speaker for the Native Sons Friday Luncheon Club in the Rosslyn Hotel, Los Angeles, January 7. His subject was "Ranchos for Soldiers." Mr. Home gave a comprehensive outline of the manner of acquisition of land by soldiers during the Spanish and Mexican regimes in California and outlined the history of the practice of land allotments in the ancient Roman empire. William the Conqueror also parceled out land to his soldiers. The speaker thought the practice a good one and said it would be fine if such grants could be made to returning soldiers who wished to settle on farms at the close of the present conflict. The speaker was introduced by chairman George M. Cuthbertson.

Millington

"Problems and Opportunities of the Native Sons for 1944" was the subject for Grand President Wayne R. Millington's speech before the Native Sons Friday Luncheon Club, Los Angeles, January 14. Other grand officers present were Grand Trustee Walter G. Odemar and Bernard Hiss and Grand Secretary John T. Regan.

BEAR FLAGS WANTED

Isadore B. Dockweiler, prominent attorney of Los Angeles and member of Ramona Parlor No. 109, NSGW, almost stopped a session in municipal court January 4 when he said the proceedings were not legal because the State's official emblem, the Bear Flag was not displayed in the courtroom as required by the new state law, of which he was the author and which was recently passed by the state legislature.

Judge Ben Rosenthal was momentarily nonplussed but refused to concede that proceedings were invalid. He said the flags are absent from municipal courts because of difficulty in obtaining the proper kind of standards.

THE SHINTO OF JAPAN

By WALTER H. ODEMAR, Grand Parlor Chairman on Japanese Legislation—NSGW.

On December 7, 1941, there were over two hundred and forty Japanese language schools in California. How many of the children of Japanese parents attended these schools at some time or other during the formative period of their youth in the years before Pearl Harbor, we do not know. But we do know that some nineteen thousand students were registered in these schools in December, 1941. The Japanese language schools were said to have been created and maintained to foster and perpetuate knowledge of Japanese language, history and culture in the descendants of Japanese living in foreign countries.

The basis of Japanese culture and history is the basis of the Shinto of Japan. Everything Japanese be it historical, cultural or religious originates at the same source. Izanagi, the original sky father, and Izanami, the earth mother, are the universal parents, ancestors of gods and men, and the ones who produced all manner of things. They are the "beginning" as taught by Japanese historians and by Shintoism. They are the ancestors of the sun goddess, Amaterasu-Omikami, who, according to Japanese history, is the direct ancestress of the present emperor of Japan.

The sun goddess, Amaterasu-Omikami, is officially defined by the Japanese government as the "great organizing spirit that laid, once and for all, the characteristic foundations of the Japanese state." She is accorded the central position in the ritual of the Shinto Shrines and in the carefully supervised nationalistic instruction given the Japanese school children. She is the main "kami" to whom the people pray. She is the symbol of practically everything that is most precious and most characteristic in the evolution of the Japanese people. All things Japanese, Shinto or historical, point to her, and so she is the foundation of Japanese nationalistic loyalty.

Japan claims that State Shinto is not a religion. Whether Shrine Shinto is a religion is not material here, for there are thirteen different Shinto sects all of which are religious and trace the history of their faith and of Japan to the same source. All teach that the present emperor of Japan is the direct descendant of Amaterasu-Omikami, and that the followers of the sect must revere and obey him. He is a god and can do no wrong. He loves his people and must in turn be worshipped.

Since the Shrine Shinto and the Sect Shinto teach the same things that the state teaches regarding the origin of the Japanese people, how can it be argued that the Japanese language schools in the United States were not subversive, and in the teaching of Japanese history and culture, they were not being disloyal to this country? Surely, in teaching Japanese history, they must teach that Hirohito is a direct descendant, without a break in the chain, of the sun goddess, Amaterasu-Omikami, that he and all of the Japanese are of a super race destined to rule the world. If it is said that those were not the teachings in the schools here in California, then why were there so many Shinto Altars in those schools? If they did not teach those things, then did they really teach the history of Japan as it is believed by the Japanese in the homeland?

After this war is won, and Japan has definitely been defeated, it will be incumbent upon the people of the United States to make sure that never again will there be any so-called Japanese language schools flourishing in this country. We can not afford to have in our midst any organization that teaches loyalty to a foreign government, whether it be done under the guise of teaching the history or culture of a foreign country, or under the guise of teaching a religion where the head of that religion is also the head of that foreign government.

GRAND HISTORIAN

Peter T. Conmy delivered the following addresses during December and January: December 20 he spoke over KLX, Oakland as guest of the Dial club, his subject being, "The Beginning of State Government in California." "Americanism in California History" was his subject when he addressed Sequoia Lodge, F. and A. M. January 4. He was again heard over KLX, Oakland January 6 when he discussed "The Evolution of the Oakland Public Library." "The Discovery of Gold in California" was his subject January 12 at the Lake Merritt Post, American Legion, and the Oakland Lions club, January 19, and the Berkeley Breakfast club January 20.

Grand Parlor adopted a beautiful resolution of tribute to his memory, April 25, 1901, referring to him as "the revered first grand president of the Order." As a unanimous tribute from the Oakland Parlors it was signed by Milton G. Perkins of Oakland Parlor, Edward A. Brackett of Piedmont Parlor and W. H. H. Gentry of Athens Parlor. An embossed leather covered copy was sent to the family and still is preserved by them. To the grand presidents from Alameda county, therefore, must be added the name of William G. Hawkett, who according to the grand parlor resolution, "rendered the Order valuable services at a time when its tottering footsteps required the support of strength and courage."

PAST PRESIDENTS

Past Presidents' Association No. 2, NDGW, held installation of officers January 10 in Corinthian hall, Oakland. Officers installed were: Isabel Snedigar, president; Adele Wentworth, past president, Ethyl Young, first vice-president; Lucille Stern, second vice-president; Louise McDougall, third vice-president; Louise Bendetti, musician; Mary Wright, inside sentinel; Gertrude Dalton, marshal; Pearl Pollock, outside sentinel.

Catherine Plumb was installing officer, and Louise McDougall, general chairman. When the chairman had called the meeting to order, the Colors were escorted by the Green Patrol of Sequoia and Argonaut Parlors, followed by the pledge of allegiance and the singing of the National Anthem. Mae Adamina read the prayer. Following the installation ceremonies, a basket of roses was presented to the new president while Ellen Wales sang, "Only a Rose." A past president's jewel was presented Catherine Plumb by founder Leah Williams and gifts were also presented to the founder and the installing officer.

A native daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. William T. Price December 18 at the Garfield Hospital, Monterey Park.

Follow Precedent

Santa Barbara Parlor, NSGW, and Reina del Mar Parlor, NDGW, following a precedent established a number of years ago, held impressive joint installation ceremonies at the Women's City club on the evening of January 26. Thomas McDermott continues another year of presidential service for the Native Sons and Mrs. George Tackaberry succeeded Mrs. William A. Birss as president of the Native Daughters.

Community leaders and ranking governmental officials of the area and federal, state, county and city government officials attended. Clarence Rogers, president of the Santa Barbara Chapter of the Red Cross and prominent attorney was the principal speaker. He spoke on "Prelude to Victory," stressing what the members of the two orders might do to hasten victory and what part they should play in the vital reconstruction period which will follow the war's end.

Henry Borchard of Cabrillo Parlor, NSGW, Ventura, acted as installing officer for the Native Sons and Dr. Helen France, president of Santa Maria Parlor, came from Santa Maria to act for the Native Daughters. Paul Sweetser, John McCaughy and Capt. Wilfred Rutherford handled arrangements for the Sons, while Edna Sharpe, Elizabeth Coen, Mrs. John D. Ross and Mrs. Henry Griffiths of the Past Presidents' Association served as a committee on arrangements for the Native Daughters.

Free Enterprise

not improve its economic efficiency. Instead, the system slows down and disintegrates in their grasp. Only as individual liberty and responsibility are established and developed do peoples prosper and progress. But, if individuals are to make decisions, they must be ready to lose by bad ones as well as to profit by good ones. The alternative is not security, but greater insecurity—the insecurity of slavery, poverty and weakness.

This raises the question as to how the efforts and decisions of free individuals can be co-ordinated. How can people be free and yet be persuaded to choose to do what fits in with the plans of other people? Suppose everyone wanted to be a farmer or schoolteacher or aviator. What a mess we would get into!

This brings us up against one more fundamental fact.

8. A free exchange system, with prices and rates of pay arrived at by free bargaining between individuals, is essential to a free economy. Prices and rates of pay constitute the automatic traffic lights which guide producers in choice of work or investment and guide consumers in the economical spending of their incomes. When prices are frozen or dictated, then production and consumption must likewise be frozen or dictated. If you don't like the words "frozen" or "dictated," you may say "controlled" or "managed." But changing the words will not change the facts. Coercion by bureaucrats, armed with police powers, is the only alternative to the lures of a free price and free wage system.

When enough of us understand these facts, or principles, and when we learn how to apply them in determining our own conduct as citizens, then we may expect to get back on the highway to greater liberty and greater prosperity. In the meantime, no amount of money and no shortages of goods will save our jobs, our incomes or our liberties. This is the inescapable conclusion of history.

For Victory

The third day of the Fourth War Bond Drive in Victory House, Pershing Square, Los Angeles was sponsored by Southern California parlors of the Native Sons and Native Daughters. Left to right in the picture are: Lieut.-Gov. Frederick H. Houser, member of Ramona Parlor No. 109; PGP Grace S. Stoermer, NDGW, general chairman; Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg and Col. Roscoe Arnett, in charge of procurement and recruitment of the United States Marine Corps in Southern California.

Over $961,000 in war bonds were credited to Southern California Native Sons and Native Daughters, Thursday, January 20, the third day of the fourth war loan drive, when they took over "Victory House in Pershing Square," Los Angeles, for the afternoon program. Headed by general chairman, PGP Grace S. Stoermer the committee in charge were: Florence Irish, State Chairman of Music and Margaret Kerr, State Chairman of War Activities of the Native Daughters; PGP Hazel B. Hansen; Native Daughters; PGP Hazel B. Hansen; Grand Trustee Anna Schiebusch; District Deputies Erna Watts, Beatrice Wahrmund, and Eugenia Smith; Isabel Fages, Los Angeles county publicity chairman; Bernice Setterberg, assistant county publicity chairman and Native Sons: Grand Trustees Walter H. Odemar and Bernard G. Hiss, Supervising District Deputy Woodrow W. Wade, Walter Richards, Walter E. Smith, Judge Benjamin Harrison, Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz and Roy Tarleton, mayor of Compton. A thirty minute broadcast of the program was heard over station KMTR.

At the invitation of the Treasury department, Native Daughters assumed the resonsibility of the program for the third day in the drive and invited the Native Sons to join them, since the two Orders are linked together in a mutual endeavor to further the war effort.

The program was opened with the posting of the national colors and the Bear flag by representatives of all branches of the service and the singing of the National Anthem, followed by an invocation read by Chaplain Willard A. Irving of the United States Army Air Corps. The custom of invoking the blessing was inaugurated at Victory House, September ninth last when the two Orders jointly opened the third war loan drive. The flags were loaned by Ramona Parlor No. 109, NSGW. Community singing was then led by Mr. Hugo Kirchhofer.

Heroes of the present war were presented and interviewed by Chaplain Irving and Col. Roscoe Arnett, USNMC. They were Marine S/Sgt. Peter Yesierski, cook, whose field kitchen was only 200 yards from the Japanese firing line on Guadalcanal and who was under bombardment for five consecutive days, Lieut. Robert E. Gardner who has seen service over Sicily and North Africa and is now attached to the Los Angeles Fighter Wing of the USAAC; BM 1/c Reginald of the Seabees who has seen nineteen months' service, nine of which were spent in the Solomon Islands area as a rigger. During a bombardment he sustained an injury. In the first world war he served in the British Navy and has a son in the United States Navy. BM 2/c Meredith Laiblin has been in the navy two years, fifteen months of which were spent in the South Pacific, Samoa and New Caledonia. Earl Klima, WT 2/c, served in the South Pacific and Tarawa.

Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg, Californiana Parlor No. 247, NDGW, and Grand Trustee Walter G. Odemar, Ramona Parlor No. 109, NSGW, addressed the audience. California's Lieut-Governor Frederick F. Houser of Ramona Parlor No. 109, Los Angeles; film star, Monty Blue and Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz delivered inspirational messages. Others representing both Orders were PGP Hazel B. Hansen of Verdugo Parlor No. 240, Glendale; Grand Trustee Anna Schiebusch of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 and Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss, University Parlor No. 272. A portion of Grand President Noerenberg's message follows:

"At the request of the United States Treasury Department, the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West are privileged this afternoon to serve as hosts and hostesses here in Victory House. It is significant that the fourth war loan drive should open this first month as we move into another year, to face the war job still to be done. It is a tremendous task, but every native son and daughter, and you who are our adopted friends are determined to see this through. This is your war! It is our war! Just as California is our state. In California we want no substitutes for our social and political heritage but just and enduring world peace. This can only be accomplished by an organized 'home front' just as our boys are organized on the battle front'."

Benicia, Intended Metropolis

By Peter T. Conmy, Grand Historian Native Sons of the Golden West

Benicia, State Capital in 1853

— Reproduced from Owen C. Coy's Pictorial History of California, a publication of the University of California, Extension Division.

MARCH 27, 1944 will mark the ninety-fourth anniversary of the chartering of the City of Benicia, situated in Solano county on the upper stretches of San Francisco bay, known at that point as Suisun bay. Benicia is rich in historic landmarks. It is a small city about the same in size and type of those settlements in its immediate area. Those who founded Benicia, however, dreamed of a great metropolis; of a city that would be the largest on San Francisco bay and the leading center of all California.

Robert Semple, who played such an active part in the Bear Flag revolt and who was president of the constitutional convention in 1849, may be called the father of Benicia. On June 14, 1846 the Americans surprised the garrison at Sonoma and took General Mariano G. Vallejo a prisoner. It was deemed best that he be taken to Sutter's Fort and Robert Semple was delegated to perform this task. The journey from Sonoma to the fort took the party across the foothills and lowlands of Sonoma and Napa counties and through the lower part of the present Solano county. Vallejo claimed title to all of the area by virtue of a grant from a Mexican governor. When the site of the future city of Benicia was passed, Semple was much impressed with its location. He noted its relation to both the great bay on the one hand and the entrance to the two great interior river valleys on the other. On this site he visioned the metropolis of the Pacific coast.

Semple lost no time in making his views known. The remainder of the journey to Sacramento was occupied by business talk between Semple, the would-be investor and Vallejo, the owner. The latter was also an intelligent man with an eye to business and considered the proposition seriously. When Vallejo was released from custody and returned to Sonoma, further conferences between him and Semple followed and on December 22, 1846 a bargain was struck between the two. An area comprising five square miles and covering the present Benicia in its scope was deeded by Vallejo, owner of the Soscal rancho, to the newly formed partnership of Vallejo and Semple. The purpose of the enterprise was to found here the city of Francisca. Vallejo had two purposes in mind. First he sought to make profits from the selling of lots in the new city. Secondly, he foresaw that the growth of a city at this point would increase the value of his remaining neighboring properties.

The name Francisca was chosen ostensibly to honor Vallejo's wife, Francisca Benicia Vallejo. The selection really was to give to the proposed city a name that would coincide with the name of San Francisco Bay. At this particular period the name of San Francisco as applied to the name of the city had been lost and the appellation, Yerba Buena, had taken its place. The people of San Francisco were not asleep, however, and when they realized what was going on, took immediate steps to retain for their settlement the all-important name of the great bay. Alcalde Washington Bartlett at once issued a proclamation ordering the discontinuance of the name of Yerba Buena in favor of San Francisco. Chagrined at the restoration of San Francisco and wishing to avoid an embarrassing and absurd duplication, it was decided by the founders of the new city to designate it Benicia, Mrs. Vallejo's middle name.

About this time another great figure and shrewd business man of early California, Thomas Oliver Larkin, United States consul at Monterey became interested in the Benicia project. May 4, 1847 Semple hinted that Larkin would be taken in as a partner if Vallejo approved. Apparently at this point there was a revamping of the whole plan. May 18, 1847, Semple formally deeded his half interest in the property back to Vallejo who on the following day made a deed of the entire area to Semple and Larkin. Vallejo thus withdrew from the partnership reserving a right to some lots. Perhaps the reason for Vallejo's withdrawal was his inability to finance the improvements. Vallejo was rich in land holdings but poor in cash.

Early in June the plans for a ferry to Benicia were laid. On the nineteenth of the same month the change of name was officially announced. On the twenty-ninth Larkin and Semple divided between them the lots which had been laid out, Larkin taking the even numbered ones and Semple the odd. Each partner donated four squares for public uses.

Benicia's first settler was William I. Tustin who brought his family there in the fall of 1847. He had come to California in 1845 with the Grigsby-Ide party, and had settled in the Sacramento valley working for the most part for General Sutter. Tustin was a builder and erected the first adobe house in Benicia and by November fifteen houses had been built. The first adobe house became the property of Major Stephen Cooper. It was operated as a hotel known as the California House. Cooper's daughter, Frances became Mrs. Robert Semple.

Benicia continued to progress. In anticipation of an important metropolitan point the United States army established the Benicia barracks, April 30, 1849 and an arsenal was located there in 1851. The Peabody hospital was erected and opened in 1849. The Pacific Mail company believed that Benicia would be a coming commercial center and located their docks there in 1850. The Masonic hall which still stands, was erected in 1850 also. In 1851 the Episcopalian church opened a school known as St. Augustine's college and in 1852 the Benicia seminary for young ladies was established by Mary Atkins. In 1866 this institution was sold to Cyrus Mills and removed to Oakland in 1871. It still flourishes there as Mills college.

Notwithstanding this progress Larkin soon realized that Benicia's location operated against her ultimate attainment of a superiority over San Francisco. Hence his ardor became first lukewarm and finally cool. In December 1848 Semple offered him $15,000 for his interest but he declined to sell. Semple accused Larkin of deserting the cause. Larkin should be exonorated, however. The gold rush of 1849 brought thousands of persons to California. The ships which brought them anchored in Yerba Buena cove and the passengers landed in the fast growing San Francisco. From San Francisco they moved to the gold fields. Benicia was passed by and San Francisco forged ahead. Thus the intended rival was quickly surpassed by San Francisco.

In 1850 Benicia was made the seat of Solano county, but in 1858 this was removed to Fairfield. In 1853-54 Benicia served as the state capital which in the latter year was moved to Sacramento. The location of the Navy yard on Mare Island was a boon to the growth of Vallejo and was a further set back to the growth of Benicia. Notwithstanding all of this Benicia enjoyed a slow but nevertheless steady growth. The population in 1850 was about one thousand. The city was incorporated in that year, the first mayor being Joseph Kearney. The first public school was built there in 1851.

The Children's Corner

"Would ye learn the road to Laughter-town,
Oh ye who have lost the way?
Would ye have young heart, though your hair be gray?
Go learn from a little child each day."

Lovely Lady

Mary E. Brusie

Lovely Lady was the title given the foster mother who wrote the following letter by her children's own grandmother when she was preparing them for the change in their lives, due to the failing health of both grandparents and a broken home caused by the instability of the parents.

"Dear friends: Since we last heard from you, we have moved and have the benefit of all the lovely trees and gardens, swimming, pool, tennis court, fireplace and picnic tables, which the children love and have enjoyed all last season. The children enjoy their new rooms now. They love having their very own things. Daughter has the dainty room and how she loves it, and son, a real boy's room. Also, the main bedrooms are on the main floor, making it much easier for me when they are in need of special care on account of colds or other ailments. My mother has her own bedroom and bath upstairs, which gives her the privacy she needs, and on this same floor is the children's playroom, so we are quite comfortable. We are right on the downtown car line, necessary with gas rationing, although the children have a little farther to walk, but they soon became used to it and take the car when it is raining. A group of very fine children are around us and some of them are in the same room at school as our boy.

Please tell their grandmother that they show her careful early training. I wish that I could send a picture of them to her which she would enjoy, but because of her many friends and relations who might at some time see the pictures and later the children and recognize them, we feel that we cannot send a photograph, or a snapshot, but I will make it a point to visit you that you may tell her how fine, well and happy they are. I am enclosing a letter to the grandmother for you to send to her after you have read it. Signed: 'The Lovely Lady.' "

A Good Boy

I woke before the morning, I was happy all the day,
I never said an ugly word, but smiled and stuck to play.

And now at last the sun is going down behind the wood,
And I am very happy, for I know that I've been good.

My bed is waiting cool and fresh, with linen smooth and fair,
And I must off to sleepsin-by and not forget my prayer.

I know that, till tomorrow I shall see the sun arise,
No ugly dream shall fright my mind, no ugly sight my eyes.

But slumber holds me tightly till I waken in the dawn,
And hear the thrushes singing in the lilacs round the lawn.

—By Robert Louis Stevenson.

For Future Citizens

Here is another little reminder from the the children, who are trusting in their benefactors, the Native Sons and Native Daughters of California, that March 31, 1944, will end the thirty-fourth year of the work of finding homes for children in need of them. April 1, 1944, will begin the new fiscal year.

A large number of parlors have responded generously without the need of the Central Committee's sending a special urge to each parlor, thus saving the expense of postage, printing and stationary, to apply on the other administrative expense. Some of the parlors have given their benefits and the returns for some good reason, no doubt, have not yet been received by the central office. Please send in your contributions as promptly as possible. Make March a month of effort despite the distractions of war, which has affected the world and has caused depleted membership as the parlor's members have gone into the service.

Might it not be possible for each member at home and defense workers to assume in addition to their own, the contribution of one fighting member, in order that the children, the future citizens of America may receive as their post-war inheritance: home, church, school and play?

Double Ceremony

Native Sons and Native Daughters held an impressive double installation ceremony when Elk Grove Parlor No. 41, NSGW, and Liberty Parlor No. 213, NDGW, seated their officers for the current term. Presidents of the parlors are Muriel Blodgett for Liberty Parlor and Edward Kloss for Euk Grove Parlor.

Ruby Lovett, deputy to Liberty Parlor and a team of acting grand officers from La Bandera Parlor, Sacramento, performed the installation ceremonies for Liberty and Grand Trustee Walter Bailey and a picked team seated the officers-elect of Elk Grove Parlor. The meeting which took place in IOOF hall, Elk Grove was preceded by a turkey banquet.

Expansion Unlimited

"THERE ARE NO BAD YEARS for the Native Sons, war or depression, if each member is sold on the value of his membership and will work to protect it," Grand President Wayne Millington states in his February bulletin. "We have everything to offer—tradition and participation in vital current subjects. When most, if not all parlors will get the spirit and make it a center of community activity, there is no limit to our expansion. Power and prestige! We have them with our comparatively small membership. What will it be when we are 50,000 strong?

The grand president lists expenditures for the term ending December 31 as $4439.99 and a deficit of $2022.37, but cites the membership gain as being the greatest in twenty years. "Do these figures justify an aggressive organization campaign?" he asks and concludes, "I invite your comments and suggestions".

Bond Sales

A bond sale was held in conjunction with the regular meeting of Elk Grove Parlor No. 41, NSGW Friday evening February 11. During the evening $8000 in bonds were sold to members of the parlor together with an additional $1000 bond purchased by the parlor making a total of $9000 in bonds for the evening. During the same meeting Grand Trustee Walter N. Bailey received the endorsement of the parlor for the office of grand third vice-president. Before the meeting a banquet was served by Muriel Blodgett, president of Liberty Parlor, Native Daughters and Ed Kloss, Jr., president of Elk Grove Parlor, Native Sons to a joint gathering of the two parlors.

At the January 24 meeting of Paradise Parlor No. 282 NSGW, Huntington Beach with an attendance of only a score and without previous advertising, the sale of war bonds was begun and bonds to the amount of $2750 were sold as well as $33 in saving stamps.

February 14 the parlor was entertained by S. J. Tuffree with his motion pictures which are both interesting and instructive. He has some splendid films of the war, including action on Midway, Wake Island and the African campaign as well as some peaceful ones of a trip into old Mexico, all of which were greatly appreciated. Tuffree is a member of Mother Colony No. 281, Anaheim.

Petaluma Parlor No. 27 NSGW held their annual turkey dinner in Danish Hall, followed by a joint meeting with Santa Rosa Parlor No. 28 upon the occasion of the official visit of Grand Trustee Webster K. Nolan. Sonoma Parlor No. 111 and Sebastopol Parlor No. 143 were also represented. Carl Plow of Petaluma was the presiding officer. The guest of honor addressed the parlors of the Sonoma district on the development of a plan, whereby native born men in the service would be offered membership in the Order by signing a certificate. He said in part: "I urge, therefore, that the Sonoma parlors of the Native Sons, through their delegates, enter Grand Parlor at San Jose in May, with a proposition that all fighting sons of our state be made members of this Order by certification, to the end that the lantern in the western window of California shall be a light in their own home. . . . "

A complete resume of activities of the parlor so far this term was read by past president and publicity chairman, Gertrude Briggs.

The parlor voted to purchase a $100 bond to further help the fourth war loan drive and adopt another baby, naming her Mary in honor of the grand president. This brings the number of babies adopted by Vallejo Parlor to six for this term.

Official Visit

Twenty-seven new members were initiated in honor of Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg's official visit to Junipero Parlor No. 141, Monterey, February 4.

A formal dinner was held in the Patio room of Casa Munras, followed by the meeting and initiation at Pythian Hall. Visitors included PGP Bertha Briggs of Copa de Oro Parlor, SDDGP Vyra Albaugh of Aleli, DGP Joan Giamona of Junipero and Isabel Fages of Los Angeles. Eight parlors were represented among the thirty-nine guests.

Pythian Hall was decorated appropriately with potted palms and large baskets of flowers in the colors of the Order, arranged by Ethel W. Hyde and her committee. A large illuminated "V" was placed over the president's station and the Victory theme was further carried out by the officers and escort team who carried golden V's, with streamers of red, yellow, and white, and silver V's with streamers of red, white, and blue, respectively.

At midnight a candlelight buffet supper was served at small tables set with central figures of Fray Junipero Serra, the work of Clara Scholes, chairman for the supper, assisted by Helen Atkin. The parlor voted the adoption of a baby girl, to be called Elmarie Bertha in honor of President Elmarie H. Dyke and Dr. Bertha S. Heath, who helped make the project financially possible.

A surprise announcement to Mrs. Dyke was that Junipero Parlor is sponsoring her for an office in Grand Parlor. Mrs. Dyke has been active in Native Daughters for 25 years, having been a member of Amapola Parlor for many years. She is also state chairman of publicity.

The Grand President was presented with attractive bookends by Past President Clara Brown, and Mrs. Dyke sang a song of tribute to her. The following day the grand president was interviewed on the Japanese question by a representative of the "Monterey Peninsula Herald", and received praise for the fine work of the Native Daughters from Anne B. Fisher author of "Cathedral in the Sun" and an authority on California history and the Missions.

The warmth and friendship of a Native Daughter gathering inside the meeting room dispelled whatever gloom existed out of doors when Fremont Parlor No. 50 and Linda Rosa Parlor No. 170 NDGW entertained Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg the evening of February 1. In spite of the stormy weather, nine parlors were represented and the following distinguished guests were present: Past Grand Presidents Orinda Giannini, Evelyn I. Carlson, May Himes Noonan, SDDGP Loretta Cameron who is also deputy to Fremont and Amanda Felt, deputy to Linda Rosa, both members of Twin Peaks Parlor. The floor work was done in a creditable manner by both parlors, with President Abigail Groome of Fremont and Margaretha McGowan of Linda Rosa presiding. The parlors also reported on their activities. The grand president complimented the parlors on their splendid work and especially on their effort to fill the meeting hall in spite of inclement weather.

The room was bright with greens and corsages of early spring blossoms were presented to the guests. Following the meeting hot coffee and doughnuts were served.

Daughters Installations

Miss Elsie Fisher was installed president of San Jose Parlor No. 81 NDGW, January 27, succeeding Tillie Guardino who has served in that capacity two consecutive terms. The affair was made a happy social event with friends and relatives of the members witnessing the ceremonies conducted by Deputy Sue Engfer. The color scheme for decorations was blue and white accenting a nautical effect attained in the hall and banquet room. Draperies of red, white and blue bunting, and a display of miniature battleships proved very attractive and the favors were tiny ships.

Officers wearing white formals with blue corsages of violets, formed an anchor when presentation of gifts were made to President Fisher, Past President Guardino and Deputy Sue Engfer. Pearl Bishop was chairman of arrangements.

Preparation for the celebration of the parlor's golden jubilee is being made, with Kathryn Nelson and Clara Briggs co-chairmen of arrangements. The parlor will initiate three candidates February 17. Co-operating with the Native Sons, members serve once a month at the USO hut and many are giving their time at Red Cross Headquarters in various departments. More than eleven hundred dollars has been invested in war bonds.

The Poppy Maids, a social auxilliary, meets twice a month at the homes of members, and has proved a valuable asset, fostering sociability, and adding to the parlor treasury. Clarisse Gordon was hostess to the group February 10, providing a charming Valentine party for her guests.

Officers of Bonita Parlor No. 10 NDGW were publicly installed by DGP Grace Loverich and her staff of officers from Menlo Parlor No. 211 January 27. New officers installed were Ulrica O'Sullivan, president; Jessie Blomquist, past president; Dorothy Bank, first vice-president; Bea Simoni, second vice-president; Maude Canvin, third vice-president; Margaret Jory, marshal; Martha Bernasque, recording secretary; Bertha Brown, financial secretary; Agnes Casaretto, treasurer; Evelyn Hefner, inside sentinel; Vera Burbank, outside sentinel; Mamie Glennan, Dorothy Sabin and Thelma Locatelli, trustees; Dolly Jamieson, organist.

As President Ulrica O'Sullivan stood at the altar for the obligation, her sister Mrs. H. A. Clattenberg sang Prayer Perfect, accompanied by Mrs. O. M. Van Duyne. Isabel MacPherson acted as chairman. The short program which followed included a vocal selection by Mrs. Clattenberg and dances by talented young people. Refreshments were served in the banquet hall. During the evening Junior Past President Thelma Locatelli was presented with her past president's pin by Charter Member Mamie Glennan.

At the February 10th meeting of Bonita Parlor No. 10 NDGW President Ulrica O'Sullivan appointed her committees for the ensuing term. The parlor voted to knit wash cloths and donate two card tables for the recreation rooms at Dibble Hospital at Menlo Park. Bonita Parlor is this month honoring its WAVE representative Dorothy Schenk, stationed at Stillwater, Oklahoma.

Officers of Morada Parlor No. 199, NDGW, and Modesto Parlor No. 11, Native Sons, were installed at joint ceremonies January 28. Grand Marshal Ethel Enos of Morada Parlor and Grand Trustee Charles D. Blaine of Modesto Parlor were guests of honor. Refreshments were served by a committee from both parlors at tables decorated with low bowls of white narcissus.

Morada Parlor members acted as hostesses to the servicemen's dance held February 3. Approximately 250 servicemen and junior hostesses attended. This is a weekly affair and local women's organizations take turns acting as hostesses for the dance, each group sponsoring a dance about twice a year. A public whist party will be held together with Modesto Parlor, Native Sons, February 23, and as this is the first party of this term, a large crowd is anticipated. The proceeds from these card parties is used for local charity work and a goodly sum is placed in the Homeless Children fund.

Seventeen members of the Past Presidents club met in the home of Kate Gomes and enjoyed a short business meeting and social hour, February 14. The next meeting will be held March 6.

After the meeting, refreshments were served.

Silver wedding bells were suspended above the refreshment tables, which were attractive with twining smilax, flower arrangements of white, pink nut cups and pink and white tapers.

The bride-elect was also honored with a miscellaneous shower at the meeting of Past Presidents Association No. 13, January 24. At the close of the business session, an amusing original sketch in prose and song was presented by Bertha Briggs and Edna Butterfield, outlining Pauline's romance. Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler asked for the unstinted support of all members for the Homeless Children and Grand Trustee White complimented the parlors on their excellent work. Onions and Gold

BESIDE A LITTLE STREAM in Placerito Canyon near Newhall stands the "Oak of Golden Dreams" under which a man once slept, and upon awakening, found gold on the roots of a bunch of wild onions. The man was Francisco López and the time was March 9, 1842. This was the first recorded and proven discovery of gold in California.

A rush, although on a much smaller scale than that which Marshall's find caused was the result of López' discovery and again in 1843, the fortunate native son found the glistening ore, this time on the college farm near Santa Ynez mission in Santa Barbara county.

San Fernando mission, founded in 1797 was a basic center of operations, and in 1842, Francisco López was in charge of its affairs. His father for whom he had been named, had been a majordomo or general manager when the mission had functioned as such. On the eventful day in 1842, Francisco set out for San Francisco rancho owned by Don Ygnacio del Valle to round up some stray cattle, taking an Indian servant with him. After several hours of fruitless search, he settled himself beneath a huge oak tree, and proceeded to take his customary afternoon siesta. Suddenly he awoke and remembered his wife's admonition to bring home some wild onions. Spying a clump directly opposite his resting place, he jumped to his feet, walked straight to the spot and seized them. The soft, damp earth yielded and the astonished man held onions with roots of gold in his hand. "Oro, Oro, I have gold!" he shouted and as his cry resounded through the little canyon, the Indian vaquero came running to his master. Together they examined the gleaming particles and together rode hastily back to the mission, where the news spread and everyone rejoiced. But the Spanish people cared for the gold only for the good they might do with it and for the jewelry they might fashion from it. Hides and tallow were exchanged for the necessities of life and were considered the medium of exchange. But the fame of the southern California field was not heralded far and wide. In 1843, however, Francisco Garcia, was shown the location of the discoveries made by López and returning to Sonora, Mexico, Garcia rounded up thirty Mexican placer miners and in six months returned with them. Some went to Placerito and others to San Feliciana. At the latter spot, 212 pounds of gold, avoirdupois weight were mined. The weight was determined by the scales of Don David W. Alexander. In the year 1855, he made an affidavit to that effect. José Salazar, one of the men who came with Garcia went to San Feliciana late in 1843. He took $42,000 in gold nuggets from his diggings.

Most important of the documentary evidence of the discovery is a letter preserved in the archives of the Society of Pioneers, San Francisco. It was written by Don Abel Stearns, and says in part:

"I find by referring to my old account books than on November 22, 1842, I sent by Alfred Robinson, esq., twenty ounces, California weight of placer gold, to be forwarded by him to the United States mint at Philadelphia for assay. The placer mines from which this gold was taken were first discovered by Francisco López, a native Californian, in the month of March, 1842." The society also has a letter written by Robinson to Stearns from New York, August 6, 1843 in which he sets forth the mint receipt, reading: "Memorandum of gold bullion deposited on the eighth day of July, 1843, at the mint of the United States at Philadelphia." The value of the bullion after melting and deducting expenses is given as $240.73.

Many old residents corroborated the testimony that Abel Stearns continued to receive gold dust and nuggets for transmittal to the mint for many years. Mining in these regions has never ceased entirely and small placers are still being worked. Cyrus Lyon, who came to Los Angeles as a youth in 1849, was employed by John Temple in his store, located in an adobe building, which later gave place to the Temple block. In Mr. Lyon's daily notes we read:

"I was informed that in 1842, forty-five miles northwest from the pueblo, were discovered the Placerito placers by Francisco López. The same year he discovered the San Feliciana mine." During the years 1857 and 1858, there were no less than 6,000 persons mining for gold in Placerito and San Feliciana placers.

A party journeyed to the scene the day after the discovery and there mass was celebrated in a temporary chapel erected over the spot where the golden treasure had been unearthed. For several years, thereafter on the anniversary, a similar trek was made and all the prominent families of Los Angeles attended, including the Mexican governmental officials. The location has been marked several times and the bronze plaques have been stolen, but one which had been placed by the Native Sons of the Golden West, The Mesa Club of Los Angeles and the Kiwanis Club of Newhall in 1931 was found by the side of the road some place along Highway No. 101 and was replaced on a cement monument in 1942, 100 years after Don Francisco's romantic discovery.

Ships Launched

SHERMAN OTIS HOUGHTON, who arrived in California on a sailing vessel in 1847 was honored February 4 at the yards of the California Shipbuilding Corporation on Terminal Island, Long Beach with the launching of a liberty ship bearing his name. Attending the ceremony were his son Stanley Houghton, Long Beach and his daughter Eliza P. Houghton of Hollywood.

Col. Houghton who died in 1914, had a long and honorable military record, serving his country in two wars, and as a statesman held an enviable reputation. For two terms he represented California in Congress and played a noteable part in settling the Mexican war claims. Col. Houghton was born in the city of New York April 10, 1828. He completed his education in New York and enlisted in the first regiment of New York volunteers for the war with Mexico, and with his regiment came to California via Cape Horn. After participating in many skirmishes in Mexico, he returned at the close of the war to California, arriving in October, 1848. He was one of the first to dig gold in the famous Sonora mining district, but in 1849, he moved to San Jose where he became an active figure in the state's destinies. After serving in several municipal capacities he was elected clerk of a senate committee in the first legislature of California and in 1854 was a deputy clerk of the state Supreme court. On his twenty-fifth birthday he was elected mayor of San Jose.

Colonel Houghton held various military commissions and during the Civil War drilled a company of infantry and another of light artillery for active service in the army. For a number of years he represented holders of land grant titles before the United States Supreme court. As a representative in Congress, he secured the first appropriation for the development of the present Long Beach-Los Angeles harbor. Houghton's efforts are also said to have been responsible for the bringing of transcontinental rail facilities to California. In 1869, Houghton settled on a large ranch near Long Beach of which three acres were donated to the city in 1924 by his heirs as the nucleus for Houghton park.

Houghton's first wife, Mary Donner, died soon after their marriage and in 1861 he married Eliza P. Donner, daughter of George Donner. They were cousins and survivors of the historic Donner party.

The Launching of California Shipbuilding Corporation's 323rd cargo ship named for the late John Dockweiler, former district attorney of Los Angeles and a member of Ramona Parlor No. 109 NSGW took place January 29. Witnessing the christening and launching were scores of Los Angeles political and civic leaders, including Dockweiler's father, Isidore Dockweiler, attorney and prominent Native Son, and Gordon L. McDonough of the Los Angeles Board of Supervisors. McDonough read a brief eulogy and Father James E. Dolan, pastor of the Cathedral chapel, Los Angeles pronounced the invocation. Mrs. William K. Young, sister of the man for whom the 10,500 ton Liberty cargo ship was named christened the vessel and another sister Mrs. Marcus E. Crahan of Los Angels was matron of honor.

Afterward, the guests visited four wards of wounded GI's and one ward of wounded officers. Raffles literally whistled, sang and talked his way into the hearts of all as he perched in friendly fashion on the arms of bed-ridden soldiers and seemed as loathe to leave as the men were to have him go.

Today we hear a great deal of discussion about equality of sacrifice; yet aside from the armed forces, who is making any sacrifice that hurts? Surely no one in this glorious country! The sacrifices made on the field of battle, the loss of life, limbs, health and the suffering of indescribable tortures —all are too tragic for any of us on the home front to forget for one instant. Contributions should be addressed to PGP Carlson at 500 Berkeley avenue, Menlo park, California.

She was approaching her eightieth birthday. She is also survived by her daughter, Marie Brause.

Eleanore Marquand, seventy-five years old, died in her home in Berkeley, Saturday, January 29. She was born in New York and at the age of six months was brought to California by her parents. The journey was made on one of the last ships coming around the Horn. Her parents, Henry and Adelaide Marquand, were identified with Berkeley's development for over fifty years. In 1877 they established a newspaper called the Weekly Advocate which later became the Berkeley Daily Gazette. She leaves a sister and brother.

Margaret Griffith

To the officers and members of Castro Parlor No. 178 NDGW — We, your memorial committee, appointed to draft resolutions in fond and loving memory of our departed sister Margaret Griffith, submit the following:

Whereas, The summons that awaits all mortals has deprived our parlor of one of its lovable and loyal members, past president and treasurer, Sister Margaret Griffith, whose sincere friendship and devotion to her parlor and Order, endeared her to her sister members.

Our hearts must retain a lasting affection of one so true to her convictions of right and duty, a most true and loyal friend, whose virtues endeared her, not only to the members of her parlor, but to the entire community as well. Her's was a noble character, none knew her, but to love and admire her.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days,
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she leaves behind.

And at home in the beautiful hills of God,
By the Valley of Rest so fair,
Someday, sometime when our work is done,
With joy we shall meet her there.

Resolved, That while we mourn her absence from our midst, we bow to the will of God, and extend to her bereaved family our deepest sympathy.

And be it further resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy spread upon the minutes of the parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

MAGNA CARTA FOR WOMEN

By GRACE S. STOERMER, State Legislative Chairman, NDGW.

In the United States Capitol in Washington stands the Adelaide Johnson statue of the equal rights pioneers, Susan B. Anthony, Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Here each year, on February 15, the birthday of Susan B. Anthony is celebrated and grateful tribute is paid to the woman who "changed the mind of a nation." So important has been her contribution to the advancement of women that not only have the governors of twenty-eight states and three territories officially proclaimed her birthday, but a stamp has been issued to honor her as the woman who did more for the women of this country than any other one person in our history. As Postmaster General James A. Farley said, "Through her, the women of America were honored and recognition extended to their social and economic contributions to the building of this nation, which, in its excellence is the envy of the world."

Our own California, too, has not been lacking in appreciation. Through the efforts of a special committee headed by the late Sue Brobst, the Department of Interior permitted a giant sequoia in the Sequoia National Park to be formally named Susan B. Anthony as a living memorial to this beloved pioneer leader.

To those who may be unfamiliar with the life work of Susan B. Anthony and the reason for the acclaim that has been accorded her, let me say briefly that her early interests were in education, abolition, and temperance and it was not until after the famous Seneca Falls Convention of July, 1848, that she affiliated herself with Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott, the first women to attempt a change in the social, civil and religious rights of women. It is difficult for us to realize the status of women about that time. Both the English Comman law and Canon law, the law of the church, classified women as being inferior mentally, physically defenseless, and in the eyes of the church subject to men. At this convention, suprisingly attended by a large delegation of both men and women, although advertised for women only, a declaration of rights, with eleven resolutions, was adopted. It is interesting that of all the women who voted for the resolution to give women the right to vote, Charlotte Woodward was the only woman who lived to cast her ballot in a presidential election.

Miss Anthony read with interest of this meeting and approved all the resolutions except the right to vote, for being a Quaker she did not believe in the ballot for either men or women. Later she came to the realization that it was only through this means that the desired reforms could take place and the rest of her life was devoted to that cause.

It was not an easy struggle and unfortunately to her was denied the privilege of witnessing the fulfillment of her work. It was carried on by others and fourteen years after her death, and seventy-two years from the date of the Seneca Falls Convention, the women of the United States went to the polls full voters.

The casual observer may say that women should be content with the splendid progress already achieved. It is true that many improvements have been made in their status, but one and only one of the rights demanded at the Seneca Falls Convention has been won for women throughout the United States—the right to vote. Do you know there are still a thousand discriminations against women?

In almost every point of the law there exists somewhere a distinction between men and women. Some laws have been enacted because men considered women inferior and others were passed with the intention of helping women—the so-called protective laws. These more often have the effect of restricting their right to work and thinking women are today asking that protective laws apply equally to men and women.

There is an inscription over the entrance to the Supreme Court building in Washington "Equal Justice Under Law," but in reality women, even though citizens, do not have equal rights under the law. Under a democracy there should be no difference in equality between men and women. And because equality is necessary to progress the Woman's party in 1923 introduced in the United States Congress the Equal Rights amendment to guarantee that "Men and Women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction." The amendment has been introduced in every Congress since that time and is steadily gaining supporters.

This Equal Rights bill is the Magna Carta for women. It is simple and direct and fixes the status of women in the Constitution where such rights are guaranteed to men. It stipulates first, that "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex" and secondly that "Congress and the several states shall have power, within their respective jurisdiction, to enforce this article by appropriate legislation". The third provision is that the amendment shall take effect five years after date of ratification. The measure has passed the Senate Judiciary committee and was tabled by the House Judiciary committee October 5, 1943. A discharge petition carrying 218 signatures must be secured to bring the amendment to the floor. Write to your representative in the House asking him to support and sign the petition. He may be addressed at the House Office building, Washington, D. C. Please forward replies you receive to Grace S. Stoermer, State chairman of Legislation Committee, 1124 Bank of America building, Seventh and Spring streets, Los Angeles 14, California.

It is the right and responsibility of progressive minded women to do their part in seeing that the Equal Rights bill becomes a part of our Constitution. They owe Susan B. Anthony a debt that can never be repaid except by continuing the work for which she devoted her life. To her was the vision given and to them has been bequeathed the honor and privilege of completion.

Wednesday evening February 16, Donner Parlor No. 193, NDGW initiated six new candidates. They are: Frances Hansen, Marion Colomba, Wilma Young, Elinore Boltzen, Mrs. M. Vitalie and Mrs. Neuton. Plans were completed for a dance March 4 in Veterans Hall, Brentwood, the proceeds to be contributed to the Homeless Children fund. After the meeting the members entertained a group of soldiers from a nearby camp with dancing and refreshments.

Albany Parlor No. 260 celebrated their birthday with a dinner at the Kona club February 24. Donations have been sent in from each member for the March of Dimes. A shower will be held March 8 for the Homeless Children.

Labor to keep alive in your heart that little spark of celestial fire called conscience. —George Washington.

Benicia has had a very strong religious development. The first Protestant church in California, the Benicia Presbyterian church, was established there April 15, 1849 by Rev. Sylvester Woodbridge. The first Catholic church in Benicia was opened in 1852 as a mission by the Dominican fathers and in 1854 was made a parish. A few years later the Dominicans located their novitiate and house of studies there. In 1854 St. Catherine's convent was moved to Benicia from Monterey, and the sisters opened St. Catherine's academy. One of the nuns who took up her residence there was the famous Doña Concepcion Arguello who died in 1857 and is buried in the convent garden.

The following quotation which describes Benicia in 1850 is taken from Walter Colton's, "Three Years in California":

"This town on the straits of Carquenas has the advantages of a bold shore, a quiet anchorage, and depth of water for ships of any size. Even without being a port of entry, it must become in time a large commercial depot. The small craft which float the waters of the Suisun, Sacramento and San Joaquin, and which are ill-suited to the rough bay below, will here deposit their cargoes. It has been selected as the most feasible site for a navy yard, and the army stores are already housed in its quay."

In the above quotation Colton has given an added reason for the failure of Benicia to outdistance San Francisco. That is the fact that it was not a port of entry. It had been planned by Semple and Larkin that the government would make Benicia a port of entry for Aliens entering the United States through San Francisco Bay. Had this been done the development of Benicia would have been stimulated greatly. This was a question of politics, however. Senator William M. Gwinn was strongly opposed to the idea and advocated the retention of San Francisco as a port of entry. The government followed his recommendations in the matter.

Benicia Parlor No. 89, NSGW, was first instituted August 14, 1886. After twelve years it was dissolved because of lack of interest by the Grand Parlor in 1898. On December 8, 1943 Benicia Parlor No. 89 was again organized and with the historical background of the city there is no doubt but that this parlor will perform a great service in carrying out the aims and objects of the organization.

Deport Disloyal Japanese

By WALTER H. ODEMAR, Grand Parlor Chairman on Japanese Legislation—NSGW.

Elsewhere in this issue there is printed a resumé of the business done on January 29, 1944 by the Committee on Japanese Legislation of the Native Sons of the Golden West. From that resumé it can be seen that the committee's session was an interesting one and that a definite policy on current topics relating to the Japanese was developed and adopted.

One of the essential matters described at that meeting was the proposed initiative measure to be submitted to the electors in 1944, to amend the Alien Land law. As soon as that initiative has been finally printed and its terms again presented to the members of the committee for final approval, it is planned to send one or more of the petitions to every parlor so that the members of our Order may become familiar with the initiative and also be given an opportunity to assist in obtaining signatures to place it on the ballot.

This writer has recently contacted Attorney General Robert W. Kenny and commended him for his action in enforcing the Alien Land law, and in answering, Kenny requested that any person in the State of California having any information or tangible evidence regarding the ownership or occupation of farm lands by Japanese, not a citizen of the United States, should present that evidence to the attorney general's Los Angeles office. Any citizens having information which would be of advantage to the State of California in its prosecutions under that act, which information may not be known to the authorities, is urgently requested to present that information so that further prosecution for violation of the Alien Land law may be successfully completed. Send such information to Everett W. Mattoon at the Los Angeles office of the Attorney General of the State of California.

Another of the important subjects discussed at the meeting was the matter of disenfranchising and deporting persons of Japanese ancestry who have been disloyal to the United States or have failed to swear allegiance to this country. In contrast to Attorney General Biddle's recommendation to Congress your committee feels that American citizenship and the right to live within the United States is a privilege and an honor and that no person should be begged, urged, or cajoled into pledging his loyalty to this country and that those Japanese who have heretofore failed to express their allegiance to this country as well as those who by word of mouth or act have shown that they are disloyal, should be disenfranchised as American citizens and deported as soon as is possible. They have had ample opportunities and if they have not as yet seen fit to express loyalty, then a promise in the future cannot be trusted.

It is urged that all parlors pass a resolution urging Congress to pass laws calling for the deportation of those who have heretofore failed to take an oath renouncing loyalty to Japan, its Emperor and its Shinto church, as well as those who have been proven disloyal to the United States.

Your committee thought it well to again ask Congress to exert its influence to have the War Relocation centers taken from the control of the War Relocation Authority and its head Dillon S. Myer, and place the same under the control of the United States Army or the Department of Justice. Since our meeting, the President of the United States has placed the W.R.A. under the control of the Department of Interior.

Too much emphasis can not be placed upon opposition to those who are even now advocating a negotiated peace with Japan as soon as we have won on the European front, and the committee again has asked the members of Congress to exert their influence against such a negotiated peace. If we do not finally and completely vanquish the Japanese militarists in this war, then in a very short time we will again have to face a Nipponese enemy. It is the opinion of your Committee on Japanese Legislation that it would be much cheaper in dollars as well as in lives to complete the job in the present war and take all steps possible to prevent the militarists from ever again coming to power in Japan.

The members of the committee appreciate the suggestions that they have received from many of the members of our Order, and solicit and will welcome suggestions from any one interested in this problem, for the members know that through the collective opinion and efforts of all of the members of our Order will the things for which we stand be best achieved.

Alameda Sons

Under the able direction of SDDGP Miller C. Markey and in conformity with the grand president's program to hold joint meetings for official visits wherever possible, the parlors of Alameda county of district five arranged for the official visit of Grand First Vice-president Raymond D. Williamson with Claremont Parlor acting as the host in their meeting hall, 4313 San Pablo avenue, Oakland, February 15, 1944.

Over two hundred members of the following parlors participated: Alameda Parlor. No. 47, Oakland Parlor No. 50, Eden Parlor No. 113, Piedmont Parlor No. 20, Halcyon Parlor No. 146, Athens Parlor No. 195, Berkeley Parlor No. 210, Estudillo Parlor No. 223, Pleasanton Parlor No. 244, Claremont Parlor No. 240. The good of the Order program was under the direction of Grand Outside Sentinel Raymond T. Burke who presented Grand First Vice-president Williamson who outlined a program for the continued advancement of the Order.

Grand President Wayne R. Millington spoke briefly about the progress of the Native Sons during the last fourteen months and of the tremendous membership strides taken during that period. La Pascua Florida

By Peter T. Conmy, Grand Historian, NSGW

SUNDAY APRIL 9 will this year mark the coming of Easter. To Christian peoples of whatever denomination they may be, Easter must necessarily be the greatest religious festival of all the year. For this reason the theme of both Catholic and Protestant churches for Easter is well expressed in the words of the psalm, "This is the day which the Lord hath made; let us exult and rejoice therein." (Ps. 117.) Pascua, the Spanish word for Easter, strangely enough, is used to describe three other festivals of the church. The word itself is a derivation of the Latin, Pascha, which in turn comes from the Hebrew and fundamentally means the Pasch or Passover. In most languages based upon Latin this word or some corruption of it is used as the name for Easter. The Spanish have four days, in all, to which they apply the word, Pascua. First there is Pascua de Espiritu Santo (Pentecost); Pascua Natividad (Christmas), Pascua de los Tres Reyes (Epiphany or Three Kings) and finally, Pascua Florida or Easter. Indeed the word, "florida" itself came to indicate and connote Easter for the Spanish, and our sovereign sister state bearing that name was so-called because it was discovered by Juan Ponce de Leon on Easter in 1513.

La Florida, the feast of flowers; La Pascua Florida, the flowered feast of Easter! What an interesting combination, flowers and Easter! Among the Anglo-Saxons and Teutonic peoples of northwestern Europe the goddess of Spring was Ostara, from which source our word, Easter, originates. Ostara was worshipped by her followers by an annual festival in which flowers and blossoms played a symbolic part, indicating the return of vegetative life destroyed by the oncoming winter. Our ancestral word builders transferred this symbolism to the resurrection of Christ after they accepted Christianity, and the flowers heretofore used to worship the pagan goddess were now used to signify the victory over death represented by the resurrection. The Spanish, too, had this same association of the use of flowers to typify Christ's victory over death. Perhaps they had it in a more accentuated form than their fellow Christians in other countries because for seven hundred years prior to the discovery of America by Columbus the people of the Iberian peninsula were engaged in intermittent warfare. Culture was forgotten and economic progress impeded. Interests were narrowed down until but two only were left, war and religion. Coming to America and settled in California these two interests persisted in milder forms. The old interest of warfare gave way to the new economic imperialism of which California was a unit. The former interest in religion continued in zeal to spread Christianity among the Indians. Life in early California, therefore, centered around the church represented by the mission. The activities of the church followed the calendar of feasts, and as Easter was the feast which outranked all others it was, therefore, the most important day in all the year.

Religious observance in common with all other efforts is conditioned by the intelligence of the participants. The mental state of the California Indians was, therefore, a factor which controlled the Easter celebration. The Franciscans at an early date recognized their special problem. They saw that no eloquence would convert. They appreciated the fact that perfect conversion and complete civilizing must take a long period of time; that the Indians must adopt in a slow and plodding but nevertheless penetrating and persevering manner, the mode of life of the white men. To this end and purpose they were coaxed into living at the missions. This goal was not difficult to achieve because the Indians preferred the easy non-competitive economy of the mission routine. Fundamental religious notions were taught by constant monotonous repetition such as "Blessed be God, Blessed be God, Blessed be God." This, said dozens of time each morning and evening might finally bring the concept to the full realization of the savage.

The Indian was very much impressed with the ceremonies of the mass and the vestments and willingly co-operated in the building program. Likewise he co-operated in the decorative program, and the remnants of the missions show painting done in them with Indian paints made of berry juice. For the Pascua Florida, therefore, the Indian did his best to bring garlands and flowers of beauty to decorate the altars. This was one manner in which primitive minds could make a definite contribution.

For the most part the Indians ate simple food, which was a combination of their own and that of the Spanish. On great festivals they banqueted, as it were, because rations of beef were given out. On these same occasions, too, the Indians were permitted to play their own games and conduct their traditional dances, provided, of course, the padres did not find any elements of pagan worship contained therein. The Indians of California were not a religious lot. The most religious tribes were those of the Colorado River region. Therefore, the padres permitted many of the games and dances of the tribes. These were played in an accentuated manner on La Pascua Florida.

Richard Henry Dana visited San Diego on Easter Sunday 1836 and gives a vivid picture of what he saw. Unfortunately he did not go ashore from the ship until the afternoon and, missed the church services. He found the city engaged in a carnival. In his "Two Years Before the Mast," he says:

"The people were all dressed in their best; the men riding about on horseback among the houses, and the women sitting on carpets before the doors. Under the piazza of a pulperia two men were seated decked out with ribbons and bouquets, and playing the violin and the Spanish guitar. " . . . Having returned to the town, we saw a great crowd collected in the square before the principal pulperia, and riding up found that all these people—men, women and children, had been drawn together by a couple of bantam cocks. . . ."

In addition to the sights described above Dana states there was to have been a bull fight but the bull escaped. There was a horse race and the evening closed with a great dance. At times there were, in addition to the amusements mentioned above, plays depicting the resurrection either in fact or spirit, and containing humor. The following quotation from a German traveler who spent Easter at Mission Dolores in 1849 is illuminating:

"Easter was approaching; and all sorts of preparations were made at the mission, especially a thorough cleaning and ventilating of the church took place. . . . An old settler informed me that 'today the Resurrection of the Lord would be celebrated and Judas Iscariot would be duly chastised'. Even the Indians seemed to feel the influence of the festival to be celebrated. At all events they were seen cleanly washed; and all wore blue water lilies. ...Thus ornamented they formed a procession, and at the tune of a violin they marched into the church. . . . After the service a shot was fired on the outside, which was the signal for everyone to rise and leave, and witness the torturing and execution of a stuffed figure representing Judas."

There may be some doubt in the mind of many that sacred things of religious history should be dramatized in a humorous way. This was considered by Walter Colton, Protestant chaplain of the United States Navy who served as Alcalde of Monterey 1847-1849. Referring to these humorous plays he points out that while human beings are subject to dismay, "there is a higher life which is never outcast; a spirit home where sorrow and change come not. Thither let the weary lift the eye of faith, and forget the cares which environ their pilgrimage here."

The Franciscan fathers, however, tried their utmost to emphasize the spiritual values of Easter. To this end and purpose the Indians were commanded to receive the sacraments of Penance and Eucharist (Communion) during Easter time. Fearful that this policy need reiteration the Father President Fermin Francisco Lasuen on January 14, 1798, issued a circular ordering that this be stressed and that the names of those who failed to comply be sent him so that he might bring about punishment. The Fathers, however, applied these rules with a good measure of common sense. In many cases they deemed the Indians unworthy of the Eucharist and so told them not to receive that sacrament. This is brought out by certain correspondence by Father Senan of Ventura Mission who wrote that he would certify that all his Indians had made their Easter duty even though many of them had not received the Eucharist, for the reason that those who failed to receive on the advice of the priest were fulfilling the law of the church. That there was no fanaticism in connection with Easter or any other feast is well brought out by Bancroft* who says

"At Easter (pascua florida) all had to confess and take sacrament and assist at doctrina. Each received from the padre a paper which showed that he had complied with church duties that year. When one reached the age for confession this was no longer requisite or at least was not compulsory. Still, they performed their duties in obedience to the wish of their parents, although the government did not meddle.

It can be seen, therefore, that the older Indians accepted the faith and lovingly passed it on to the younger ones who took it as a precious inheritance. Around that faith there grew up many traditions and customs. There were many holy days. But the one which brought the greatest joy both spiritual and civic to the early Californians was La Pascua Florida, the Sun-

The Children's Corner

"Would ye learn the road to Laughter-town,
Oh ye who have lost the way?
Would ye have young heart, though your hair be gray?
Go learn from a little child each day."

"Dutch" Comes Home

From time to time you have read in the "Children's Corner" the quotations from letters of foster parents and of foster children. The affection, understanding, and sympathy of both parents and children have been a source of true satisfaction to those engaged in the work of bringing them together.

In this issue, we are for the first time quoting from one of hundreds of letters received from natural parents who, through the assistance of the Native Sons and Native Daughters have found a way to permanently care for their own children. This above all is a source of satisfaction to those who have been able to guide the way toward avoiding permanent separation. The letter is dated March 12. We quote:

"Dear friends: It has been such a long time since I have written to you that I want to write again to tell you that after having "Dutch" home with me for the past eighteen months I still say 'thank you' in my heart many, many times for having helped me to keep him with me.

"Right now I have a good job with the Government at the ..... Army Base and even though I shall be compelled to board the little fellow six days in the week, I have found a true mother to care for him for those six days, and son and I make up for the separation when I bring him home on Friday nights. I am enclosing a snapshot of my boy and even if it is not a good print it will let you see what a healthy child he has grown to be. Thank you again from two very happy persons. Sincerely yours. . . ."

Central Committee

The Committee on Homeless Children met Friday afternoon, March 17, in the offices of the Native Sons and Native Daughters Central committee. Chairman Martin J. Dinkelspiel called the meeting to order. Other members present were PGP Hazel B. Hansen, NDGW, Past Grand Presidents Charles A. Koenig and Harmon D. Skillin, NSGW, and Edward J. Wren. Vice-chairman PGP Mae Himes Noonan and PGP Emma Lou Humphrey, NDGW, and Father Lenane sent regrets of their inability to attend. The members are hoping to welcome Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss, chairman of the Los Angeles Joint committee the first part of the new fiscal year. The usual business transacted, auditing of bills, and various problems were discussed.

Baby Chest

A pink and blue decorated chest filled with dainty baby clothes to be presented the Homeless Children Committee at Grand Parlor was the center of attraction at the last meeting of Vallejo Parlor No. 195 NDGW held March 15. Kathryn Fitzgerald was responsible for the clever way in which the chest was decorated. Donations were voted for the Red Cross and the Mare Island Naval hospital occupational therapy ward. In this ward patients are taught new skills and are encouraged to use injured parts as much as possible. This was the parlor's second donation to this worthy cause. Following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed. Irish songs were rendered by Mrs. Alice Gallagher, who also led the parlor in community singing of favorites of old Erin. St. Patrick's decorations were used throughout the meeting hall and in the banquet room where refreshments were served.

DONATION

San Diego Parlor No. 208 NDGW made a generous donation to the Central Committee on Homeless Children made possible by the untiring efforts of Past President Lena Baines, chairman, and her committee. Emily Welch, chairman for ways and means and her committee will sponsor a spring anniversary card party April 11.

The Officers club met in the home of Isabel Young for potluck luncheon March 6. Lena Baines was co-hostess. The Sewing club met in the home of Alice Damarus on March 21. Members of the parlor are looking forward to the official visit of Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg, April 25. It will be an evening meeting at Vasa club house and a dinner will precede the meeting.

TRIO OF BABES

Grace Parlor No. 242, Placentia, NDGW raised thirty-five dollars to contribute to the Red Cross drive and adopted three more babies, making a total of seventeen. The last three adoptions were made possible by the following five members: The adoption of Charles Roger, named for Lieut. Charles Rothaermel in the armed forces overseas, was financed by Mary Rothaermel; Jackie George for whom Christine McFarland and Rena Johnson supplied the funds and John La Warren previously adopted and paid for by Erna Marie Watts and Jeanne Barks.

POPPY SALE

Coalinga Parlor No. 270 NDGW, is proud to announce that through their Poppy sale, February 26, members were able to send a check for $108 to Mary E. Brusie for the Homeless Children committee.

A six weeks old baby is being adopted through the Homeless Children committee by Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Lewis, Mrs. Lewis is Third Vice-president of Coalinga Parlor. The baby, Donald Michael, was brought to his new home about two weeks ago, and since it is the first baby to be adopted by a member of Coalinga Parlor, members are almost as proud and happy as the new parents and honored Mrs. Lewis with a lovely shower March 7.

Deputy Grand President Molly Rice of Avenal Parlor visited Coalinga Parlor March 13. Two new members were initiated. The Deputy was conducted to her seat of honor by the escort team and was presented with an arm bouquet. Delicious refreshments in the St. Patrick day motif were served after the meeting.

NAME BABES

Annie K. Bidwell Parlor No. 168 NDGW, Chico, voted to name their two recently adopted babies Alice Ellen and Earl Kay. The former name was selected in honor of the local parlor's President Alice Richardson and SDDGP Ellen Crowder. The parlor donated fifty dollars to the Red Cross and a dancing party was planned for members and guests for the near future. Four new members will be initiated at an early meeting. Elizabeth Carpenter, Red Cross Camp and Hospital chairman, reported the furniture for three day rooms ready to be sent to its destination.

First of all, he has a wife and a baby; together they ought to be worth $500,000 to any man. . . . A. Lincoln.

A good thing to remember and the better thing to do, is to work with the construction gang and not the wrecking crew.

For State and Country

Stanford Parlor No. 76 NSGW, San Francisco has had news of the following members in the service: Lieut. Bob Borrman, stationed in Italy is pilot of a flying fortress. He is the recipient of the air medal and has completed nine successful missions, having flown over the Alps and the Danube river. Past President Gene Dumont, attached to the 91st division in Oregon recently married a Corvallis, Oregon girl. Lieut. Elton C. Lawless, USNR paints a vivid picture of the often romantically portrayed South Sea Islands: "Brothers, erase from your minds, all those fantastic romantic ideas you had about the South Sea Islands, moonlit nights, gorgeous sunsets and coral beaches! Let me set you straight. You have blazing heat, then rain; more blazing heat and then more rain. Turn the lights on and you are immediately surrounded by millions of bugs and insects of every description. But all in all, I am having a grand experience, for which I know I will never be sorry." And Lieut. Harry Lawlor writes: "Where we are is strictly native but the routine is easy and we're near the ocean and swim every day (orders) and develop sun-tan later." Lieutenant Elmer Collett, USNR attended a recent meeting of Stanford and related some of his experiences in Aleutian waters.

Commander H. E. Barden, USNR executive officer and past president of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267, NSGW, Santa Monica wrote the following interesting letter to Mrs. Clarence M. Hunt, February 25:

"My dear Mrs. Hunt: The November issue of the 'Grizzly Bear' brought the sad news of the death of your good husband, Clarence, whom we all loved and respected. Please accept my heartfelt sympathy and convey my condolences to your children. The eulogy delivered by Frank Tyrrell was most deserving and expressed the feelings of all Native Sons who knew Clarence.

"I can remember how much I enjoyed his visits to our parlor, when many years ago I was president of Santa Monica Bay No. 267. Clarence was usually on hand for all special events and we always enjoyed visiting with him and listening to his sage remarks concerning the welfare of our beloved state and of the Native Sons of the Golden West .

"I am sorry that war conditions made it impossible for me to be present at Los Angeles to pay my last respects to our deceased brother.

"Since September 1940, I have been on active duty with the Navy and after two years of service at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, I have been busy placing in commission and operating a large ship, which is one of the important units of the Pacific fleet. At present, we are located somewhere in the broad expanse of the Pacific Ocean and are putting forth every effort to keep the fleet pushing on toward Tokyo. Feeling as he did toward the Japanese menace, I am sure that Clarence would be happy today if he knew, and perhaps he does, that we are actively on the offensive and have already many times over repaid the Japs for their dastardly attack on Pearl Harbor.

"Please remember me to my old friends including Eldred Meyer, Walter Odemar and Bernard G. Hiss, if you should happen to see them. Sincerely . . ."

San Jose Parlor No. 22 NSGW reports having heard from the following members in the service: Pvt. John O. Toler who is stationed in Albuquerque, New Mexico says it is hard to realize how much the Native Sons means to one until he is away from his brothers. Mario T. Pera writes he expected to be headed for the officers' boot camp at Parris Island in South Carolina by March 1. After twelve weeks' training there, he expects to attend officers' training school at Quantico, Virginia.

Lt. John M. Burnett, USNR personel officer writes from an unknown station. He says in part: "I disembarked some Jap prisoners of war a few weeks back and they were a pretty sorry looking lot—they had evidently been told they were going to be drawn and quartered and then burned over a slow fire by the Americans and seemed to be very agreeably surprised when they found all that happened to them was to be taken to a prisoner of war stockade. The Jap officers with them could speak English and they made you mad with their hissing, subserviant. 'so sorry please' attitude."

Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 NSGW received a letter from Pfc. James F. Johnston, who is in England. Among the mail which was the first he had received in six weeks was his parlor bulletin. He said, "If all the bombers I see every day are hitting their targets this war shouldn't last very much longer." Lawrence E. Beimer, AS-USMM completed his training at Avalon on the day he received his membership certificate. S/Sgt. Dwight H. Williams, stationed at Tonopah, Nevada writes he received his Christmas package. Charles Vatcher has a new rating, that of Yeoman, third-class. He and Bob Roth discuss the "good old stags" they once enjoyed with their brother members. MM 2/c Jack Tosetti, USN wrote from the Aleutians thanking the parlor for his Christmas gift and Dean Trollinger, now in Virginia is proud of his new rating, that of AMM 3/c, USN. Mo MM 1/c G. Leon Gregory, USN says he has many sea stories to relate when he returns. He has been overseas fifteen months with no time off.

Ensign Warren R. Wenz, stationed in San Diego and Pfc. Lowell E. Milligan stationed at Fort Dix, N. J. were welcomed at the February 16 meeting of Arrowhead. John Ellis, AOMB 3/c, USN and Mark Watterson were present at the February 9 meeting. Ellis is stationed in San Diego and Watterson at Camp Howze, Texas.

Piedmont Parlor No. 120 NSGW, Oakland welcomed member Pvt. Frank P. Smith to their meeting February 17. He gave a very interesting talk on the training of a Marine. For the next fourteen weeks, he will be attached to QM school, after which he will receive an assignment. Cpl. Harold Brennan has been transferred from Oregon to Southern California. The parlor has three members who have recently entered the service: Ralph Figuera, one of the parlor's top buglers, entered the Navy the last of February; Walter Butler, also of the Drum and Bugle Corps has joined the Navy and Al Meyers is now a Marine. Cpl. Herbert Cramer was a February visitor, his outfit having been transferred from Illinois to Southern California.

There is no restraining men's tongues or pens when charged with a little vanity.
—George Washington.

Miss Dorothy Wyatt, daughter of Treasurer Thomas Wyatt of Pacific Parlor No. 10, San Francisco is earning an enviable record for herself in the service of her country. She has received a commission of Senior Lieutenant in the Spars, which is comparable to the rank of Captain in the army. A V-mail letter received from Fred Murphy, QM 2/c USN, thanked the parlor for his "special brand" of cigarettes. T/S Joseph Ryan of the Army Air Corps was home on furlough from Florida last month. Lieut. Jackson Nichols returned to the East Coast after a recent furlough and found he would be stationed near Boston instead of sent overseas as expected. Ensign Bob Hayes, USMM has returned from the South Pacific after having been on the scene of action in the invasion of the Island of Roi. He met Carl Otterberg in that theater. Others seeing service in the South Pacific are C. James Lydon, Tp 2/c USN and Fred V. Gernandt, USMM. Cpl. William R. Daly, past president of Pacific Parlor is now stationed in Washington, D. C.

Observatory Parlor No. 177, NSGW has received letters from the following members in the service: Eugene Jung writes from his training center in New York; Andy Malovos, stationed in England describes that country very vividly in two V-mail letters; Grant O'Neil is drinking in some New Orleans hospitality; Dave Klose has seen action in many theaters of World War II.

PORT SECURITY FORCE

Proof, if any were needed, of their love for California is being demonstrated in San Francisco, where three Native Daughters are serving as volunteers in the San Francisco regiment of the Volunteer Port Security force, an integral part of the United States Coast Guard.

The three, Wilhelmina Hopper, Yerba Buena Parlor No. 273 and a member of the Crown and Scepter patrol; Grace C. Sanford, Guadalupe Parlor No. 153 and Regina Warr, are serving a minimum of twelve hours per week with the regiment.

Wilhelmina Hopper, a great grandmother, was inducted into the regiment, September 8, having attended the first Coast Guard Training Institute course for temporary reservists. She is a seaman, first class.

Grace Sanford, who also participates in the San Francisco Hospitality House for servicemen and servicewomen, likewise attended the first training school. She now wears the red chevrons of a yeoman, second class. Her brother, John, is in the Merchant Marine.

Mrs. Warr became a seaman, first class, in special induction ceremonies held at regimental headquarters, March 7. She is a driver in the motor corps.

Passage by the Seventy-seventh Congress in November, 1941 of the Coast Guard Auxiliary and Temporary Reserve Act permitted Uncle Sam's oldest military arm, the United State Coast Guard to enlist for the duration of the war, men and women civilian volunteers to help guard America's ports. The Coast Guard, Temporary Reserve is unique in the history of our nation.

All enrollees serve a minimum of twelve hours per week, without remuneration. Women wear an especially designed uniform of Navy black, with matching garrison cap and topcoat. A miniature Coast Guard insigne is worn on the cap and on the right sleeve, a silver Coast Guard shield.

The best way to get a bad law repealed is to enforce it strictly.

Native Daughters of the Golden West

The Lord Is Risen!

Easter — the Sunday of joys — the day when churches are perfumed with fragrance of white lilies and echoing with the strains of music! Easter — the feast of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, a day symbolical of the renewal of hope; when the thrill of the age old message fills every heart with gladness. "The Lord is risen!"

The hope that is born this Easter in the hearts of every American is that peace will soon reign again. Men will talk of these days in the years to come as the age before which all others pale when one thinks of the wickedness and atrocities of this war. Some will say we are living in the age of heroes, for heroes are decorated with medals for missions performed "above and beyond the call of duty". Their pictures and names will be emblazoned across the front pages, but there are other heroes whose numbers are legend who fight at home. They are wearers of unseen medals who are fighting on the more quiet fields of peace.

As you go to church this Easter, say a prayer for that boy who sat beside you in the pew last Easter — that boy who has no tomorrow. Say a prayer for that boy whose mission is finished in order to insure you of your tomorrows, enjoyed in the security of democracy and high ideals!

—Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg.

Burlingame Parlor No. 274 joined with Menlo Parlor No. 211 and El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, NDGW in honoring Grand President Mary Noerenberg March 15, at Daly City. The hall and banquet hall were beautifully decorated in white and green for St. Patrick's day. The escort team from the three parlors were dressed in white, wore green aprons and carried staffs topped with four leaf clovers. They read Irish verses as gifts were presented to the Grand President, the supervising deputy and the deputies and when it was Burlingame's turn, Muriel Lambert carried the gifts and Adeline MacGregor recited poems in her Irish brogue. There was a large gathering of Native Daughters and a most appetizing banquet was served.

Copa de Oro Parlor No. 105 NDGW at a recent meeting adopted resolutions protesting the return of the Japanese to the Pacific coast and favoring the preservation, strengthening and developing of free competitive enterprise. The meeting was adjourned in memory of Katherine McCray.

Victory Garden

Vitamin Vic, king of the victory garden bestowed a gift on Grand President Mary B. Noerneberg, when she paid her official visit to Ontario Parlor No. 251 and Lugonia Parlor No. 241, NDGW San Bernardino jointly at Ontario March 3. The novel presentation of money used in many ways in the attire of Vic whose body was fashioned of vegetables was cleverly done by the officers of Ontario Parlor who entered the room wearing sun bonnets and large straw gardening hats and carrying shining new gardening tools.

The meeting was an outstanding one, held in Memorial Hall, with nine candidates being initiated for Lugonia Parlor. The Grand President cited many instances of gallantry and bravery among lay people as well as those in the actual service of their country and drew a parallel between the courage of the pioneers of California and those who today face the perils and sorrows of war both on the field of battle and on the home front.

Other visitors were Grand Trustee Anne Schiebusch and PGP Grace S. Stoermer of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, PGP Hazel B. Hansen of Verdugo Parlor No. 240, Glendale; former grand trustee, Florence Dodson Schoneman, Rudecinda Parlor No. 230, San Pedro, affectionately called the "mother" of Lugonia Parlor; Adelina Marshall, Santa Ana Parlor No. 235, deputy to Lugonia Parlor and Rena Churchill of Lugonia Parlor, deputy to Ontario. Opening and closing ceremonies were conducted by Lugonia and initiation was exemplified by Ontario with presidents Marjorie Hogan of the former and Lillian Graves of the latter presiding.

The Victory garden theme was used in the decorations of the meeting room as well as on the tables at the Casa Blanca Hotel where a dinner was tendered the grand president preceding the session. Lugonia Parlor's officers were attired in white formals and wore red carnation corsages while, Ontario Parlor girls wore vegetable bouquets of their own making and offered the money they otherwise would have used for flowers for the Annie L. Adair Scholarship fund. The Grand President and other visiting grand officers as well as the nine candidates were presented with gardenias, flanked with yellow jonquils.

The Public Whist Party held February 23 by Morada Parlor No. 199 was an outstanding success, both financially and socially, over 200 persons enjoying an evening of cards and dancing. These parties are held monthly and the proceeds used for charity work.

Twelve members of the Past Presidents club met at the home of Ethel Enos with Julia Stutchman, Katherine Kopf and Kate Gillette as co-hostesses, on the evening of March 10. Games and Bingo playing were enjoyed and refreshments were served on individual, decorated trays. The next meeting will be held on April 3 in one of the homes of a committee member. The Sewing Club has been meeting regularly twice a month at various members' homes; a business meeting and sewing bee being preceded either by a dessert or a potluck luncheon.

Four members of the Morada Junior Native Daughters, Unit No. 5, journeyed to Turlock on March 13 and assisted Grand Marshal Enos in the installation of the officers of Eldora Junior Native Daughters, Unit No. 14. Nineteenth Birthday

Rudecinda Parlor No. 230, NDGW, San Pedro held a regular meeting February 23 and received some interesting reports. Katharine Dodson, chairman of Americanism reported that $3110 in war bonds were sold the two days the parlor had charge of the San Pedro Victory House. A donation of ten dollars was made to the San Pedro Polio Clinic. The parlor regretfully accepted the resignation of Grace Boddie as marshal. Following the meeting, refreshments were served by Chairman Dessie Buyo, assisted by Martha Miller, Edna Hickey and Dorothy Gligo. The tables were decorated with silhouettes of George Washington and nut cups resembling tree stumps with small hatchets attached.

The parlor's nineteenth birthday was celebrated March 8, when all past presidents were honored in a novel way—that of opening the meeting.

Florence Schoneman was chairman and Katharine Dodson, acting president. Others were Lucy Ascolesi, Katharine Mooney, Margaret Kreider, Letitia Sarciaux, Carrie Rogers, Marcella Sandoval and Dessie Buyo. The acting president turned the gavel over to President Mabelle Simpson and the officers assumed their stations for the transaction of business and initiation. Evelyn Putnam was inducted into the parlor and a donation of twenty-five dollars was made to the Red Cross. Following the meeting, the lights were dimmed and a large cake decorated with shamrocks and "Happy Birthday" was wheeled into the room on a portable table with lighted tapers. The cake was the gift of Florence Schoneman. Marcella Sandoval served the refreshments including a tasty tamale pie which she had baked.

March 16, the Florencita Thimble club met in the home of Catherine Morris. The hostess was assisted by Florence Blanke and Juanita Brooks in serving a delicious luncheon.

Largest Class

Thirty new members, the largest class to be inducted by any parlor up to the time of the official visit of Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg were received into El Tejon Parlor No. 239 NDGW, Bakersfield, February 18. A banquet preceded the business meeting with seventy-five present. Many Native Sons honored Mrs. Noerenberg with their attendance at the dinner. The table decorations were red, white and blue candles, flags, and flowers, with a cherry tree forming the centerpiece.

The meeting was held in the Woman's club with Cletha Alippi, president, presiding. Mrs. Walter Kane, deputy to El Tejon was also an honored guest. The Grand President was escorted to her seat of honor by the parlor's escort team and when introduced, delivered an inspiring message, outlining the projects of the Order. Favorable reports were presented by standing and special committee chairmen.

A very successful poppy day was held in Bakersfield even though the members participating were drenched in the rain storm. Mrs. David Jones was chairman and President Cletha Alippi and two new members, Mary Sandrini and Evelyn Destefani brought in the greatest number of sales.

The young women's activity group is active, having sponsored a breakfast jointly with Native Sons the last Sunday of each month, and an old fashioned box social with Native Sons was held March 8. Husbands, wives and friends were invited. A moon-light hay ride and barn dance is planned for May. Finally, this energetic group announces they will form one of the largest and best escort teams ever assembled for El Tejon Parlor. Lucy Supertino heads the young womens activity group.

Historian Speaks

Robert Glass Cleland, noted California historian and director of research in this field at Huntington Memorial library, San Marino was the speaker at the monthly luncheon meeting of Californiana Parlor No. 247 NDGW March 14 in the Women's University Club, 943 S. Hoover street, Los Angeles at twelve noon.

The History and Landmarks committee with Ysabel Monroe as chairman served a delicious tamale luncheon. Charlotte Carpenter and Edith Adams presented the program. March 6, the Gertrude Sewing circle of the parlor met in the home of Ora Evans and spent the day making small garments for the Homeless Children. A tea honoring Florence Irish, prominent charter member followed the March 28 business meeting. Isabella Granz, hospitality chairman was in charge of the four o'clock program and tea.

Saturday afternoon, April 29, Californiana will honor their own distinguished member, Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg when she pays her official visit. The meeting will be held in Elks Temple, 607 S. Park View, Los Angeles at one o'clock, with a civic tea to follow between the hours of three and five. City, council and state officials are being invited to greet the Grand President. A fine program is being planned.

A Night In Ireland

Twin Peaks Parlor No. 185, NDGW honored SDDGP Loretta M. Cameron and the San Francisco county deputies at their regular meeting March 14. The "Kindergarten Group" of the parlor presented a skit entitled "O'Malley's Tavern," followed by accordion selections and dance numbers by members of this talented group.

Delightful refreshments were served by Deputies Merle Sandell, Amanda Felt and Genevieve Ames.

Station Wagon Fund Drive

A special bulletin has been sent by State Chairman of War Activities, Margaret A. Kerr, Native Daughters to the 81 members of her state-wide committee, and to parlor war activities committee chairmen, asking donations toward a station wagon for the American Red Cross. The vehicle will be used in transporting donors from outlying areas to the Red Cross blood bank.

No provision has been made for such vehicles, which are very essential if California's quota is to be maintained and countless battle casualties saved. Miss Kerr especially appeals to those who are over age, or for health or other reasons cannot personally contribute directly to the blood bank. This is their opportunity to participate by enabling others who will gladly respond.

It is hoped that the Order may purchase a station wagon for northern California and one for southern California, as traveling blood banks can only operate in a very limited radius from the blood processing centers in Los Angeles and Berkeley. San Joaquin Valley Native Daughters have also expressed a desire for a station wagon to operate in that area also, as the need there is great. Further, if station wagons are in the possession of the Red Cross blood banks, they can then fill in unused portions of their days by bringing donors from industrial centers, where the time factor frequently prevents other modes of transportation. Miss Kerr states that if possible, it is planned to purchase a convertible type of station wagon, which may be used as ambulances should other emergencies arise.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, and Santa Ana Parlor No. 235 led in the authorization of funds for this project, with Verdugo Parlor No. 240, of Glendale, Marguerite Parlor No. 12 of Placerville, San Diego Parlor No. 208, Betsy Ross Parlor No. 238, Centerville; San Jose Parlor No. 81, Dolores Parlor No. 169, San Francisco and Sebastopol No. 263 following in close procession.

Jitney Dinner

That the committees of the new Placerito Parlor No. 277, NDGW, Van Nuys, are off to a flying start, was proven March 14, when the Americanism committe with Chairman Marjorie Pitts, put on a "jitney" dinner preceding the meeting. A great many members and their families attended, as well as guests from other parlors and the dinner was a real success from every standpoint.

Chairman Dolly Garaventa, of the Homeless Children committee, reported a successful meeting had been held at her home, and plans were completed for the layette that will go to Grand Parlor. Gowns were cut from the bolt of flannel donated by Lottie Clark, a member of that committee and it was suggested that members work on them at home. The chairman announced the next meeting will be held in her home and extended an invitation to all members of the parlor who would like to come and sew.

Members and officers of Miocene Parlor No. 228, NDGW, Taft, held their monthly business and social meeting March 15. Following the initiation of a new member, Mrs. G. Short, the chairman of war activities called on the members to support activities as outlined by her committee. Members volunteered another cash contribution to the local Red Cross. The appeal for funds for a station wagon, for the use of blood donors received strong support.

Recruit WACS

Capt. Madelyn Jennings

America celebrates Army day, April 6, with prayer, rejoicing and sorrowing and the Native Daughters War Activities committee, with Margaret A. Kerr as state chairman has designated April as a statewide WAC recruiting period and the month in which they will honor members in that branch of the service. The Native Daughters of the Golden West are taking their places with the Native Sons of the Golden West in the rolls of war heroes. The first all-California contingent of WACs has already been commissioned and now marches proudly beside other units of our military forces carrying the Bear flag of "California's Own". Many of these women are serving in the Air-WAC, a branch of the army devoted to the fiying forces.

The job of recruiting women in Southern California, falls upon the slim and very young shoulders of the lovely Capt. Madelyn Miller Jennings, a University of Southern California woman who has put aside her college studies and social activities for the grim task of war.

One of her recruiters is a native of California. She is Betty Peden, who was born in Lindsay, and was a graduate of Santa Barbara State college. She is the daughter of the late John D. Peden, who for many years was foreman of Orville Clark ranch at Bakersfield. Native Daughters who are interested in joining this branch of the service or who have prospective recruits in mind, should contact Miss Kerr in her office, 356 S. Broadway, Los Angeles, suite 504 or apply directly to Capt. Jennings, 610 South Main street, Los Angeles. Members are asked to inform the recruiting officers of their membership in the Order.

Saddened Hearts

Preceding the regular meeting of March 9, the members of La Reina Parlor No. 267, NDGW, Los Angeles, enjoyed another lovely dinner prepared by President Orabelle Schmidt, Genevieve Anderson and Cecelia Valenzuela. Just as the members were retiring to the meeting room, their hearts were deeply saddened by the word just received that another Native Son had given his life for his country. Otis Page, member of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45, NSGW, husband of Third Vice-president Anna Page, and father of member Beverly Page Little had been killed in action in the Southwest Pacific. Mr. Page was serving with the Seabees. A tribute to his memory was given March 23.

Formal Opening

Reina del Mar Parlor No. 126 NDGW and Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116, NSGW participated in the formal opening of the historic de la Guerra adobe in Santa Barbara, as the new headquarters for the Chamber of Commerce by serving as hosts and hostesses. The Santa Barbara county Chamber of Commerce is one of the oldest civic organizations of its kind in California and now occupies the west wing of the landmark. The de la Guerra property was established in 1813 by Don José de la Guerra y Noriega who came to Santa Barbara in 1806 as a lieutenant of the presidial company. He married Maria Antonia Juliana, only daughter of the third commandante, Don Raimundo Carrillo. The west wing of the family mansion was built for and occupied by Don Miguel de la Guerra, a brother of José. Miguel installed his bride, the beautiful Trinidad Ortega there.

Mrs. Mabel Irwin, a descendant of the pioneer Maris family, and Mrs. William A. Birss, Chairman of California History and Landmarks and both past presidents of Reina del Mar Parlor, were co-chairmen of the hostess committee. They were aided by Thomas McDermott, president of the Native Sons, and Paul G. Sweetser, president of the Santa Barbara County Historical society. Tea was served in the front garden with women of pioneer families and civic leaders presiding at tea, coffee and punch tables. Among those serving were Mesdames Josefa de la Guerra Savin, Edgar Stow, T. Wilson Dibblee, John Russell Hastings, Roy E. Gammill, Fred Wendel, Joe Sears, Patrick J. Maher, Paul Stewart, George Tackaberry, John Russell Hastings, Paul Sweetser, Thomas McDermott, Elbert S. Conner and James F. Dorrance; Dr. Anna E. March 8, President Vivian Brown and her corps of officers, attired in formals with green aprons and perky bows in their hair initiated Gabriel Beas. Dainty refreshments were served on tables decorated with St. Patrick colors. Past Grand President Evelyn I. The members of the parlor were highly in accord with the suggestion and voted to raise their share of the expense by holding a rummage sale in the near future.

Buena Vista Parlor No. 68, NDGW, San Francisco, entertained with a St. Patrick's party and amateur night March 16. Chairman Lillian Dowling arranged a number of comedy stunts for the program. Some of those participating were President Martha Field, Mary Growney, Vera Root, Myrtle Ritterbush and Georgia Nelson of Castro Parlor. Do Not Fail To Vote!

By Walter H. Odemar, Grand Parlor Chairman Japanese Legislation Committee, NSGW

The vigorous protests by the residents of southeastern Delaware against the importation or "resettlement" of hundreds of Japanese in that portion of our country and the continued objection of the citizens of Ohio to "resettlement" in that state indicates that the people in other sections of our country are at last beginning to recognize the existence of a potential danger in Japanese colonization.

The Native Sons of the Golden West, and the majority of representatives now in Congress from the Pacific Coast states, have long contended that the Japanese evacuated from this strategic war zone should be retained in the War Relocation Centers until after this war has been won and not sent to colonize any part of the United States.

During the war, sound and well considered legislation must be enacted which will provide for the wholesale deportation of Japanese as soon as the war is over and at the expense of Japan. All alien Japanese, and those born in the United States, who by word of mouth or by deed have shown they are disloyal to this country, and all those who failed in their first two opportunities to declare their allegiance to this country should be deported. Japan, who sent so many of them here and paid the traveling costs of countless thousands of them, should be made to bear the cost of their return to the place too many of them call their homeland.

Our contention is not heartless, nor is it contrary to the principles of American democracy, as is so often said by those who have not studied the facts or who choose to ignore them. On the contrary, it is good sound Americanism and for the best interests of all concerned. Is it undemocratic or un-American to send a person back to the land he prefers, where its ruler is a god worshiped by that individual? Is it un-American to demand that the people living in this country be true to it? Is it un-American to demand that those illegally in this country be deported to the country from which they came? And what is un-American in insuring our domestic tranquility, providing for our common defense, promoting our general welfare and attempting to secure those blessings for our posterity?

On the 16th of May, the day the Native Sons Grand Parlor convenes in San Jose, the people of this state will nominate candidates for senator and representatives for each district. This writer is not interested in any particular person or political party in this or in any other connection with the work of the Committee on Japanese Legislation of the Native Sons of the Golden West, however, it is urged that every citizen of this state take an extraordinary interest in the elections this year to make certain that representatives are elected who will represent the best interests of this state, and of our country.

Every voter should find out how the various candidates would vote on the vital questions relating to the Japanese. If your favored candidate is not certain in his opinion on these matters, endeavor to convince him of the necessity of his voting in accord with the long standing convictions of our Orders which are now those of the vast majority of the people of this state. If he can't be convinced, then vote for a person who will vote in Congress for our best interests and for the welfare of American posterity.

No one can now truly represent the people and vote in Congress contrary to those principles for which the Native Sons and Native Daughters have contended so many years.

Every true and loyal native son or native daughter will vote for the candidate who most nearly approximates the views of our two Orders on the various vital and all important Japanese questions. Doing that, he or she will be doing his or her bit for state and country.

As was stated by Wayne R. Millington in his "Grand President's Corner" for March, those attending the convention in San Jose from other counties should arrange to vote by absentee ballot. Such a ballot may be obtained by making a written application, signed by the voter, with the county registrar of voters of the county in which the voter resides, at any time between five and forty days before election. A ballot with full instructions of the procedure to be followed will be mailed to all applicants. Let no one fail to vote!

Member Mourned

FRIDAY evening February 25 Las Flores Parlor No. 262 NDGW of Avenal, Kings county met in regular session. Besides the regular business of the evening there were the sad rites to perform, in draping the charter for a departed member, Evelyn Givanolli Martin. She was born in Alhambra, Los Angeles county, February 11, 1922, and departed this life February 12, 1944. The early days of her childhood were spent in the city of her birth, moving with her family to Huron at the age of ten. After residing there for seven years she came with her parents to live in Avenal. Here she remained until the time of her early passing.

June 12, 1940 Evelyn Givanolli was united in marriage with John Martin. To this union one child was born, a daughter who was sixteen months old at the time of her mother's death.

Mrs. Martin was initiated into Las Flores Parlor December 18, 1942 and held the office of treasurer at the time of her death. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Los Angeles, February 14.

Besides her husband and sixteen months old daughter, she leaves to mourn her loss her parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Givanolli, her sister Lucile of Avenal and a brother William in the armed forces.

OFFICERS of Copa de Oro Parlor No. 105, NDGW, Hollister, held impressive ceremonies at the Grunnagle Funeral Home for Organist Katherine McCray with sixty members present. At the regular parlor meeting, a brief memorial service was held with the eulogy delivered by PGP Bertha A. Briggs. A bowl of white flowers was placed before the charter and at Kate's accustomed station at the piano stood a floral arrangement of golden daffodils.

Peace and friendship with all mankind is our wisest policy, and I wish we may be permitted to pursue it.

—Thomas Jefferson.

LIBERTY PARLOR No. 213 NDGW, Elk Grove, mourns the death of Charter Member Emma C. Baker, who passed away February 25. She is survived by her daughters, Ethel I. Baker of Sacramento and Mrs. Leland Kimball of Arcadia and sons, Lester A. Baker of Elk Grove and Clarence N. of Sacramento; her brother, Nelson W. Chisholm and a sister, Willetta Hastings both of Sacramento and several grand-children.

DELIA C. SHELL, a member of Dardanelle Parlor No. 66, NDGW, Sonora, Tuolumne county died February 20. She was born on the Calder Ranch near Confidence and spent her entire life in that county with the exception of a few years' residence in Mono county when her late husband was in business there. Mrs. Shell resided with her nephew Riley Gilkey and is survived by three other nephews and one niece. Officers of Dardanelle Parlor read the Native Daughters burial ritual in the chapel.

Evelyn Roselund Martin

To the officers and members of Las Flores Parlor No. 262 NDGW—We, your committee, intrusted with the sad duty of drafting resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed sister, Evelyn Roselund Martin, submit the following:

Whereas, The Great Sovereign of the Universe, in His divine wisdom, has called our dear sister, Evelyn Roselund Martin, who passed from this life February 12, 1944, and

Whereas, Las Flores Parlor has lost a devoted worker and faithful member, and

Whereas, The loss of this sister, who had such a lovable disposition, will be keenly felt by this parlor, her loving husband and family, let us say: she is not dead but only waiting in another room.

Therefore, Let it be resolved, that our heartfelt sympathies be extended to her bereaved husband and family.

Be it resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication, and that they be spread upon the minutes of this parlor. Let us say:

And so there is no sting to death
And so the grave has lost its victory
It is but crossing with abated breath,
And white set face a little strip of sea,
To find the loved ones waiting on the shore,
More beautiful, more precious than before.

Respectfully submitted,
ELFREIDA LOWE,
DOROTHY MAIN,
GEORGIE DILL.

Whereas, The precious ties of love, friendship and fraternity, again have been suddenly severed, and our hearts are filled with sorrow at parting with our beloved Sister, Mary E. Wilbur.

Whereas, In God's loving providence, we have been asked to give up one of earth's dearest gifts. The sudden breaking of golden threads is only another of the many mysteries that surround us, but we are assured that for each mystery, there is a key, and that sometime we will understand.

Resolved, That we extend our sincere and deep sympathy to her family. May they find much comfort knowing that the world was made better by her living in it, and the spirit of kindness she exemplified in her daily life, will stand as a memory that time cannot erase.

Resolved, That a page of our records be dedicated to her memory, a copy sent to her family, and a copy sent to the Grizzly Bear Magazine.

For Love is Eternal.
May this thought comfort you
And console you in your loss.

PHELAN BEQUEST

The State District Court of Appeal in San Francisco recently upheld Judge Edward P. Murphy's decision that a $25,000 bequest from the late Senator John D. Phelan be equally shared by the Society of California Pioneers and the Grand Parlor NSGW.

The bequest was made for erection of a monument atop Telegraph Hill, but when the building of Coit Tower rendered this impossible, trustees of a $1,000,000 fund left by Phelan for chairtable purposes, contended the money should revert to them. The Native Sons plan to use their share in marking historical California sites and the pioneers will expend theirs in the collecting of "Californiana".

ABOVE IS the first title cover plate of the Grizzly Bear Magazine which was issued for the first time in May, 1907, thirty-seven years ago. The elaborate blue and gold cover was a work of art. Again, the Grizzly Bear wears a blue and gold cloak, commemorating its anniversary and reiterating its policies.

Two years after the "Bear" had made its advent into the world, Clarence M. Hunt salvaged it from pending bankruptcy and with the loving care of a father toward his child fostered and nurtured it. Through the many years he fought the battles of the Native Sons and Daughters in its pages and when he died October 7, 1943, he had just put the October issue of the Grizzly Bear "to bed". Even though his physical strength was ebbing, his will was strong and he would not give up until the magazine had gone to press. We pause here, in memory of a man of indomitable courage who worked untiringly for The Native Sons and Native Daughters.

The Native Sons in session in Napa, unanimously passed a resolution, adopting The Grizzly Bear Magazine as the official publication of the Order, April 22, 1907.

"Whereas, A monthly magazine named the 'Grizzly Bear' is being published in the interest of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West and of California, and

"Whereas, Said 'Grizzly Bear' is being published by a corporation, all of the capital stock of which is now, and will always be owned by members of this Order, now therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the 'Grizzly Bear' magazine be, and the same is hereby indorsed and adopted as the official organ of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West."

The first issue of the magazine carried a "salutation" reading as follows:

"The Grizzly Bear salutes you and growls forth a declaration of principle and purpose. Born of unselfish devotion to the State of California, this magazine will stand a patriotic guardian of the interests name and honor of the Golden Commonwealth.

"Politically, this publication will maintain an immutable independence, unequivocally the implacable foe of unclean and malicious methods in public affairs.

"The Grizzly Bear will at all times advance the truth and earnestly support every wholesome effort to improve the moral and commercial welfare of municipality and state. A vigorous champion of our great fraternity, when right; this magazine will be its severest critic, when wrong.

"Firm in the conviction of a righteous cause—opposed to dissension and sordid ambition—with the lofty traditions of the days of '49 ever before us, we emphatically declare for one state, inseparable, now and forever!

"With enmity toward none and friendship for all, the Grizzly begins its career. Desirous of no higher reward than strength and ability in the performance of duty, with honor to the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West and credit to the state."

The first editor of the Grizzly Bear was J. Rush Bronson and J. L. LeBerthon was the business manager. Among interesting items found in the May, 1907 issue, is the declaration of the Native Sons against an attempt to divide the state.

"The Grizzly Bear informs all who care to know that the Native Sons of the Golden West as an Order, are unanimous upon this subject and will positively fight state division. We recognize no north, no south, but one united commonwealth and will oppose determinedly and fearlessly to the last trench any attempt to disrupt the state founded by our fathers . . ."

"Forget all personalities and cast selfishness into the nearest scrapheap," the editorial continues. "Work for California —not half it—all of it!"

An article headed "Our Western Defense" deplores the lack of fortifications on the West Coast. William M. Mason, the Washington representative of the Army and Navy Journal referred to our defenseless condition in 1907 in this way:

"This article is not written for the purpose of betraying military secrets; it is to let the American people, who have been kept in ignorance of the true situation, know how utterly defenseless their big cities, teeming with business that makes the United States the greatest commercial nation in the world, would be in case there should be some unforeseen hitch in the peace-maintaining work of the state department, and there should suddenly be a declaration of war against us by one of the big military and naval powers.

"With perfect confidence that no one having knowledge of the situation will be forthcoming with a denial, the assertion is made here that there is no reason today why a powerful and energetic enemy could not toss shells from his men-of-war into any of the large coast cities of the United States. This fact is known to Japan, to Germany or France, to the military authorities of every nation with which this country might some day find itself at war. . ."

The Asiatic Peril is described by Jerome A. Hart, although the article is aimed principally at the Chinese, but one paragraph is particularly significant. ". . .The Chinese are slowly diminishing in numbers; the Japanese rapidly increasing. If, we, the sons of California, remain sluggish and innate at this crisis, our State in not many years will have become as Hawaii is—a Japanese colony with a small minority of white Americans. For, according to the official estimates, Hawaii now contains 70,000 Japanese and only 20,000 whites." The author concludes with the exhortation:

"Let them (the Native Sons) not now permit their birthright to pass away from them! Let them not now permit their native State to be overrun by hordes of Asiatics, however skilled these Mongols may be in the arts of peace or in the arts of war!"

Prestige and Power!

By Grand President Wayne R. Millington
Native Sons of the Golden West

Prestige and power are two words to be instilled into the consciousness of every Native Son. An organization, like the individual, is known by its deeds, and by its accomplishments does it acquire prestige and exercise power.

This Order has both now! Both are increasing! When the voice of the Native Sons speaks, its suggestions are hearkened. Its influence is felt! Never in its history has the Order been charged with ulterior motives; even though the principles it enunciated have not always been received with unanimous acclaim. Though a cabinet officer recently accused us of being "inhuman, un-Christian, brutal and bestial," in our opposition to the Japanese, our motives in so acting are not impugned as being founded on anything (according to him, and other critics) other than racial projudice and bigotry which are mild terms indeed!

We have dedicated ourselves for many years to many projects; notably, to an anti-Japanese program; to our Homeless Children project and to our maintenance of history fellowships at the University of California.

It must be obvious that we cannot be all things to all people. Let it suffice that we have chartered our course and that we will adhere to it, to the successful conclusion of its objects.

People group themselves together to attain common goals. We must assume, that in the Native Sons of the Golden West, those who have affiliated with us have done so to accomplish things they, as individuals could not do. Frankly, we cater only to those who have similar ideas. Those who do not feel as we do, should, to accomplish their purposes, group themselves with persons who think their way. We welcome the co-operation of organizations who feel as we do, and will vigorously oppose those who do not; even though we respect them for sincerely endeavoring to promulgate their ideas.

We will attain a greater prestige and resultant power by a fearless exposition of our plans, principles and projects and by a vigorous and energetic effort to make them successful. Even in the event of a loss, we will insure a respect for our integrity, sincerity and vigor. Whenever we lose, we go down fighting!

Incidently, we don't often lose!

When this Order doubles and triples its present membership, as it inevitably will, visualize, if you will, what power of good we will have. Certainly your pride of membership will be greatly enhanced and your appreciation of its value increased.

Tremendous strides were made in the past year to attain that goal. A substantial net increase in membership, the largest since 1920. Eleven new parlors were instituted in 1943-44. Present apparently noteworthy accomplishments will be made insignificant by the increases of the next few years. If we materially increase during this period, what limit can there be to what we can accomplish when thousands of Japanese-fighting native Californians return?

In the East we are recognized as the force that rules the State of California. Though this is hardly true, nevertheless it will convey to you the concept in the Eastern mind of the strength of our Order.

Let's make it true!

Grand President Wayne R. Millington

The success of any organization, in my opinion, at least, depends upon its participation in current affairs. No longer is the man of today interested in the affairs of an archaic group.

I do not advocate, in fact, I should strenuously oppose any move to discard the fundamental principles involving the perpetuation of the tradition of the pioneer; or that we cease to function as a historical association or as a land-mark preserver. Certainly, no organization has basically a more substantial foundation than the Native Sons of the Golden West. We are inextricably bound to these functions but in the sense that we form the link between the past and the future. We are the present! Our solemn duty is to preserve the memories and glories of the past era to protect and prepare for the future.

We are founded on the principle of patriotism and concerned with loyalty. We are imbued with the belief that the Constitution, the ideals and principles of its makers and our form of government are right. So long as this Order lives we shall dedicate ourselves to the preservation of American ideals and institutions. If they fall, we fall with them; but only after a bitter fight!

We will be confronted with many controversial subjects. One of the foremost will be a negotiated peace with Japan. When the war in the European theatre is won, as it surely will be before very long, a hue and cry will be heard all over this country for "Peace now" with Japan. Yet, anything short of unconditional surrender is but a prelude to a war, more horrible than the present one, in the course of another generation. Japan is instilling her Japanese philosophy among conquered Asiatics. A young mind of any race can be taught, if caught early enough. Fail to throw Japan back to its own little group of islands and prepare to sacrifice our next generation! It will be difficult to make that decision when your boy or your neighbor's is in the Asiatic theatre. Would you save some of this generation and invite a national fight for survival with a strong possibility of extinction in the next, or finish the job now?

The problem of juvenile delinquency is one of the most vital before the country today. The effects of the demoralization of our children will be observed for years to come. The increase in such delinquency is alarming and is engaging the attention of forward looking groups, of which the Native Sons is one. We are taking the position of endeavoring to ascertain the causes of delinquency and to prepare a plan to prevent it. Under our sponsorship, a contest will be held in the public schools for the purpose of learning from teen-agers themselves what causes it. We will make a very substantial contribution to the welfare of our country in this work.

Let "activity" be our watchword! Let us never cease to devote our energies to do those things which reflect credit to the individual and honor to our Order. The participation of our ever growing membership in the activities of our Order means only one thing—the fulfillment of our desire that this be the most outstanding Order in the State of California—known for two things—the worth of its projects and the sincerity of its members.

Convention Hall

Instrumental in San Jose's acquiring the enviable title of "The Convention City" is its modern Civic Auditorium, located on the northwest corner of Market and San Carlos streets. The site of the building was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Montgomery and was valued at $113,000 when presented to the city free from any encumbrance or restriction on July 6, 1933 and on October 22, 1934, Mr. T. S. Montgomery, donor of the site, turned the first shovel of dirt in the ground breaking exercises, and actual construction was started.

Of early California and Spanish architecture, the building rose rapidly until former Governor Frank F. Merriam wielded the trowel at the laying of the cornerstone November 11, 1935. Enclosed in the cornerstone were numerous relics and documents. The mammoth building was officially opened April 14, 1936. The main auditorium measuring 118 by seventy-nine feet, has a seating capacity of 3,330 persons.

Large quarters in the northeast section of the building house the San Jose Chamber of Commerce, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Convention and Tourist bureau, and the offices of the Civic auditorium. To the left of the main lobby on entering the building, is Dunne Hall, capable of seating 400 persons for business sessions and conventions. To the right of the lobby is Montgomery Theater, so named in honor of the donors of the site. Sessions of Native Sons Grand Parlor, May 16, 17 and 18 and Native Daughters, June 12, 13 and 14, will be held in this splendid auditorium.

Office Will Close

The office of the grand secretary will be closed from Tuesday morning, May 16 to Friday morning, May 19, as the Grand Secretary and assistants will be at San Jose attending to secretarial and other work in connection with the Grand Parlor.

If your Parlor has anything urgent to take up with the office, please communicate in time so that the letter will reach the Grand Secretary by Saturday, May 13, that the same may be taken care of.

Parlors should instruct their delegates to return their credentials properly signed both by the secretary and the delegate, to the office by May 13, or take the credentials with them to the Grand Parlor and hand them to the Grand Secretary or his assistants there. The delegate cannot be seated unless his credentials are on file.

The Children's Corner

"Would ye learn the road to Laughter-town,
Oh ye who have lost the way?
Would ye have young heart, though your hair be gray?
Go learn from a little child each day."

Yours Truly!

WE'VE BEEN adopted, each one of us and we like it. We thank the Native Sons and Native Daughters for helping us to find our mothers, dads and homes.

We hope we'll be members of Native Sons and Native Daughters parlors some day.. We know you want us!

Appeal from the Ring

A recent benefit for the Homeless Children held by Alameda County parlors netted more than $600, with Piedmont Parlor No. 120 NSGW being responsible for more than $100, and more will be contributed from the Parlor's general fund. March 29, one hundred Native Sons and Native Daughters appeared at the Civic auditorium arena in Oakland and took up a collection between the semi-final and main event on Promoter Tommy Simpson's card. Bernie Abrott of Berkeley Parlor No. 210 made the appeal from the ring. Announcement of the amount realized has not yet been made.

Shower for Mary

Albany Parlor No. 260 NDGW, Albany, honored Mary Brusie with a Homeless Children shower in March. Peggy Aguayo was chairman and a lovely array of tiny garments were strung on a line extending across the banquet room, while a table was piled high with more gifts. A generous donation was also proffered the honoree. March was the anniversary month of the parlor, the members celebrating their ninth birthday with a dinner at the Club Kona, with Hazelett Taylor as chairman. Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler was the guest of honor. Louise Romero joined the parlor in March and Lois York, June Johnson, Lorraine Cerelli and Betty Mae Owens were initiated April 26.

A sizeable donation was sent to the Red Cross and six members contributed to the blood bank in February and March, while the sewing club is busy making pillow cases destined for prizes at a whist party being planned for May. Six lap robes have been sent to the Naval hospital at Oak Knoll and six more are being made. A donation has been made to the Red Cross station wagon fund and a veteran of the South Pacific at the Naval hospital in Oakland and eight members of the blind home have been adopted by the parlor.

Committee Elects

The Los Angeles county Joint Homeless Children committee met April 20, at 1832 South Hope street, Los Angeles, and re-elected Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss as chairman. Vice-chairmen are Augustus Ellsworth of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267, NSGW, and Grand Trustee Anne Schiebusch of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124; Eugenia Smith, supervising deputy of district thirty-seven is the secretary; Flora Holy, member of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, is the treasurer and Florence Grass, past president of La Reina Parlor No. 267, has been elected financial secretary.

Esther Ragoon and Ed Freese were co-chairmen and their committee members are to be congratulated for this splendid showing.

Children Cheered

Each month the veterans welfare committee of Golden Gate Parlor No. 158, NDGW, San Francisco, visit with the boys in Fort Miley and Marine hospitals. Usually a bingo game is enjoyed after which candy, cookies and cigarettes are distributed. The parlor welfare committee mindful of the youngsters who were not able to participate in the Easter festivities took Easter baskets to the children in Ward seventeen of San Francisco hospital.

The drill team met at the home of Edna Erney, April 3, for their regular business meeting. The evening was spent making scrap books, many of which were completed and will be given to boys confined in hospitals. Reports of committees find several members have visited the blood bank and others make regular visits to veterans hospitals taking home-made cookies. It was agreed to resume drilling shortly.

April 10, the parlor had a surprise party for a recent bride, Edna Meinen Levy, who was the recipient of a gift from the parlor.

FOR THE HOMELESS

At the past two meetings of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230, NDGW, San Pedro, with President Mabelle Simpson presiding, plans have been discussed for making money for the Homeless Children committee. A rummage sale is planned for May, a portion of the proceeds to help in the purchase of the station wagon to be used by the Native Daughters throughout the State for Red Cross work.

At the April 12 meeting, the refreshment chairmen, Florence Blanke and Rose Fields, provided delicious salad and sandwiches. The table was cleverly decorated in the Easter motif. Juanita Brooks made the centerpiece, which consisted of a large white chicken encircled with yellow cotton baby chicks. Gayly colored Easter eggs were placed about the table.

On April 29, at the Women's club in San Pedro, the members of Rudecinda Parlor and Stephen M. White Parlor with their husbands, wives and friends enjoyed a real old time get together.

First Families of San Jose

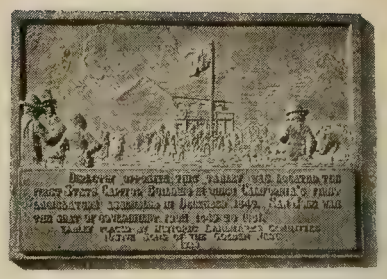
By Peter T. Conmy, Grand Historian, NSGW

MY OLD SPELLER of grammar school days contained the following quotation, "The true test of civilization is not the census, nor the size of cities, but the kind of men the country turns out."

If the foregoing is true; if the civilization of a country is derived from its men, it follows that the character of the individual men are to be found coming from their families. The modern world in its attempt to solve its perplexing social problems such as juvenile delinquency too often resorts to legislation and institutionalization, forgetting that the true basis of all successful group life is the family. That California is today a great state and that she has within her boundaries great cities such as San Jose where the sixty-seventh session of the Grand Parlor will convene in May of this year is due to the fact that there has been a tradition of good family life handed down from an earlier day. It is the purpose of this article to trace in a brief way the story of some of the early families of the Santa Clara Valley.

Entering the present City of San Jose from Santa Clara and moving along the Alameda one passes the Hester school. What memories this name recalls! Craven P. Hester was born in Indiana, May 17, 1796, and came with his wife to California in 1849. He was fifty-three years of age at the time and had been married for thirty years. This couple was considerably older than the average settlers. They camped during the winter of 1849-50 in the Feather River country, but settled in San Jose in the ensuing spring. Hester's ability as a lawyer was recognized at once and in October, 1850, he was elected district attorney. In the next year he became a district judge and served for many years on the bench. The Hester family became one of the foremost families of San Jose.

Another early settler of San Jose, no longer thought of in connection with that city because of his later residence in Stockton was a German immigrant, Charles Maria Weber. Born in Bavaria in 1814, he came to the United States in 1836 and to California in 1841. At first he worked for General Sutter but in 1842 he settled in San Jose going into partnership with a Frenchman, William Gulnac. These two prospered in mercantile endeavors. In 1844 Gulnac received a grant to land in the San Joaquin valley near Stockton. In 1845 he sold this to Weber, who developed it but maintained his home in San Jose until about 1850. Weber married Helen Murphy, daughter of Martin Murphy. Their family was raised in Stockton but they also made contributions to the early San Jose.



James Frazier Reed, a member of the Donner Party, settled in San Jose with his wife and family of four children in 1846. Two other children were born there. The Reed family was one of the most prominent in the development of the city. James F. Reed held public office before California was admitted to statehood and was instrumental in having San Jose declared the state capital in 1850. He was born in Ireland in 1800 and died in San Jose in 1874.

Perhaps the most prominent family in the development of the Santa Clara valley was the famous Murphy family. Martin Murphy, the veritable patriarch of this group was born in Wexford, Ireland, in 1785. In 1820 he migrated to Canada with his family and in 1840 went to Missouri. In 1844 he assembled his children and grand children and children-in-law and joined the Stevens Party heading for California. They arrived at Sutter's Fort in December of that year. The Spring of 1845 witnessed their removal to the Santa Clara valley. Martin Murphy settled on the Rancho Ojo de Agua de la Coche. This was in the vicinity of the present small town of San Martin which town takes its name from the Christian name of Martin Murphy. Mission Santa Clara was the first Catholic church in the Santa Clara valley, St. Joseph's church in San Jose the second, and St. Martin's chapel erected by Martin Murphy on his own property was the third. This chapel was destroyed by fire in 1877. Martin Murphy died March 16, 1865, leaving many descendants. His sons were Bernard, who settled in Santa Clara county; Daniel who followed suit and later became owner of Las Llagas rancho; James who settled on the Cazadores rancho and John, who served the county at various periods as recorder, treasurer, sheriff and mayor of San Jose. The latter married Virginia Reed, daughter of James Reed of the Donner party. Martin Murphy, Jr., first settled in the Sacramento valley, but in 1850 joined his people in the Santa Clara valley. The daughters of the family and the majority of the sons married into Santa Clara valley families and their progeny live there today under a multitude of names, but the son of Bernard, named for his father and who was only three years old when the family came to the valley to live was one of the most distinguished in point of valuable service. He was educated at Santa Clara college, represented the county in both assembly and senate, became mayor of San Jose in 1873 and was an able and respected attorney.

One cannot mention the advent of the Murphy family and their subsequent settling in the Santa Clara valley without recalling a fellow traveler who also settled in San Jose. This was Moses Schallenberger. He was a seventeen year old boy who came along with the party. He was left with two others at Donner lake to guard certain supplies throughout the winter. The other two men pressed on and he was left there alone until rescued by Dennis Martin in February, 1845. After living in Santa Cruz and Monterey counties he eventually settled in San Jose.

The year 1850 brought to San Jose a distinguished lawyer from Kentucky, the Hon. William T. Wallace. He married Rometta Burnett, daughter of California's first governor. They resided in San Jose for about twenty years. Wallace served as district attorney and as attorney general of California. As a lawyer he figured in many of the most important cases. From 1870 to 1880 he served on the Supreme Court of California and was chief justice for eight years of this period. He later served twelve years as a superior court judge in San Francisco.

Northeast of San Jose is a small place known as Berryessa. This little settlement carries a name that brings sad memories to the reader of history. It is named after Nicolas Berryessa. He served as a soldier at San Francisco Presidio from 1819 to 1830. In 1834 he was given a grant of Milpitas rancho and in 1836 and 1837 served as regidor of San Jose pueblo. The dawn of the American period brought grief to the Berryessas. In 1846 his brother Jose de Reyes Berryessa was murdered near Sonoma by Fremont's men. Another brother was lynched. Finally his claim to Milpitas was not sustained, causing him to lose his mind. Several of his seven sons also became insane. The name Berryessa is today perpetuated by the little village and by Berryessa road which connects it with the city of San Jose.

Among the old Spanish families of Santa Clara county is that of Don Ignacio Alviso whose memory is perpetuated by the small town of Alviso at the southern extremity of San Francisco bay. He was born in Sonora, Mexico, in 1772 and came into California with Anza's colonists in 1775-76. As these people were recruited to colonize San Francisco it is probable that he settled there. In 1799 he enlisted at San Francisco presidio and was stationed there a number of years when he was pensioned because of an injury. He lived in San Francisco until 1837 and then moved to Santa Clara. He was granted the Rancho Rincon de Estero in 1838. Its boundaries followed along the southern end of the bay. From 1840 to 1843 he was administrator of Santa Clara Mission. He died in 1848 leaving six sons and two daughters.

The Castro family, so prominent in the annals of California, is also connected with the Santa Clara valley. Macario Castro was a native of Sinaloa. He became a soldier in 1778 and came to California in 1784. After preliminary service at both San Jose and San Juan Bautista, he was made commissionado of San Jose in 1792 and served as such for two years. After his retirement for disability he continued to reside there. In 1819 his son, Jose Tiburcio Castro served as Alcalde of San Jose.

With so many descendants of old families living in the Santa Clara valley it is not surprising that early in our history there was a demand for a parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West in San Jose. This was met October 13, 1883 by the institution of San Jose Parlor No. 22. Gilroy Parlor No. 81 followed on April 3, 1886. This parlor is no longer in existence. On April 5, 1886, a second parlor was instituted at San Jose, known as Palo Alto No. 82. In later years when a parlor was instituted at Palo Alto this parlor took the name of Garden City No. 82. It consolidated with San Jose Parlor June 9, 1920. Santa Clara Parlor No. 100 of Santa Clara was instituted November 21, 1902 and Los Gatos Parlor No. 124 (no longer in existence) on March 23, 1888. Mayfield No. 166 dissolved in 1912, was instituted November 1, 1890. Three other Santa Clara valley parlors still survive and are in good condition. They are Observatory No. 177 of San Jose, instituted August 13, 1891; Mountain View No. 215, Mountain View, instituted November 28, 1902 and Palo Alto No. 216, instituted December 6, 1902.

The Governor Resigned

By Clyde Arbuckle

The old saying that few holders of high political office die and none resign was disproven when California's first American civil governor resigned. Peter Hardeman Burnett was an unusual man. His entire career was characterized by an incredible sincerity in the discharge of duties, a scrupulous honesty in the payment of debts, and a religious zeal which caused some people to regard him as a "would-be soul saver." In 1851, when he felt he was not giving satisfaction as governor, he resigned without fuss or ado.

Shortly before he left Missouri for Oregon in 1843, an unfortunate business venture saddled him with a $15,000 debt which a simple bankruptcy proceeding would have easily removed. Yet, by 1852, he had paid off every cent of it with interest—some $28,700.

Burnett's inclination to religion was inherited. His whole family reputedly possessed "a religious sentiment that made them enthusiasts in every good cause." Two of his own brothers were preachers, one a Southern Methodist, and the other a Disciple of Christ (commonly called Christian or Campbellite). He himself was originally a Disciple of Christ, but became a Roman Catholic at Oregon City in 1846. He was so enthusiastic over his conversion that in 1860 he wrote a lengthy book on it entitled "The Path Which Led a Protestant Lawyer to the Catholic Church."

To a great extent Burnett's early life and background were no different from that of any other pioneer of his time and place. He was born at Nashville, Tennessee, November 15, 1807, the second son of George and Dorothy Burnett's family of eight children. His father, a carpenter and farmer by vocation, was born in Virginia, and his mother in Tennessee. In 1817, experiencing a Daniel Boone desire for elbow room, they bundled up their belongings and family and moved out to Missouri, eventually settling near Liberty in Clay county.

Peter lived there till he was nineteen years old, then returned to Tennessee to take a hotel clerk's job at a salary of $100 a year. About the same time he gave some attention to the spelling of his family name. Up to then, it had been spelled Burnet, with no particular stress on either syllable. So he added another "t" and changed it to Burnett, with the accent on the second syllable. He believed "the name would be more complete and emphatic when spelled Burnett," and his example was soon followed by all of his brothers.

The next four or five years were filled with action, if not profit, for Burnett. In 1828, he quit his hotel job for one in a country store owned by a man named Parson Peck. It was here that he met and fell in love with Harriet Rogers, the sixteen year old daughter of Peter Rogers, a neighboring farmer. They were married August 20, 1828, with Parson Peck officiating.

The following year, his ambition still soaring, Burnett bought out his employer with mostly promissory notes as payment. Everything went fine till an inability to replenish his stock suddenly knocked the props from under his prosperity. He found it necessary to send his wife and first-born to Clay county, Missouri, to live with her parents, who had moved there a short time previously. He remained in Tennessee to salvage what he could from his investment. Fourteen months later, he himself arrived in Clay county, $700 in debt and dependent for the time being on the hospitality of his father-in-law.

Meanwhile he had begun to study law, and was admitted to the bar of Missouri in 1833. He did not establish a practice, however, until several years later, for he still had an idea that he was cut out for merchandising. After clerking about fifteen months for the firm of Samuel and Moor at Liberty, he entered into partnership with James M. and G. L. Hughes and Col. John Thornton. In 1837, he and Thornton bought out the Hughes' interest, styling their new firm Thornton and Burnett. Then along came the depression of the late 1830's, the "monetary revolution of 1837-8," as Burnett called it. When the storm had cleared, Peter Burnett, unable to uphold his end of the partnership losses, found himself $15,000 deeper in the hole.

With that he developed an abhorrence of anything mercantile and concentrated his energies upon the editing of a weekly newspaper and the establishment of a law practice at Liberty. All he got out of his editing job was experience, which he asked for as part of his education. In law, the amateurish touch of his first briefs won him considerable ribbing from his older associates. These were, Alexander Doniphan, David R. Atchison, and the same William B. Almond who was destined to set San Francisco upon its legal ear some eleven years hence.

His first case of importance came during the Mormon troubles of 1838-9, when he and Doniphan defended a group of Mormons charged with arson, treason, and robbery. They were plainly on the unpopular side and feeling ran high against them. On mutual agreement, Doniphan pled the case while Burnett sat behind him with a loaded pistol, ready to shoot the first person who interfered with him.

In 1840, he was appointed district attorney of a newly created judicial district embracing Clinton, Andrew, Buchanan, Holt, and Platte counties. He was the father of six children, times were hard, and he was still head over heels in debt with no immediate prospects of getting out. Gradually, he began to look in the direction of the Oregon country which both the United States and Great Britain claimed was a second Eden. Under a proposed land law he and his family would be entitled to 1,600 acres of its virgin soil merely for settling upon it, something that seemed to assure an improvement of his economic status. Therefore, he obtained the permission of his creditors to leave Missouri, pledging his word of honor to pay off his debts as fast as circumstances would permit, and May 22, 1843, found him and his family starting across the great plains for Oregon.

Traveling with a large company he had helped to organize, Burnett served as its captain for a week, then resigned. The new conditions under which the emigrants found themselves and the "ten thousand little vexations" encountered along the trail taxed to the utmost a man's patience and endurance. And they became more numerous with each passing day. Nevertheless, with the veteran plainsman, Captain Gant, for a guide, the party reached Fort Laramie July 14, and rested at Fort Hall August 27. Marcus Whitman guided them from Fort Hall to the Grande Ronde, "one of the most beautiful valleys in the world," which they entered October 1. Two weeks later, they were at Fort Walla Walla on the Columbia River, 1,691 miles and 147 days out from their starting point.

Another month elapsed, however, before Burnett and his family were safe at Fort Vancouver. Whether by wagon or boat, the journey down the Columbia was slow, exciting, and sometimes perilous for all who undertook it.

The arrival of Burnett's company in Oregon "more than doubled the resident civilized population of the country," but nine out of ten of its members, Burnett included, were incredibly poor and their teams "so much reduced as to be unfit for service." Only the kindhearted generosity of Dr. McLoughlin of the Hudson's Bay company enabled them to get through the winter without terrible privations. This good man frequently dug deep into his own pockets to help people who repaid him with nothing but obloquy and abuse.

From the day that Burnett settled upon his "claim" near Linnton, he took an active interest in Oregon politics. Learning that he was a lawyer by profession, people consulted him on the proposition of setting up an American provisional government, which would be a questionable procedure in view of the conflicting British claim to the country. He was against it at first, but in a few weeks swung around to the idea that it was the only thing to do. A government of some kind had to be established. As a result, the "Legislative Committee of Oregon" came into existence in 1844, with Peter H. Burnett as one of its nine members. This body took into consideration everything from the importation and distillation of "ardent spirits" to the exclusion of Negroes, slave or free. Among its legislative acts was one granting 640 acres of land to every bona-fide settler, together with certain other privileges that met Burnett's complete satisfaction.

In August, 1845, Burnett was elected judge of the Supreme Court of Oregon, probably with little or no competition, for

Thirty-eight Years

Pacific Parlor No. 10 NSGW, San Francisco, held a "thirty-eight year after" celebration April 18 in the Sierra hall, Native Sons building. Besides being the anniversary party of the parlor, the event was also labeled "ladies' night" and motion pictures of the "Gay Nineties" and other entertainment, coupled with the presentation of I. M. Peckham of the California Pioneers and the Native Sons as speaker rounded out the evening.

His fifty-second year as a member of Pacific Parlor was celebrated by Frank R. Neville March 28 when he attended the regular meeting. Although his home has been in Alameda for many years, he has retained his membership in Pacific Parlor. He gave an interesting talk on personalities active in the parlor in years gone by.

Grand Secretary John T. Regan,
Candidate for re-election

Grand Secretary John T. Regan will include in his report the membership and financial status of parlors. It is interesting to note the membership growth and the financial status of parlors having rosters of 450 or more members, and those having assets of $20,000 or over. Although South San Francisco Parlor had 848 members this time last year and has three less at the close of this term, it is still the largest in point of members and its assets have increased $1,617.91 and Arrowhead Parlor has had eighteen new members and an increase in funds of $1,128.45. These are the two largest parlors in the Order. Consolidation with Athens Parlor has catapulted Stanford Parlor into the seven largest parlors' group, with an increase in membership of 192 and a bank account of $15,621.10 more than that of last year.

The richest parlor in the Order is San Jose Parlor No. 22, one of the host parlors to the Grand Parlor. Their assets show an increase of $4,833.89 over last year, and they have twenty-nine more members

Other parlors show corresponding growth and the astounding fact is that these increases have occurred in spite of the burden assumed by the parlors in behalf of their members in the service; the curtailed attendance resulting from their absence and the shifting of the burden to shoulders of the "tried and true," rather than the younger members who have answered their country's call.

The following parlors have a membership of 450 or more:

Parlors	Members	Assets
S. San Francisco No. 157	845	$57,102.91
Arrowhead No. 110	688	24,030.69

Observatory No. 177	180	21,075.99
Presidio No. 194	310	20,946.70

December 31, 1943, subordinate parlors had convertible assets totaling $1,128,-336.17 and cash on hand amounting to $248,543.24. Income receipts were $241,-282.49; expense warrants, $225,538.81 and benefits paid, $71,141.26. This left a total balance in subordinate parlor accounts of $193,225.66 which averages cash assets of about $21.81 cents per member.

Old-Timer's Nite

Druid's hall in San Francisco was crowded to capacity April 12, the occasion being the semi-annual "Old Timer's Night" of Mission Parlor No. 38, NSGW. Among the boys of yesteryear in attendance were George Cummings, Leon Frankenberg, William Hamburg, John White, Louis Schmitt, Alfred Berryessa, Henry Nickel, Henry Smith, John Fitzgerald, Walter Koch, Sidney Bernstein, Adolph Bilay, William Gantner, Frank Noonan, Sheriff Daniel Murphy, County Treasurer Thomas McCarthy and John Johl.

Grand President Wayne R. Millington and Grand First vice-president Raymond D. Williamson were in attendance and addressed the gathering. Eugene Cirqui of Redwood Parlor was a welcome visitor.

General opinion prevailed that this outpouring was due in a great measure to the high esteem in which Grand Inside Sentinel Raymond J. McGrath is held by the members of his parlor and as a tribute to his untiring efforts throughout the year to promote activities for the continued advancement of the Order. Following the meeting, a splendid repast was served in the banquet hall, under the able direction of Chef Louis Schmitt.

Grand Second Vice-president Richard F. McCarthy made the following official visits during March: El Carmelo Parlor No. 256, Colma, March 1; Mountain View Parlor No. 215, Mountain View, March 8; Santa Lucia Parlor No. 97, Salinas, Watsonville Parlor No. 65 and Caliban Parlor No. 132, Castroville, joint meeting at Castroville, March 16; Sonoma Parlor No. 111 initiation and official visit of Grand Trustee Benjamin C. Jones when eleven candidates were initiated, March 20. El Carmelo Parlor No. 256, meeting and initiation of two candidates, March 21.

When Grand Trustee Webster K. Nolan made his official visit to Tamalpais Parlor No. 64 and Nicasio Parlor No. 183 at San Rafael recently, he was accompanied by the following fellow members of Stanford Parlor No. 76: Charles A. Roberts, John Barton O'Brien, Charles T. O'Kane and James F. Stanley.

Great Disaster

Commemorating the thirty-eighth anniversary of the Great Disaster of 1906, Stanford Parlor No. 76, NSGW, held a colorful "Ladies' Night" in their parlor quarters, Native Sons hall, San Francisco, April 18. Nearly two hundred members and their wives and friends attended the affair, at which Ray Lovell Luck, of Stanford Parlor, regaled the audience with stereopticon "shots" of "The City That Was" portraying old San Francisco.

Good of the Order Chairman Daniel C. Murphy, Jr., was responsible for digging up the splendid old-time views and Ray Luck provided his sixteen millimeter projecting machine for the occasion, and also showed other pictures.

President Harold A. Meyer presided over the festival and was ably assisted by the toastmaster of the occasion, the irrepressible Waldo F. Postel.

Arthur Poheim, Jim Stanley, Harold Smith and Frank Morris helped to guide the night to happy heights and Ivan Branson, and Charlie Stanley superintended distribution of chile con carne.

Postel pointed out why San Franciscans "celebrate" the anniversary of the disaster, which is simply that it gave the children of the port of the Golden Gate a chance to show the world what a wallop there was in their "comeback" punch.

Gala Reception

More than 1,250 invitations were extended by Stanford Parlor No. 76, NSGW, San Francisco, including grand officers, all delegates to Grand Parlor and to officers of San Francisco bay region parlors, to attend a gala reception, May 2, in the Hall of the Grand Presidents, Native Sons Building, in honor of Grand Trustee Webster K. Nolan. Guests of honor on the occasion, which was called "Young Timers Night" were the 121 members brought into Stanford Parlor by Grand Trustee Nolan in the last three years.

The committee in charge included Past Grand President Hartley Russell, President Harold A. Meyer of Stanford Parlor, Arthur T. Poheim and Judge George B. Harris. The speaker of the evening was Senator Walter McGovern of Stanford Parlor whose subject was "Our Order." The committee on cuisine and concoctions was headed by Past Presidents Frank F. Morris and Ivo R. Monti. Entertainment was provided by the Music Box Revue, the famed Don Cossack and Gladys Steele as accompanist, Nancy Wellford, original star of "No, No, Nanette," the Elks Glee club, George W. Hider's orchestra, of Stanford Parlor, and the Olympic club's surprise offering. There was also presented an extemporaneous offering by the "Prima Donnas Ad Lib de Luxe," portrayed by Stanford members, Dr. Leo A. McMahon, Waldo F. Postel, Charles A. Roberts, Raymond J. Arata and Fred Wade Hider.

The reception committee consisted of Stanford Parlor's voting representatives at Grand Parlor; Senior Past Grand President William M. Conley, Past Grand President Russell; chairman of Grand Parlor finance committee, Louis F. Erb; President Harold A. Meyer; Arthur T. Poheim, Charles A. Roberts; Recording Secretary Charles T. O'Kane; Raymond J. Arata, James E. Stanley, William F. Carroll and Alternates Thomas P. O'Brien and Robert B. Donahue. Grand Trustee Webster K. Nolan responded briefly.

John B. Dondero, member of Stanford Parlor No. 76 NSGW, San Francisco announces the marriage of his daughter Marian to James F. Pressley Jr. recently. May the happy couple enjoy many successful years together!

But I have said nothing but what I am willing to live by, and, if it be the pleasure of Almighty God, to die by.

Anniversary

Manzanita Parlor No. 29, NDGW, Grass Valley, Nevada county observed its fifty-sixth anniversary by serving a delicious dinner for its members. The banquet hall was prettily decorated with spring flowers and the tables were adorned with place cards which resembled old fashioned corsets. Following the meeting a program dedicated to memories and honoring past presidents of the parlor was presented by President Dorothy Hayes. A generous sprinkling of musical numbers enlivened the entertainment. One charter member, Annie Conlin and twenty-seven past presidents were among the 100 in attendance. One fifty-year member, Alice Brooks and Mirande Walter Smith who has belonged to the parlor forty-seven years, also were honored.

A recent card party sponsored by the group, netted a profit of $100 for the Red Cross fund drive and Loraine Keast, a member of the parlor who is chairman of production for Red Cross work was highly commended for her outstanding work. The weekly sewing bee at the Red Cross chapter house is also well attended by Manzanita members. Mother

ALL THAT I AM or ever hope to be, I owe to my darling mother," said Abra-ham Lincoln and Native Sons and Native Daughters echo this sentiment over and over in their rituals and in the observances of holidays significant in the development of California by the pioneers of this great state. Mothers down through its history have sacrificed their health and comfort for home and children. Their deeds are in-delibly written on the tablets of memory and as long as the Native Sons of the Golden West and the Native Daughters of the Golden West exist as organizations, the pioneer mother of whatever period she represents will be venerated and our own dear mothers, if they live, shall be hon-ored Mother's day, Sunday, May 14. If they have passed to their reward, no son or daughter will fail to pause and say a prayer of gratitude for their undying loy-alty and to repeat with Lincoln, "All that I am or ever hope to be, I owe to my darling mother."

Bridal Shower

Copa de Oro Parlor No. 105, NDGW, Hollister, adopted an equestrian theme for the delightful crystal shower tendered to Past-President Lila Melendy Elliott, coun-ty superintendent of schools and a recent bride, March 15. The bridal table, above which hung silver wedding bells, was dec-orated in white and silver, with dainty flower and taper arrangements. Horse-shoes were used in the decorative scheme as a symbol of good luck and a tribute to the skilled horsemanship of the honoree. The table was centered with two large sil-ver horseshoes under which stood a bridal couple. An amusing recipe, "How to Pre-serve a Husband" was offered for Lila's guide to a happy future. Marjorie Lan-ning sang "I Love You Truly" and all joined in singing "Home On the Range." Honors were also paid to January, Feb-ruary and March birthday celebrants who were seated at appropriately decorated ta-bles. During the business session a con-tribution of ten dollars was voted for the Red Cross as well as two annual magazine subscriptions for convalescent servicemen at Fort Ord. California Books

A DOCTOR COMES TO CALIFORNIA

The Diary of Dr. John S. Griffin, with an introduction and notes by George Walcott Ames, Jr., and a foreword by George D. Lyman, MD., published by the California Historical Society, San Francisco in the printing shop of Lawton R. Kennedy.

Dr. John S. Griffin's diary of the journey of General Stephen S. Kearney's "Army of the West" from Santa Fe, New Mexico, over the southern route to California is one of only two such journals, the other being Emory's Notes of a Military Recon-naisance, from Fort Leavenworth in Mis-souri to San Diego, in California.

Dr. Griffin, who after the American con-quest became a prominent citizen of Los Angeles made a day by day account of the journey of the ragged regiment and de-scribed vividly, his treatment of the sick and wounded. Medical men as well as avid students of California history should not fail to read the diary which is a reprint from the California Historical Society quarterly Vol. XXI, Nos. 3 and 4 and Vol. XXII, No. 1.

THE GAY SAINT

The Gay Saint, by Paul Bailey, publishers, Murray and Gee, 1622 North Highland avenue, Hollywood, California. Price, $3.00. Reviewed by Isabel Fages.

This reviewer is looking for a novelist who will create a story about some pioneer movement into California, wherein some-thing noble and fine can be emphasized, rather than the baser characteristics of those who made the trek to this state, via uncharted trails, around the perilous Horn; through freezing winter snows; across scorching deserts, at last to find refuge, peace and success.

Such were the Mormons of whom Paul Bailey, a descendant of these seekers after religious freedom, writes so revealingly. Revealing to the point of exaggerating their sins and minimizing their faith.

Any way, let us hope that Murray and Gee, California's only royalty publishers will find bigger, better and more inspir-ational California books to publish as the years go on. At least in the Gay Saint, we are brought face to face with some of the great problems The Latter Day Saints had to surmount in order to reach Cali-fornia. We cannot help but thrill when we read of the strength and power of leadership of Samuel Brannan and grieve with those who loved him at the sad end-ing of his long and colorful career.

The most exciting period of San Fran-cisco's history is vividly described. The author has a colorful style and his hero's own adventures are cleverly framed by those of Jess Webb, who idolized The Gay Saint in the beginning, and despised him at times, yet paused to pay tribute to him at his pauper's grave.

Old Rugged Cross

"The Old Rugged Cross," symbol of Christianity was the closing inspirational theme of the official visit of Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg to Long Beach Parlor No. 154 April 6 in the New Masonic Temple in Long Beach. When the officers had completed the regalia march, they formed a cross back of the altar and Eleanor Campbell sang the hymn which brought tears to the eyes of all.

In the banquet hall, preceding the meeting, guests were seated at tables where carts filled with Easter eggs and drawn by chix, ducks and bunnies were surrounded with delicate sprays of lilac. Easter lilies and spring blossoms filled baskets placed about the meeting room.

As the meeting was called to order by District Deputy Eugenia Smith, member of Long Beach Parlor, the officers entered, wearing white formals, quaint crepe paper bonnets with no crowns and carrying matching muffs in which were hidden corsages for the honored guests. They swayed to the tune of "Easter Parade." When the Grand President had been escorted, Past Grand Presidents Grace S. Stoermer and Hazel Hansen; Grand Trustee Anne Schiebusch and Deputy Marie Schroeder of Santa Ana Parlor No. 235 were presented and escorted to seats of honor. Helen Baker, supervising deputy of San Diego County, Maude McCable of El Tejon Parlor No. 239, Bakersfield and Beatrice Wahrmund, supervisor of District 37 also attended.

One hundred and one half dollars were presented to the Grand President for the Grand Parlor station wagon fund. In addressing the assemblage, the honored guest congratulated the three newly initiated members, Martha Stein, Elmarie Atkinson and Della Prevost. Past President Hazel Poole was dinner chairman and Dorothy Strubhart, who acted as organist, planned the escort work. Flowers from the gardens of Osie Smith, Alma Morrow and Louise Watson transformed the meeting room into a spring garden.

Honor Grand President

Caliz de Oro Parlor No. 206 and Stockton Parlor No. 256, NDGW, met jointly in honor of Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg of Californiana Parlor No. 247, April 18, in Native Sons Hall, Stockton. Preceding the meeting, a dinner was given in Mrs. Noerenberg's honor at Tiny's. The tables were attractively decorated in yellow and white, the tall yellow candles in silver holders casting a soft glow.

Mrs. George Peers, president of Caliz de Oro Parlor presided at the opening and closing ceremonies and Mrs. Noerenberg was escorted to her seat of honor by a team in white and pink dresses and wearing huge sunbonnets of pink and blue. They carried pale pink flowers.

The meeting hall was decorated with huge baskets of white blossoms and lilacs and tall tapers in pastel shades in candelabra were at each station. Visitors honered were Grand Marshal Ethel Enos, Grand Trustee Doris Treat, Past Grand Presidents Mayme Peyton and Clarice Cook. Deputy Alta Wells and Amelia Solomon, District Deputy Grand Presidents J. O. Gossetti, Lee Baker and Laura Jane O'Brien. There were visitors from Murphys, Ione, Lodi, Manteca and Placerville parlors.

President Mrs. Stiles Martin, Stockton Parlor, presided during the initiation of six candidates. They were Mesdames T. Belluomini, Fern McDevith, George Parker, Justin Wright and Elaine Stabner, Stockton Parlor, and Leah Troy and Minnie Jo Dollard, Caliz de Oro Parlor.

Pertinent remarks on the accomplishments of the Order in the war activities program was stressed by Grand President Noerenberg, and the further co-operation and assistance of the parlors was urged.

Mrs. Earl B. Newman, chairman of the Annie L. Adair business scholarship, presented the grand president with a check for twenty-five dollars for this very important project. Following the meeting, members and guests adjourned to the banquet room where refreshments were served.

Gift of Roses

The fair season of spring and the impending celebration of Easter lent a motif of gayety and dignity to Compton Parlor's reception of Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg when she paid her official visit to another parlor from her own district, in the Pathfinders club house March 30.

A buffet supper was served preceding the meeting to the Grand President and guests sharing honors. These included Past Grand Presidents Grace S. Stoermer and Hazel B. Hansen, Grand Trustee Anne Schiebusch; SDDGP Eugenia Smith of District 37 and Beatrice Wahrmund, District 36; Dorothy Camy, member of East Los Angeles Parlor No. 266 and deputy to Compton Parlor No. 258, and former grand trustee, Florence Dodson Schoneman of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230, San Pedro.

In the meeting room, bowls of calla lilies were placed at the altar and the stations of the officers who entered carrying baskets of flowers. An escort of eight members in pink or blue net formals, carrying pioneer bonnets fashioned of tulle in contrasting shades looped over their wrists flanked the altar as the honored guest was presented.

Committee reports were made by Kate Glavinic who proudly announced the parlor had been awarded a citation by the War Finance committee. The parlor's quota for the Red Cross station wagon fund was presented to the Grand President who also was the recipient of a personal gift presented in a charming manner. As Orabelle Schmidt, president of La Reina Parlor No. 267, Los Angeles sang, "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses," the escort team approached Mrs. Noerenberg's seat of honor, each carrying a rose bearing a sum of money attached to the stem. These were placed in a basket.

Author Honored

Anne B. Fisher, the distinguished California writer and lecturer, was guest speaker at the March 21 meeting of Junipero Parlor No. 141, Monterey, held at the House of the Four Winds.

The speaker, although Colorado born, has lived in California for a great many years, making her home in Pacific Grove. Inspired by authentic information given her by descendants of the early settlers of Monterey and Carmel Valley, she wrote "Cathedral in the Sun," the untold story of the Carmel Mission and the humble heroism of the Indian neophytes who carried on the religious fiestas even when the padres had long passed on.

Mrs. Fisher warned against a taken-for-granted attitude of the precious heritage which belongs to the daughters of California and urged them to even greater growth and strength. She congratulated Junipero Parlor and President Elmarie Dyke for the rapid progress made and asked that she be considered as the parlor's adopted daughter.

Initiation took place at the April 17 meeting held in Pythian hall. The new members are Margaret Artellan Castro, Julia Artellan Tremayne, Florence Manhire Winston and Emeline Brown Hopkins. Rose Bradley was chairman of the evening.

The adoption of a baby was made possible through the generous donation of a friend of the president and the parlor voted to name it Nelson Robert in honor of Mrs. Dyke's two sons who have recently returned from naval aviation operations in the South Pacific. A duplication of a former Red Cross donation was made and four new applications were received. The parlor plans to have ten candidates for Grand Parlor. Refreshments and decorations were planned by Edith Fadden and Ethel Hyde.

Strange Chapeaux

Wearing everything from peacock feathers to newspaper hats Coalinga Parlor No. 270, NDGW, Coalinga, had their annual Easter hat parade April 10, after the regular business meeting in the Zenith clubhouse. The prize for the most beautiful hat was awarded to Luella McMurtry for her pink paper creation. For the most ridiculous head gear honors went to Carmel Birdwell for her wide-brimmed newspaper hat bearing the tag "Original New York creation, $150 marked down to 15 cents. Refreshments were served at tables decorated with the traditional Easter eggs, baskets and bunnies.

During the course of the business meeting with President Helen Mittnacht presiding, it was announced that Coalinga Parlor had given a generous contribution toward the purchase of the Red Cross station wagon which is to be dedicated at Grand Parlor.

Funds for Activities

Bonita Parlor No. 10, NDGW, Redwood City, held a short early business meeting April 13, which was followed by a public card party to raise funds for parlor activities. There were nineteen tables of whist and over seventy-five dollars was cleared through door receipts, and other means. The chairman was President Ulirica O'Sullivan. April 27, several new members were initiated and final plans were made for the dinner in celebration of Bonita's coming fifty-seventh anniversary.

Members of Bonita Parlor were hostesses at the Redwood City USO house Saturday, April 8, and during the evening the servicemen and girls colored Easter eggs. Dancing and ping pong were enjoyed and refreshments of sandwiches, doughnuts, cake, pie and coffee were served to about seventy-five boys.

Bonita members are hostesses at the USO House once a month and if that time is near a special day they try to serve appropriate refreshments and have special decorations.

The drill team of the parlor celebrated its fourth anniversary on April 4, with a dinner at Johnny's cafe in Redwood city. Eighteen members were in attendance together with Advisors Mary Junker and Geraldine Brown. Chairman Margaret Locatelli was in charge of reservations, and presided over a short business meeting.

During the recent bond drive Bonita Parlor was in charge of the bond booth in the San Mateo county court house once a week and sold well over $6,000 in bonds and stamps. The parlor also recently went on record as being in favor of the resolution on Free Enterprise and also the restriction of Japanese from the West Coast.

Voice Recorder

On its way to a front line Naval hospital is a voice recording machine bearing the inscription, "Gift of the Native Daughters of the Golden West." The machine, the first of its kind to be purchased by a Native Daughter group was purchased and presented by Past Presidents Association No. 1, NDGW, San Francisco, of which Mrs. Charles Schefiin is president. When an appeal from the San Francisco League for service men came to the association through Anne Dippel, executive vice-president of the league, the request was quickly granted.

"Enabling the folks at home to hear the voices of the boys about whom they are worrying is a tremendous lift to morale," Mrs. Schefiin said.

Members of the association were entertained by members of Orinda and Genevieve Parlors March 20 at a St. Patrick's party. Past Grand President Emma Foley of Orinda Parlor was chairman of the evening. Musical selections and recitations were presented by this talented group and delicious refreshments were served. April 1, members of the group, with Genevieve Martell as chairman, served over 1,100 service men at Hospitality House. Inge Meyer was co-chairman.

When he had completed his message, he nodded to a man hunched over a voice recording machine, who picked up a small black disc, labeled it and placed it on a pile of similar records to be sent to "moms," all over the country. It was Grand Organist Roger M. Johnson's 450th recording. Every Monday night Johnson packs his recording equipment to the USO at Adams and Hoover street in Los Angeles and from eight until 10:30, makes records for boys to send home to their parents, sweethearts, and wives and there is no charge made for the service. The Grand Organist furnishes the recorder, the needles and the microphone and the USO furnishes the discs and mails the recordings to the service men. Good work Roger!

Observatory Parlor

Observatory Parlor No. 177, NSGW, San Jose, was instituted August 13, 1891, through the energetic and inspiring leadership of the late Dr. William A. Gaston.

The charter list contains names of fifty-seven of the most prominent men in the social, business and political life of San Jose. These men welded themselves into an undying friendship, and to this day the parlor bases its success upon the loyalty displayed, not only to the State of their birth, but to one another as well.

The other ideals revered by the founders of the great Order of the Native Sons have been likewise respected and cherished and passed down for nearly fifty-three years. The parlor has enjoyed continuous harmonious administrations with the same profound respect, devotion and spirit of brotherly love toward one another and staunch loyalty to State and country that is their heritage from the days of '49. If Observatory Parlor accomplished no more than to selfishly guard and pass on this heritage, unchanged through the generations to come, it will not have existed in vain. Nowhere can one find a more congenial unit of fraternalism than exists here. In all events, whether its activities are of a local, State or national character, Observatory Parlor plays its part and commands the respect of the people of San Jose. The President is Herman J. Mager, prominent attorney at law.

Only one of the charter members of Observatory survives. He is Charles T. Richmond. Those who have belonged for forty years or more are, Joseph A. Desimore, Dr. Fred Schumacher, Thomas F. Tormey, Ferdinand G. Canelo, Jesse M. Waterman, Fred Doerr, Frank H. Benson and Charles H. Bauer.

Observatory Parlor No. 177 now has eighteen men in the armed services with a number about to enter. Thousands of dollars have been used in the purchase of war bonds, a response being made to each call by the Treasury department. The parlor takes an active part in rendering service to our boys through the instrumentality of the USO house.

The officers of Observatory Parlor are: Herman J. Mager, president; Walter N. Klein, junior past president; William S. Burke, senior past president; Harry H. Pacheco, first vice-president; Walter S. Penney, second vice-president; Clarence H. Leese, third vice-president; J. M. Waterman, recording secretary; William H. Compton, financial secretary; Albert O. Kayser, treasurer; Robert L. Drexel, marshal; M. G. Moenning, George D. Leese, Edward N. Gibbons, trustees; Norton J. Mahon, inside sentinel; Louis Doerr, outside sentinel; Staff Sgt. Robert G. O'Neil, honorary organist; Dr. George L. Barry, Dr. Emile L. Cottrell, surgeons.

San Jose has a joint Homeless Children committee comprised of representatives from San Jose and Observatory Parlors Native Sons and Vendome and San Jose Parlors, Native Daughters. This committee has worked together since 1910. During this entire time, Mrs. Preston H. Boomer, San Jose Parlor, NDGW, has been the treasurer.

San Jose Parlor No. 22 NSGW

San Jose Parlor No. 22, NSGW, was instituted October 17, 1883, in a hall over the Farmers' Union store, by Grand President A. F. Jones and Grand Secretary F. B. Huston. One of the charter members, Tom C. Barry, was later grand marshal. So far as is known, Al Hayman now of Los Angeles, is the sole surviving charter member although he is no longer affiliated with the Order.

Garden City Parlor No. 82 was organized April 6, 1886, in Rutherford hall by Grand President Charles W. Decker. It was then known as Palo Alto Parlor No. 82. In July, 1920, Garden City Parlor was consolidated with San Jose Parlor No. 22.

San Jose Parlor has produced one Grand President, the late Thomas Monahan, who was mayor of San Jose at the same time he presided over the Grand Parlor in 1914. James T. Murphy and Walter Chrisman, both now deceased, and John M. Burnett, now a navy officer in the South Pacific, have served as grand trustees. John A. Corotto now represents the parlor as Grand Treasurer.

San Jose Parlor's crack drum corps has been seen in all Admission Day celebrations in recent years. The last Admission Day parade held in San Jose was in 1922, and it is San Jose and Observatory Parlor's ambition to bring the first celebration after the war to the "Garden City."

The three parlors then existing held a number of carnivals in the early years of the century to raise funds to build a hall. One of these gala affairs, held July 4, 1914, lasted three days. Many visiting parlors participated in the grand parade. Ground-breaking exercises were held for a new NSGW building on North First street. These plans were later abandoned and the property was sold at a high figure. Thus the two San Jose parlors are sound financially and talk of acquiring a home for the parlors after the present war has been revived in San Jose. San Jose Parlor No. 22 has 251 members and is aiming to pass its all-time high of 350 members in the near future. J. S. Williams, Robert Wight and Clarence L. Mitchell are fifty-year members while Joseph M. McKiernan, Frank A. Byers, Joseph Lawrence, George M. Kelley, N. A. Pellerano, Arthur Bacigalupi, M. M. Prola, Simon Semichy, John A. Corotto and George Clark all have belonged since the "Gay Nineties".

Twenty-four members are in the military services of our country and twenty-seven thousand dollars has been invested in United States war bonds. At the outbreak of the current conflict a first aid corps of members of the parlor was organized and instructed. With its companion Native Daughter parlor, San Jose No. 81, the parlor operates the snack bar at the USO hospitality house once a month.

Officers of San Jose Parlor No. 22 are: Dan J. Higuera, president; Harold Semichy, recording secretary; Gerald Origlia, financial secretary; Charles Baldasini, treasurer; Vincent Badalamente, junior past president; Nathan Morgin, first vice-president; Joseph Lawrence, second vice-president; Julian Castilli, third vice-president; Dr. M. S. Kneass, marshal; Arthur Martinez, John J. Nelson and Joseph Sabatte, trustees; Gerald Swanson, outside sentinel; Wilfred Lordge, inside sentinel and Dr. E. E. Porter, surgeon.

Members of the parlor who are in the armed forces: Louis Biasotti, Salvatore J. Bondi, James W. Foley, Louis Guerra, Richard W. Matteis, J. J. Speciale, John M. Burnett, Frank Higuera, Joseph Paradiso, William Cole, Tom L. Leo, John J. Nelson, Jr., Joseph Barbaccia, Tony A. Paradiso, William Bondi, Fred Wolfson, Alfred Laranjo, John O. Toler, Mario A. Pera, Harold Russo, Lawrence T. Paradiso, Arthur N. Davison, Frank P. Sabatte, Robert Leighton. Albert J. Bernal, Ralph Bravo, Gerald Burk and Walter Laranjo have received honorable discharges.

Grand Trustee Benjamin C. Jones paid an official visit to the parlors of Humboldt county at a joint meeting held in Eureka, March 27, with representatives present from Humboldt, No. 14, Eureka; Arcata No. 20, Arcata, and Ferndale No. 93, Ferndale. Highlights of the evening were an interesting talk on the Japanese situation by Grand Trustee Jones and the initiation of six candidates, five for Ferndale and one for Humboldt. The initiation team consisted of the following members: Senior past-president, C. H. Rasmussen; junior past-president, Earl Cox; first vice-president, H. E. Giacomini; second vice-president, Felix Zana; marshal, Lee Diedricksen all of Ferndale Parlor; president, George Johnson; third vice-president Herbert Newell and inside sentinel, Leland Breshears, all of Humboldt. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Clifford Mitchell representing Eureka won first place. Marjorie Youngreen represented Fortuna and Garth Gill was Ferndale's contestant. The judges were Judge Harry W. Falk, Mrs. Gordon Manary and A. "Powerful Organization" on the West Coast

In a talk made in Salt Lake City, March 23, Dillon S. Myer, Director of the War Relocation Authority, again stated that there were "powerful organizations" on the West Coast who opposed the release of the Japanese from the Relocation centers and their return to their former homes. He stated further that those organizations were in error in their views and that no harm would ensue if the Japanese were allowed to return to their former places of residence.

Speaking before the Commonwealth club in San Francisco, April 13, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes made similar statements and added that those who were opposed to the administration of the War Relocation Authority were "vindictive, bloodthirsty and professional racemongers."

In making these statements, Dillon Myer and Mr. Ickes must have referred to the members of every one of the fifty-eight county Boards of Supervisors in California, who, in 1942, passed resolutions asking that the Japanese be evacuated from the West Coast for the war's duration; to all of the congressmen from this coast; to the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars; to many women's clubs, and to many, many other organizations as well as to the Native Daughters and Native Sons of the Golden West. Practically every organized group in this area has at least once since early 1942 expressed itself as being opposed to the return of the Japanese to this militarily strategic area during the war.

How any government official can even think of permitting any Japanese to return to Terminal Island in the Los Angeles Harbor where large shipbuilding facilities have sprung up since the evacuation of the Japanese, not to mention the island's proximity to all naval craft which may be in the harbor, is a mystery. Do the gentlemen advocate that the five Japanese families who formerly lived within a stone's throw of Port Hueneme in Ventura county, where many "Seabees" are now being trained, be allowed to take up their former leases? Or should the many Japanese who farmed that strategic area on the coast immediately north of Santa Barbara be allowed to run loose where ever they might desire?

The people on the Pacific Coast who have practically unanimously expressed their opposition to the return of the Japanese have done so not because of prejudice or hate but because they have lived here and have observed and know the facts. They know that the majority of the Issei were here illegally, or at least contrary to the terms of the two "Gentlemen's Agreements" and they know of the many Japanese language schools where the Nisei were taught to think of Japan as their country and the emperor of Japan as their emperor and a god to be worshiped. They have learned of the many different Japanese organizations that existed on December 7, 1941, in some one of which all the Japanese were members, and they know of the many thousands of Kibei who were trained in Japan and who were living here on our coast when the war came. They also know of the many acts of sabotage and the acts and conduct of the fully armed Japanese who were behind each line of defense in every area taken by Japan in the first six months of this war.

Knowing these and many other facts too numerous to mention here, the people on this coast—the mothers, the wives, sisters, sweethearts, fathers, brothers and friends of the boys from this coast who are in the various branches of the military service are called "vindictive, bloodthirsty and professional race-mongers" for doing everything within their power to protect the mainland of the United States from the very same hazards that existed in every major spot taken by Japan in this war.

Many of the most important factories making materials of war are located along the Pacific Coast and from this coast are shipped most of the men and material for the Pacific war fronts. Is it reasonable to believe that the vast majority of the people living here are wrong in their belief that the United States cannot take a chance and permit the Japanese, with their Shinto beliefs of emperor worship, to return here during our war with Japan? Is it not more reasonable to believe that the Japanese will act the same in the United States as they have in every other locality in which the Japanese have been found since Japan commenced its war many years ago?

Secretary Ickes and Mr. Dillon S. Myer, by their recent statements, have insulted the integrity, loyalty and patriotism of the overwhelming majority of the people of the West Coast and must personally be held responsible for all loss of life and property which will result from the release of the Japanese from the relocation centers.

That many of the Japanese cannot and will not be loyal to this country, even after being investigated or "filtered" as they term it, is amply proven by the conduct of the twenty-eight Japanese who recently refused to obey the orders of their officers or salute the flag in the United States army camp in Alabama. The great bulk of them can't be loyal Americans because their training at home, in their Japanese language schools here or in Japan, and in their Shinto temples has taught them to be loyal Japanese.

Let us hope that the War Relocation Authority will soon awaken to the facts and forget its beautifully sounding but impractical social theories and return the over twenty-two thousand heretofore released Japanese to the centers where they can be maintained in a humane and American way, and the lives and property of the American people be relieved of the jeopardy that exists while the Japanese are permitted to go free and do as they please.

Ware Flays Ickes

Insistence of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes to relocate Japanese on the Pacific Coast was decried as "A federal invasion into California" in an address by Wallace L. Ware, member of Ramona Parlor No. 109, NSGW, and a candidate for district attorney, delivered before the Los Angeles Friday Luncheon club of the Native Sons, April 21, at the Rosslyn. This has created "just another colossal wave of righteous indignation by our citizens," Ware said.

"Ickes, fresh from Washington and loaded with a strange love and loyalty for a race with whom we are engaged in a life-and-death struggle, has hurled an outrageous insult at every true Californian," he said. "Ickes would want Americans to believe that we who know the treacherous and designing Jap the best have nothing to say in our own defense, but should extend our arms in cordial welcome to the return to our fertile valleys of this menacing foe."

Ware pointed out that California has made its position on the Japanese problem clear ever since 1912 when, despite intervention from Washington, it enacted legislation to prevent Japanese from owning agricultural land. "It is neither in the public interest nor in the interest of the Japanese themselves that they return to the Western States," Ware said.

University Parlor

Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, NDGW, was the guest of honor and speaker of the evening for University Parlor No. 272, NSGW, at a dinner preceding the meeting April 12. Other guests of the parlor were Grand Trustee Anne Schiebusch also of Los Angeles Parlor; Past Grand President Eldred L. Meyer of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 and Mrs. Meyer; Grand Organist Roger Johnson, Los Angeles Parlor No. 45, Walter Hiskey of Santa Ana Parlor No. 265 and Mrs. Hiskey, member of Santa Ana Parlor No. 235, NDGW; Roy Tarleton, mayor of Compton and member of Compton Parlor No. 258; Willard Allen, member of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 and deputy to Valley Parlor No. 285, Van Nuys; Past President Earl Magee of Ramona Parlor No. 109, Los Angeles and many others.

Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss acted as master of ceremonies and introduced the speaker, who chose as her subject, "Uniformity of Purpose." She spoke principally of the projects which both Native Sons and Native Daughters sponsor, namely, Homeless Children, scholarships, all types of war work and a concentrated effort toward the exclusion of the Japanese on the West Coast. She lauded the Native Sons for their historical fellowship provided for a continuation of research in California history and commended Bernard Hiss for his splendid work on the Homeless Children committee. However, Miss Stoermer did deplore the slowness of Natives to grasp opportunities to participate in civic activities.

"What do you do as citizens?" she asked. "Identify yourself with some party so you may vote for the man you think most deserving in the state primaries!" she challenged. "Watch for the return of 'ham and eggs' to the ballot. A plan to raise the monthly pension of oldsters to $50 is being presented and now they want to reduce the years of residence in California for those receiving the pension to exactly none. With eighty per cent of the transient war-time population planning to remain here, we would thus assume a tremendous burden.

"With concentrated effort and an increase in membership of parlors, our influence will grow. Understand, honor and preserve the Constitution of America. Be vigilant for freedom of speech and all the freedoms we have taken for granted in the past. Learn to argue intelligently," was the speaker's concluding admonition.

Oliver Kent, past president of the parlor and his wife, Mildred planned a tasty and plentiful dinner, assistd by the wives of many of the members. Woodrow W. Wade was in charge of the guest list and the program. Following the dinner, the regular business meeting was held with Supervising Deputy Woodrow W. Wade and Walter F. Wells being elected to represent University Parlor at Grand Parlor.

The Last Roll Call

Past President Mourned

PGP Walter Douglas Wagner, copied from the Grizzly Bear, May, 1907

WALTER DOUGLAS WAGNER, Past Grand President NSGW and a member of Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 for fifty-six years, passed to the Grand Parlor on High on March 29, 1944.

Funeral services were conducted in the city of San Francisco, where he resided for a number of years, by Grand President Wayne R. Millington; Junior Past Grand President Lloyd J. Cosgrove, Grand First Vice-president Raymond D. Williamson and Grand Secretary John T. Regan.

A eulogy was delivered by Past Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, who also read a transcription of a statement made by Wagner during the Grand Parlor held in San Francisco in 1943 which was recorded by Grand Organist Roger M. Johnson, assisted by Daniel Francis of Alder Glen Parlor No. 200. It ran as follows: "This is Walter D. Wagner speaking. My first Grand Parlor was in 1892. In the year 1907 I served as grand president at the Grand Parlor meeting at Napa.

"As we grow older the finest memories that we can have are the friendships we made in the years gone by. One of the greatest pleasures I get in attending the Grand Parlor sessions, is the meeting of old-timers; boys who have been in the Grand Parlor for many, many years. My service has been fifty-two years a member of one parlor (Arrowhead No. 110, San Bernardino).

"I sincerely hope the boys who are now coming on, many of them who were not yet born when I was grand president, will form friendships as I have in the past and will as I have, always remember them."

In addition to the four above named grand officers, others in attendance were Grand Second Vice-president Richard F. McCarthy; Grand Treasurer John A. Corotto; Grand Trustee Benjamin C. Jones; Grand Historian Peter T. Conmy and Past Grand Presidents Joseph R. Knowland, Wm. P. Caubu, Edward J. Lynch, James A. Wilson, Charles L. Dodge, Chas. A. Koenig, Harmon D. Skillin and Joseph J. McShane.

Walter Douglas Wagner was one of nature's noblemen — quiet, gentlemanly, loyal. He lived uprightly with an honesty of purpose that expressed in his daily life the kindliness and charitableness that was so typical of nim.

Walter Wagner was born in an adobe house at the southwest corner of Second and F streets in San Bernardino, June 21, 1869. He was the youngest son of the late Joseph and Elizabeth Wagner. His boyhood days were spent in the town of his birth, where he attended the public schools and Sturges' academy. He was always active in public, civic and fraternal affairs. He became a member of Arrowhead Parlor No 110, Native Sons of the Golden West March 17, 1888. Very active in its affairs, he became president in January 1891, was elected delegate to several Grand Parlors and in 1906 at Bakersfield, was elected grand president of the Order, the only grand president Arrowhead Parlor has ever had.

At the age of twenty-one, Walter Wagner became deputy county auditor of his native county; was later elected county auditor and was re-elected several times. He resigned from that office to accept the position of secretary to the Railroad Commission of the State of California, with offices at San Francisco. Shortly after the close of the World's fair, he was sent by the U. S. government to Merced, where he had charge of the war activities in Merced and Mariposa counties. At the close of the war, he was instrumental in the organization of, and became manager of the Merced Irrigation district, one of the largest of such districts.

In 1923, Wagner was appointed director of the State Department of Institutions by Governor Friend W Richardson, and as such, supervised all of the state hospitals and reform schools. He was also chairman of the board of directors of the Veteran's Home at Yountville. Wagner was married September 23, 1893, to Miss Carla Hammer, also of San Bernardino. Mrs. Wagner passed away January 17, 1941.

In 1938, on the floor of the San Jose Grand Parlor, and for the first time in Grand Parlor history, Wagner was presented with a fifty-year continuous membership emblem, together with a life membership in his parlor. The presentation was made in behalf of the parlor by Jesse W. Curtis, Sr., Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of California, whose own fifty-year membership was also recognized by the parlor the following year.

Surviving Wagner are four sons: Walter Rene, Carl Ernest, Joseph Douglas, and Lt. Commander Robert Lowell; and two sisters, Mrs. James Fleming of San Bernardino, and Mrs. E .W. Soule of Los Angeles.

This honored friend whose name we call,
'Mid silence in our parlor hall,
He answers not tonight:
And we in solemn wonder stand
And dream that in some better land
He walks in peace and light.

TAX BURDEN EXPLAINED

By Grace S. Stoemer, State Chairman on Legislation, NDGW

California is carrying an unnecessary tax burden because under the State constitution none of the property owned by the Federal government in California is taxable. As Native Daughters of the Golden West we can assist in the initial step to correct this condition. The Legislative Committee urges that you give careful consideration to Proposition No. 1 on the May 16 Primary Election ballot and that you go to the polls and urge your friends and associates to do likewise.

Proposition No. 1 on the May 16 Primary Election ballot proposes to take out of the California Constitution a phrase that prohibits the State from taxing property belonging to the United States government.

The phrase is "the United States"; it has been in Section 1, Article XIII, of the California Constitution since the adoption of its revision in 1879 and is part of a series describing what shall be exempt from taxation in California. It has been an unnecessary part of the California Constitution, because since the days of John Marshall and the McCullock vs. Maryland decision of the United States Supreme Court it has been well established that the States cannot tax the property of the Federal government or its agencies, except as Congress permits such taxation. The caution of the drafters of the revision of the State Constitution in 1879 has resulted in California's not being able to tax any property belonging to the Federal government or its instrumentalities, even when Congress permits such taxation.

Passage of the proposition will permit California local governments to receive in excess of $6,500,000 of presently prohibited revenues, it is estimated. The Federal ownership of land in California has been a growing problem in California for some time. Since the war, the Federal government has not only acquired large areas of rural land, but important and valuable urban property.

It has been estimated that the Federal government now owns approximately 42.8 per cent of the land area in California. The total assessed value of this real estate has been estimated to exceed $300,000,000.

In addition to real property holdings, the Federal government also owns personal property situated in California with an estimated value in excess of $1,500,000,000. With minor exceptions, all this property, real and personal, is exempt from State and local taxation, although much of it enjoys the same services of State and local government that are paid for by private property owners.

Taxation of national parks, the public domain, national forests, etc., is not permitted at present by the Federal constitution. However, Federal law does permit and some States do tax a large body of purchased Federal property. This includes all property held by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and its subsidiaries, together with a long list of property owned by other Federal agencies and corporations. The present California constitutional provision prevents taxation of any property owned by the Federal government, despite the fact that Congress already permits states to levy regular property taxes on much of this property.

The board of directors of the California Taxpayers' Association, the California State Chamber of Commerce, the California Real Estate Association, the Statewide Tax Conference, and the County Supervisors Association of California have recommended the passage of Proposition No. 1 on the May 16 ballot. As the Federal government already permits the States to tax certain Federally owned property, the removal of the one phrase from the California State constitution would merely take from the California constitution the present prohibition of taxation of any Federal property in California, even where Federal law permits such taxation.

Official Visit

In joint session at the Odd Fellows Hall, Las Flores Parlor No. 262, Avenal, and Coalinga Parlor No. 270, honored Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg. Preceding the meeting an enchilada dinner was given for the Grand President and members of both parlors with Junior Native Daughters serving.

Officers of Las Flores Parlor with President Elizabeth Johnson presiding, officiated at the opening and closing ceremonies. The grand president was escorted to her seat of honor by the Las Flores drill team.

Coalinga Parlor with President Helen Mittnacht presiding conducted the initiation ceremonies. Those received into the Order were Mae Thompson of Coalinga and Ida Wider and Barbara Garvin of Las Flores.

Others honored at this joint meeting were Supervising District Deputy of Fresno county, Marie Randup; Molly Rice, deputy to Las Flores; Deputy to Coalinga Parlor, Eleanor Nelson, and SDDGP Evelyn Towne of Kern county and "mother" of Coalinga Parlor.

Mrs. Noerenberg spoke of the Japanese problem, which, she said, is much more serious than most of us realize. She also related the various types of work done by the Order during the present war and stressed Homeless Children work. Mrs. Noerenberg was presented with a lovely spray pin as a gift from Coalinga and Las Flores Parlors. Mrs. Towne also was the recipient of a gift from Coalinga Parlor.

Enthusiastic

Under the leadership of President Mrs. Fred Alippi, El Tejon Parlor No. 239, continues on in a fine way. She is very proud of her loyal and enthusiastic workers all of whom are constantly endeavoring to make their parlor outstanding in the community. After one of the recent meetings, a surprise layette shower was given by the Past Presidents club for the parlor's first vice-president, Mrs. A. W. Brooks. The table was attractively decorated with miniature storks, a doll buggy, and a large pink, white, and blue umbrella protected the many gifts from "showers". Dainty refreshments were served following the opening of gifts.

War Activities chairman, Mrs. Ralph Sanders recently reported that members are cooperating wholeheartedly in raising the Order's station wagon fund. She also reported that El Tejon Parlor has received a citation from the treasury department for their effort in the Fourth War Loan drive. Their objective was for a Mobile surgical unit and the goal which was set was surpassed by $550. The parlor has also taken an active part in the American Red Cross drive and has endorsed a resolution opposing the return of Japanese to the Pacific Coast.

The members recently gathered in their meeting room to honor Florence Moore, a WAVE to-be. Miss Moore is the first member from the parlor to join the service. She was presented with a handsome gift and was extended a hearty farewell and best wishes.

Grand President Feted

Copa de Oro and San Juan Bautista Parlors, NDGW, officially welcomed Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg at The Adobe in San Juan, carrying out an Easter theme, March 24. Preceding the meeting, a 6:30 o'clock dinner at La Casa Rosa complimented the distinguished guest. Deputy Loretta McAleer, PGP Bertha A. Briggs, the presidents of the two hostess parlors, Marguerite Beresini and Theodora Shaw, Past Presidents Catherine Nyland and Mayme Avilla and seven candidates were honored guests. A large group of members of Copa de Oro parlor enjoyed dinner at the Big Apple inn in Hollister and later motored to the official meeting.

Opening ceremonies were conducted by officers of San Juan Bautista in white formals and carrying calla lilies. Copa de Oro's officers, in gold formals and carrying orchid crosses entwined with smilax and freesias, initiated seven into Copa de Oro parlor.

With much cackling and crowing, gifts were presented to Mrs. Noerenberg from a huge Easter egg such as only are produced by San Benito county hens. Guests were present from Los Banos, Salinas and Monterey. The meeting hall was a veritable bower of spring blossoms and buffet refreshments were served from prettily appointed tables centered with floral arrangements flanked by orchid tapers. Accordian selections by Alma Nyland added to the pleasure of the refreshment hour.

Mrs. Noerenberg chose as the theme of her message, "The Obligations California Women Owe to Our Government." The following morning, Mayme Avilla, hostess to the grand president, entertained in her honor at breakfast in San Juan, having as her guests President Theodora Shaw, Past-President Blanch Taix, PGP Bertha Briggs and Past-President Katherine Black.

Institution Recalled

Fifty-two years ago in a hall on Fourth street in San Francisco, where now stands the bus depot for the Santa Fe Trailways, Buena Vista Parlor No. 68, NDGW, was instituted. Of that first group of women who signed the roll, nine are still active in the parlor.

Thursday, April 20, at the Native Daughters Home, 555 Baker street, members of the committee served over fifty members and guests a home cooked dinner in honor of the anniversary. Mary Chilson who had been quite ill for some time was the capable chairman who not only attended to all details, but also assisted in the preparation of the dinner.

President Martha Field arranged unique entertainment in the form of a hat show. This affair was staged by Faye's Bonnet Box, and prizes of hat orders were won by lucky members. First Vice-president Sophia Pendergast won one of these orders. Table favors of hats and calla lillies gave the table a Spring-like appearance. Grand Vice-president Emily Ryan, Grand Organist Mae O'Keefe, SDDGP Loretta Cameron and DGP Genevieve Ames were among the honored guests.

Liberty Bells Junior Native Daughters Unit No. 1, Liberty Parlor No. 213, Elk Grove, sponsored its first dancing party Friday, March 31, in I.O.O.F. hall. Twenty-five young couples enjoyed a very pleasant evening. Light refreshments were served. The advisors of the group chaperoned the party. Miss Mary Beth Street, president of the Juniors, was general chairman. They expect to hold an initiation party soon.

WINCHESTER MYSTERY HOUSE

TO PARAPHRASE the title of the book, "Cities Are For People," by Mel Scott, San Jose's widely known planning engineer, might be "Cities Are Like People." Some are warm and friendly, others cold and austere.

Carrying the comparison further, a city or a person may go along for years being one thing or the other, without attracting widespread notice, until there comes a day of great opportunity or sudden awareness and the city or person stands forth revealed in true color.

So it was with San Jose. Its western hospitality was rooted in a colorful and romantic past, when the infamy of Pearl Harbor changed America's world overnight and San Jose, with other cities throughout the country, found itself host to thousands of men in uniform, both those stationed in or near the city and the countless others passing through.

The story of San Jose's response is history. The American Magazine, Reader's Digest, numerous other publications, and a national radio broadcast have paid tribute to the dramatic example this city set for all American communities when it speedily got into fighting trim and went all-out for the men in service.

With materials donated by local business firms and workers furnished by Labor Unions, augmented by volunteers, the city's USO Hospitality House was built in the City Hall Park in a single day. It not only was built from concrete foundation to sturdy roof, but it was outfitted with complete furniture and equipment. Many persons, including San Joseans themselves, have wondered since just how it was done, but the best answer is that it was the spontaneous act of a city that from its pueblo days has worked at being friendly. As the article, "San Jose Delivers," which appeared in the June, 1942, issue of The American Magazine, says toward the close:

"By noon, the roof was mostly shingled and the plumbing was practically done. Electricians were almost finished. Painters were moving up, spraying boards as the last nails were being driven.

"The furniture vans began to arrive in mid-afternoon. As fast as a yard of floor was waxed, a rug or a piece of furniture covered it. Pianos came, and radios. Citizens brought books and stacked them on the shelves. A ping-pong table appeared.

"At 5:30 in the evening, the last chore had been done. The house was finished. The volunteer workers didn't stand around to admire it, or to compliment themselves. Somebody flicked off the lights and they all went home. It was as simple and as magnificently casual as that."

Yes, it was a splendid example of teamwork, with organizations and individuals pitching in whole-heartedly. If San Jose was to take these lonely service men from all parts of the nation to its warm heart, it must have a suitable place—not only for the practical purpose of entertaining them, but as a symbol of "home."

That is the way San Jose jumped into the national spotlight on war activities, and to prove that this dramatic start was no flash in the pan, this city of beautiful homes in "The Valley of Heart's Delight" has been out in front ever since in making things pleasant for service men.

Their appreciation is attested to by the many letters received by the Chamber of Commerce, AWVS, Red Cross and other war activities organizations, together with the word of mouth assertions that "San Jose is the best liberty town on the Pacific Coast."

Santa Clara County's own are not overlooked. Every man who has gone off to war from this county has carried with him a little gift packet prepared by the San Jose Chamber of Commerce, which includes letters from Russell E. Pettit, Chamber Manager, and Joseph M. McKinnon, Chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, bidding him farewell and wishing him good luck and a speedy return home. This close tie, once established, is maintained by Christmas greeting cards and other communications. An equally fine record has been maintained on War Bond, Red Cross and other war service drives, all of them going over the top with generous margins.

Thus, modern San Jose is living up to the hospitable, open-handed friendliness which characterized the romantic Spanish era in which, as Pueblo de San Jose de Guadalupe, it was founded in November, 1777. It is the oldest incorporated city in California, and the first capital of California as an American State. San Jose State College, founded in 1863, is the oldest state public educational institution, and the University of Santa Clara at near-by Santa Clara, founded in 1777 as a Mission School and reorganized as Santa Clara College in 1851, is the oldest institution of higher learning in California.

lawyers were still a rarity in the northwest. He himself said that there was not a single lawyer in the Oregon House of Representatives that year.

The following June, the United States and Great Britain settled their claims to Oregon, and the Americans were in full possession of the country northward to the forty-ninth Parallel, the present Canadian boundary. However, despite an increasing influx of settlers, living conditions around Oregon city, the center of population, were still primitive and precarious. Money was scarce and trade was largely in barter. Burnett got along as well as anyone else, but he fared no better. He had to make his own shoes, patch his clothes ad infinitum, and make every useable item last as long as possible. Of course, he had good land—more than he needed to support himself and his family. But the lack of money persistently conjured up the spectre of his old debts. Even after he became a member of the Oregon Legislature he found it impossible to get his mind off his creditors back in Missouri.

In July, 1848, the most electrifying news in American history arrived. Gold had been discovered in California! The news of the discovery had taken a roundabout route to Oregon, going first to Honolulu, then Nesqualy on Puget Sound, and finally to Oregon City. "At that very time," Burnett said, "there was a vessel from San Francisco in the Willamette river, loading with flour, the master of which knew the fact, but concealed it from our people for speculative reasons, until the news was made public by the gentlemen connected with the Hudson's Bay Company."

All Oregon was agog over it! People were unable to talk about anything else and began to leave for California at once. To Burnett, it was the opportunity of his life and a chance to pay off his debts in a hurry. With the consent of his wife, who agreed to stay in Oregon till he had made his fortune in the mines, he resigned his seat in the legislature, organized a company of a hundred and fifty men and fifty wagons in eight days, and was off for California by way of Goose lake and Pitt river.

Meanwhile, Oregon had received territorial status from the national government at Washington, D. C., and President Polk had appointed Burnett a justice of the Supreme Court of the Territory of Oregon. The commission did not catch up with Burnett till the following spring. By then, he was so "sold" on California that he declined it.

Early November found Burnett at Long's Bar on the Yuba, where he panned about twenty dollars worth of gold a day for some five or six weeks before starting for San Francisco with the idea that California offered even richer rewards for a man of his talents. On his way to San Francisco, he stopped at Sutter's Fort to visit with some old friends from Missouri, a seemingly inconsequential thing to do, but actually the most fortunate move of his life. Young John A. Sutter, Jr., retained him as agent and attorney to sell town lots in Sacramento and attend to all legal transactions concerning the vast Sutter properties. His fee was to be one fourth of the "gross proceeds arising from the sale of city lots." The payment of Peter Hardeman Burnett's debts and the establishment of his personal fortune were assured.

However, all of his time was by no means given to the Sutter interests. He was alert to the fact that the manner in which California was filling up with people made the quick establishment of a provisional government a foregone conclusion. Consequently, he proceeded to get his name before the public. He made speeches, wrote letters to the newspapers, and presided over meetings. He became a member of the Legislative Assembly of San Francisco in May, 1849. The following August, Governor General Bennett Riley appointed him a judge of the Superior Tribunal of California, as the state's highest judicial body was then called. This appointment was the result of a vote that had been taken without his knowledge and, in a way, constituted a test of political strength that must have left him in high spirits.

1849 was certainly Burnett's year. As early as May, when his family arrived from Oregon, his name was well known to the California voting public. Fortune was more than merely smiling at the man who had failed as a merchant in Tennessee and Missouri, who in 1844, for the want of boots, had gone barefooted when plowing his Oregon wheat field. When the Constitutional Convention which opened at Monterey September 1 adjourned six weeks later, California's chief instrument of government was a reality and San Jose had been chosen the first capital under American civil rule. In the general election of state officials, held November 13, Peter Hardeman Burnett, running on the Democratic ticket, was the victorious candidate for governor.

The long grind of the state's governmental machinery began December 15, 1849, as both houses of the first legislature convened at San Jose. When the governor-elect took his oath of office on the twentieth, California possessed every requirement of an established state. Her executive, administrative, judicial, and representative wants had all been filled. By February, 1850, her petition for statehood was on the way to Washington, D. C., and seven months later, on September 9, President Millard Fillmore signed the bill that made her the thirty-first state of the American Union.

Burnett's term as governor lasted only one year and twenty days, from December 20, 1849 to January 9, 1851, when he resigned and was succeeded by John McDougal.

As his reasons for resigning, Burnett cited unforeseen and uncontrollable circumstances which demanded that he devote all of his time to his private affairs. "The real reason," according to Theodore Hittell, "seems to have been a consciousness on his part that he was not giving satisfaction." The politicians were getting out of hand, and he was no man to hold an office whose tenure depended on political chicanery. The San Francisco Daily Herald, one of the ablest journals of the time believed he should have stayed in office. "In a time of almost universal depravity," it said, "he has been thoroughly honest and, notwithstanding a great many temptations, he has maintained a character for uprightness. He has made many enemies and few friends—a thing which might not have happened if he had conducted himself with less regard for integrity."

Following his resignation, Burnett practised law in San Jose, until 1857, when Governor Neeley Johnson appointed him a justice of the Supreme Court of California. He retained this judgeship only until his term expired in October of the following year. By 1861, he had given up law altogether with no intention of resuming it. In the spring of 1863, he entered the banking business, framing the by-laws of the Pacific Accumulation Loan company, later named the Pacific bank. In June of the same year he was chosen president of this company to succeed Sam Brannan, who had resigned, and remained in the banking business till his retirement about 1880.

From 1854 to the time of his death in San Francisco, May 18, 1895, Burnett's official residence was in San Jose. Though he lived in San Francisco for many years while engaged in the banking business, it was always in a rented house. A half of his own house, which he built at Alviso in 1850 and moved to San Jose in 1854, can yet be seen on the west side of North First street, just north of the old Southern Pacific Railroad station.

Like the patriarch of the Bible, Peter Hardeman Burnett lived the good life and saw his children and grandchildren grow up and walk in the pathway of righteousness. He loved California with his whole heart and soul from the day of his arrival here, and passed that love on to his posterity.

The best in our human friendships is contributed in a practically unconscious way.

Historical Calendar

May 1, 1943—The first and only United States consul to California was appointed. He was Thomas Oliver Larkin, who did more to create good-will between Spanish-Californians and Americans than any other one person during that period. His office was in Monterey.

May 3, 1851—San Francisco was devastated by the fifth and most destructive of a series of fires, burning the business district between Pine and Pacific streets, from Kearny street to the Battery. Damage was estimated at $12,000,000.

May 4, 1852—The city of Oakland was incorporated.

May 5, 1829—Alferez Jose Antonio Sanchez of San Francisco and a number of citizens attacked Estanislao, a Cosumnes Indian chief who had been baptized and educated at San Jose mission. May 10, 1854—Amador county was formed by legislative enactment.

May 12, 1841—A French emissary who had been sent to California to report on the possibility of development of trade between France and Mexico and her colonies arrived in Monterey. He was M. Eugene Duflot de Mofras. He visited all the missions and settlements and in 1844 published a three volume work in French on Lower California, Upper California and Oregon.

May 13, 1817—An exploration party led by Lieut. Luis Arguello, commandante of the presidio, left San Francisco to explore the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. May 26, the party returned to San Francisco.

May 13, 1846—War was declared on Mexico by President James K. Polk, resulting in the American conquest of California.

May 13, 1854—Placerville was incorporated.

May 13, 1854—The State Agricultural society was instituted in Sacramento, its objects being to conduct fairs and promote agriculture and stock raising.

May 14, 1769—The first contingent of the land division of Portola's expedition to California arrived at San Diego. Captain Fernando Rivera y Moncada was the military leader and Father Juan Crespi was the spiritual adviser of the party.

May 14, 1856—James King of William, editor of the Evening Bulletin and a reformer was assassinated by James Casey, ex-convict. The San Francisco Vigilantes organized the next day and hung Casey and other offenders.

May 16, 1847—The first formal Protestant services in American California were conducted in San Francisco by Rev. James H. Wilber of the Oregon Methodist Mission.

May 17, 1769—The first permanent settlement in California was established when members of Portola's expedition moved their camp from temporary headquarters on the present site of San Diego, to that of North San Diego or Old Town at the foot of Presidio Hill.

May 21, 1822—California's first general election was held at Monterey. Electors from five presidial districts chose Governor Pablo Vicente Sola as their representative of the province of California to the Cortes of the new Mexican empire to which California had pledged allegiance April 11.

May 23, 1835—Los Angeles was raised to the status of a "city" and General Miguel Barragan made it the capital of California.

May 24, 1770—Portola, Crespi and Fages recognized the port of Monterey which they had failed to find in 1769.

May 27, 1827—Jedediah Strong Smith with two companions began his ascent of the Sierra Nevadas, which took eight days, from a camp on the Merced River.

May 31, 1847—Richard B. Mason of the First United States Dragoons was placed in charge of military forces and was made acting governor by Gen. Stephen W. Kearney while the latter journeyed to Washington.

Truth and virtue are the wealth of all men.

Comments on subjects of general in erest and importance received from readers of The Grizzly Bear

"Editor of the Grizzly Bear: A measure to tax Government owned lands, by the State of California, will be on the May ballot. This measure is relatively unimportant, if as stated in the press, it effects only lands acquired by the Federal government since 1938, it will only effect property with an assessed value of approximately $97,000,000. Compared with the total assessed value of the State, such government owned property would represent only about one and one-half per cent of the total assessed value of the State of California.

Most of this recently acquired land is in the five southern counties. In these counties the Government has acquired since 1938, according to press reports, about 325,000 acres. Compared with the total area of the State of California, which is about 100,000,000 acres, this property, so acquired by the Government, represents an area equal to about one-third of one per cent of the area of the State.

It has been stated that forty-three per cent or about 43,000,000 acres of the State of California is Government owned property and that large acquisitions have occurred during the last six years, all the time purposely creating the impression that all these vast holdings of 43,000,000 acres have been acquired since 1938. This they contend is due to New Deal policies, and results in a great tax burden on the people of this state.

An interview with State Treasurer Charles Johnson, a candidate for the Senate on the Republican ticket as reported in the Los Angeles Herald of April 14, is typical of this propaganda. According to the Herald, Mr. Johnson after stating that the Federal Government owns about 43,000,000 acres in the state, adds in a direct quotation, "This vast area is not all being used for war purposes. Millions of acres of forest and grazing lands have been grabbed by power-hungry officials of the New Deal." Nothing can be further from the truth.

In round figures ninety-eight per cent of the land owned by the Government in this state is public domain and was acquired by purchase when the United States signed the Treaty of Guadalupe February 2, 1848, with Mexico, and has belonged to the Government ever since. To recompense the state for whatever cost the state is put to on account of the Government owning this land, the Government gave to the state for school purposes, sections sixteen and thirty-six of each township, being one-eighteenth of all lands originally owned by the Government, which would amount to perhaps 4,000,000 acres. In addition the Government gave to the state many other benefits, among which are the tide lands and proceeds from timber sales. From one small part of the tide lands at Huntington Beach the state is now receiving thousands of dollars each month in oil royalties.

In the act which admitted California as a state into the Union, September 9, 1850, it is specifically provided, as a ruling element of that act, that no Government land as then held, could ever be taxed by the state of California, for to quote Chief Justice Marshall, "the right to tax is the right to destroy." But in lieu of taxes the state has been amply compensated as above.

Most of the balance of Government owned land in this state was acquired for war purposes. Far be it from our state to tax the war effort of our Government. To tax the war effort would be in principle like the action of France, in the last World War, when she is said to have charged our Government rent for the very trenches our boys fought and died in while fighting to protect France. Never let our proud state be guilty of such an unpatriotic deed! Sincerely, Owen S. Adams."

War Activities

War activities are occupying the spotlight in Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, NDGW. The parlor was one of the first organizations to provide the sum of $250 necessary to furnish a sun room at the Birmingham General hospital at Van Nuys and also to pledge $125 to the Native Daughters station wagon fund.

Meeting at the homes of members, the Hospital Workshop has established an enviable record in the production of articles to be furnished to veteran's hospitals. Since the first of the year the group has made thirty knee robes, thirty-two utility bags, seventy-six pairs of scuffies, eighty-nine toe sox, twenty-one fracture pillows, 203 cross word puzzles, and twenty covers for hot water bottles. The parlor donates ten dollars a month for materials, the sum being augmented by donations of both cash and materials from members and business firms.

Los Angeles Parlor's forty-third birthday was celebrated at the April 19 meeting with a bingo party. Refreshments were served by the committee, Olive Hedges, chairman and Evelyn Arlen, co-chairman.

The fourteenth annual session of the Women's Civic Conference, at the University of Southern California, April 20, was attended by many members of the parlor.

Following the Native Daughter tenets of "love of home" and "veneration of the pioneer" a Mother's Day party and tea will be held at the home of Alice Hamilton, Sunday, May 21, with Georgia Hart as chairman. Homeless Children sewing will be held at the home of Dora Davis, May 31, with pot-luck supper being served at 6:00 p. m.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 announces the following calendar for May: May 3, initiation and election of delegates to grand parlor will be held. On May 6 members will serve at the Main Street USO. The Hospital Workshop will meet at the home of Kate Williams, 649 South Mansfield, Los Angeles, May 12. A regular business meeting is scheduled for May 17. May 21, a Mother's Day party and tea will take place at the home of Alice Hamilton, 1903 So. Oxnard, Los Angeles from two to five in the afternoon. Sewing for Homeless Children is planned for the evening of May 31 at the home of Dora Davis, 5462 Norwich avenue with pot-luck supper to be served at six o'clock.

Marysville Parlor No. 162 NDGW, met in Forester's hall March 22. President Ida Murphy presided. Reports were made on recent card parties held for the benefit of the Homeless Children fund for which $100 was voted. A 6:30 o'clock covered dish dinner was held April 12, followed by initiation. A committee composed of PGP Esther P. Sullivan, Past President Ruth Manwell and Vice-president Margaret Wepponer reported on the resolution presented by PGP Grace S. Stoermer, regarding Japanese exclusion and citizenship. The legislation was approved by a unanimous vote. Corn cob pipes, Irish carts, and shamrocks emphasized the St. Patrick's motif in the banquet room where refreshments were served.

Five New Members

Five new members were initiated into Vallejo Parlor No. 195 at its meeting April 19, at the Vallejo Woman's Club. Large baskets of greens and calla lillies decorated the meeting hall. Colorful bowls of mixed spring flowers and pastel candles adorned the banquet tables at which delicious refreshments were served following the meeting.

The Americanization committee, under the chairmanship of Matilda Pappas, presented California State Bear flags and a short history of the emblem's origin to those who recently passed their United States citizenship tests. The presentations were made at a pot luck dinner and reception April 20, at the Methodist church. The affair was given by several of Vallejo organizations. Seventeen members of the parlor attended the dinner and reception.

Members also are busy making scrap books filled with gay cartoons and clever pictures, which will be presented to patients at the Mare Island Naval hospital the latter part of May.

Susanville Parlor No. 243 NDGW, Susanville, met in regular session March 21, with President Willa Coats presiding. A detailed report was made regarding the parlor's participation in the American Red Cross Fund Drive. Five members covered three sections of Susanville in soliciting donations. Six members volunteered to assist the American Red Cross by answering the telephone and giving information on the third, fourth and fifth Mondays of each month. Two women will serve each day.

A motion was passed that every member donate fifty cents toward the purchase of a station wagon to be presented at Grand Parlor. The usual donation to the Boy Scouts was voted.

A resolution was passed putting Susanville Parlor on record as being against reentrance of the Japanese to the West Coast either during the war or after, and a resolution favoring free enterprise also was approved.

Following the business meeting a party was enjoyed, secret sisters for the past year were revealed and names for the coming year were drawn. Members also contributed gifts for their annual Homeless Children's shower. The many gifts were varied and lovely.

United Nations Theme

"United Nations" was the theme chosen for the annual formal, history party of La Bandera Parlor No. 110, Sacramento, April 21. The evening began with a 6:30 Smorgasbörd in the banquet room and the table decorations featured miniature flags of the allied countries on blue and white tablecloths. A profusion of red, white and blue seasonal flowers were used as the decorative note in the meeting hall.

Edna B. Briggs and Ruth Peterson were co-chairmen and presented the following program. America was sung by the assembly; Franklin K. Lane's "Makers of the Flag," by the co-chairmen; presentation of Flags by La Bandera drill team and officers in white formals; musical selections by local high school students; greetings and expressions of good will to the United Nations by Edna Briggs; United Nations' song by a student; Old Glory by Ruth Peterson and the Star Spangled Banner sung by the assembly.

Other committee chairmen were: Dodge Glyer, Smorgasbörd; Myrtle Seavy, tables; Thelma Smith, decorations; Suerose Peters, hall arrangement; Nell Flanders, music; Olwen Henley, flag escort. President Lillian Simpson presided over the business meeting which followed the program.

Best Wishes to the Native Daughters from a Friend

An Age of Heroes

By Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg

"TO TAKE LIFE in the practical way which our beloved has put before us, is to be thankful for our great state, and to pray for a longer life to lift its ideals a little higher before we go; and in the service of its neediest citizens, there find a Heaven." These words of my mother bear especial significance for Native Daughters today!

Today we live in an age of heroes. Some heroes will find their names blazoned in head lines on the newspapers' front pages. Some will be decorated for their deeds of "gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty". Some whose numbers are legion—wearers of unseen medals; everyday Americans who will never fight a battle, win a medal, nor get in the head lines, but who go about their work with "the courage of the commonplace, the most wonderful courage in all the world," applying their tasks, too—"above and beyond the call of duty."

We will talk of these days in years to come as the age before which all others pale when one thinks of deathless deeds performed. We owe to our country's flag what man will forever call "the spirit of the fox holes".

There are moments when a pilot goes out on a mission which he feels he would rather die than live through. For most of us there are the quieter battlefields of peace, the courage of silent hours in solitary places; the bitterness no one knows; the suffering we endure alone. We must come to brave decisions with not a friend to help. We must bear pain for which no doctor has the cure. The life we live within ourselves may have indeed its "No Mans' Land" as we "go over the top". It is this quiet courage of the multitudes of people that makes a great nation.

The experiences of a Grand President have varied considerably this year, traveling alone by bus and train, station wagon, truck and even with the Highway Patrol to meet the various schedules, These experiences would fill a book. The other night in one of our mountain towns, one of the officers of the parlor came up to me and stated that she would have to give up her office to take care of her aged father, over ninety years old. Since he is blind, she would have to confine her work to something in the home so she was taking in ironing. I asked her if that wasn't a hard task. A smile came over her face when she replied, "Yes, it is hard standing from morning till night, but when I see the finished product all white and smooth, and the frills just so, it gives me courage to pick up another piece and go on."

Standing in Willetts waiting for the station wagon to take me to Fort Bragg, I noticed a man slightly bent, white-haired, and with bushy white brows that almost concealed his big, blue eyes; a man who had reached his four score years. There was a huge black suit-case beside him and off a-ways three boys, six, eight and ten years old, playing on the sidewalk. But the thing that attracted me most was the wriggly pink bundle in his arms. My curiosity got the best of me and when I found the bundle was a baby girl eight weeks old, my inquiring look was answered, "We've just come from my daughter's-in-law funeral. This baby's father is in the South Pacific fighting. He doesn't know his wife is dead and he has a baby girl." Another passenger over-hearing our conversation stepped up. "But who is going to take care of that baby?" she inquired. "Lady, I am," was the answer. "My wife is dead and I had those boys to raise. If I can do that job I can do this one too."

There was the thin pale-faced boy who sat beside me in the bus going to Eureka, just off convoy, having spent twenty-one months across. "It will be tough going home this trip even with the joys of seeing the folks because I owe my life to a brave lad. We were bombed. The next thing I found two of us in the water clinging to a plank. With the action of the waves, the plank began to splinter. My companion called to me. 'Buddy, are you married?' 'Yes.' I answered, 'and I have two children.' Before I could call he had released his hold on the plank, and silently slipped into the sea." Such is the courage of the commonplace!

The Children's Corner

"Would ye learn the road to Laughter-town,
Oh ye who have lost the way?
Would ye have young heart, though your hair be gray?
Go learn from a little child each day."

The Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West sponsor through a central committee, the Homeless Children, a most worthy project. The Homeless Children is one of two authorized adoption agencies in the State of California. The central office is at 998 Eddy street, San Francisco 9. Telephone ORdway 5241. Mary E. Brusie is executive secretary. The Los Angeles office is located at 3924 Sunset boulevard 27. Telephone OLympia 4105. Dorothy Schlingman is in charge of the Los Angeles office.

Parents Donate

"Enclosed is a check for the Homeless Children fund in memory of one of our dear friends, Mr. Henry Kirdman Jr., our neighbor and friend, who passed away quite suddenly, after a few hours of illness. They have a son nineteen and a daughter fifteen and their father's going is a tremendous shock to them.

It always is with the deepest feeling of gratitude that my husband and I think of the great blessings made possible by the splendid work of your organizations. Bob and Jim give us so much pleasure and pride and have developed into fine boys. Mr. R..... has been in the Navy for almost three years. We spent nine months in E..... while he was stationed there. He went to the South Pacific and returned last January. We had a most wonderful reunion and now 'Dad' is off again, this time to Florida. With the best of good wishes to our friends. Sincerely, A.R.R."

Lonely But Not Alone

"Have been intending to write the committee about our David who is a Lieut. in the Army Air Force. He is a pilot, went through his training with high honors and now is on his way to India. No mother ever had a finer son. He has married a very lovely, well educated and delightful girl. They are devoted. We are lonely but not alone. Best wishes, K.M.W."

Service Man's Share

Private Robert C. Miller, a member of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267, NSGW, now stationed in Camp Crowder, Missouri, has sent a contribution each month for the past three months to the Homeless Children fund. They have been received too late for this year's annual report but a fine spirit has been shown which is a credit to his parlor.

Annie K. Bidwell Parlor No. 168 NDGW, Chico, met in Native Daughters Hall, April 27 with President Alice Richardson presiding. Mrs. Lucy Girdler gave an excellent report of the recent successful card party for the Homeless Children fund and the parlor voted a contribution to the fund to be used to purchase one or more station wagons to transport blood donors to the blood bank.

Eight new candidates were initiated. Committee chairmen for the meeting were Mary Long, refreshments; Emma Greis, serving and Florence Drusbal.

Sgt. Bob Owen now has a New York postoffice address. Robert Lehnhardt, USCG has recuperated sufficiently to return to duty after having been confined to the hospital for a prolonged period. Cpl. Frank Medaglia, who was a patient in a Naval hospital in Honolulu is now recuperting in the Oakland Naval hospital.

Senior Hostesses

The San Francisco Native Daughter Volunteer committee for Hospitality House is approaching the close of the second year of service as Senior Hostesses. During the past year more than 25,000 men have been served by this group of women. All food, entertainment and special features are financed by them on their selected days as hostesses. Twice a month regularly, smiling faces greet the men and women in uniform and delectable food is served from twelve o'clock noon until ten o'clock in the evening. Together with the donations of hundreds of cakes, cookies, candies and cigarettes, over $1,200 has been disbursed for sandwiches, coffee, chocolate and milk. Gifts for birthdays, weddings and other special occasions have been given by several friends of this group.

Ruby D. Bried, of El Vespero Parlor, is the chairman of this committee, which is now a subsidiary of the San Francisco County Native Daughters of the Golden West Extension of the Order committee.

FUTURA

Behind the dark horizon
Lies a victory dawn
To light again fraternity
And blind forever, wrong.

Family Re-United

A happy family reunion occurred recently when Elmarie Dyke of Junipero Parlor No. 141 NDGW, Monterey, was visited by both of her sons who have returned from naval aviation duty in the South Pacific. Her elder son, Nelson Wm. Hyler, A.M.2/c, was severely burned in a gasoline explosion last August and has been having a series of graft operations at the Mare Island Naval hospital. His life was saved by the administration of many pints of plasma and whole blood transfusions. It was a coincidence that his mother is Blood Donor chairman for the Monterey peninsula and has been responsible for the donation of nearly 500 pints of plasma. When Nelson was returned from the South Pacific he saw his young daughter, Deanna Rae, for the first time.

Robert E. Hyler, A.O.M. 1/c, is a turret gunner with a carrier squadron and has seen duty in many battles. He received the navy honor wings with three gold stars and gold anchor for participating in more than three aerial battles. These two young men were attracted to the navy through the influence of their mother's brother, Lieut. Com. Elgin B. Hurlbert, who was decorated for his service at Midway on the historic carrier Yorktown. He is now on carrier duty in the Atlantic.

Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith, let us to the end, dare to do our duty, as we understand it.
—A. Lincoln.

When the war is over, trade to all parts of the world, will flow through our Pacific coast ports. Population will increase with 1,500,000 newcomers to California alone. We are looking forward to the greatest era of progress in industry and culture ever known to this state," the governor concluded, "And Native Sons and Native Daughters will keep apace with this development and make their posterity proud of the part they played in this period of California's history."

Millington carries any weight. A tract of land has been donated by a Mr. Livermore of San Francisco from adjacent lands if the state park is created. The Chambers of Commerce of Napa and Calistoga are also interested and the resolution endorses a bill to be presented at the next session of the Legislature by Senator Gordon asking that $7,000 be appropriated for the purpose and that this amount be matched by public contributions. The Native Sons will assist in raising the funds. The resolution was adopted without reference to committee.

The Finance committee presented a proposed budget, calling for a two dollar per capita tax and the report and recommendations of the committee were adopted.

Bells of the Past

By Past Grand President Mamie C. Carmichael

SAN JOSE, the oldest city in California, is once again privileged to act as hostess city to the Grand Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West. Again, as in June 1937, San Jose is proud and happy to be accorded that privilege.

Many changes have taken place, not only on the Pacific shores but all over the world since 1937. The awful cataclysm into which nearly every country on the globe has been plunged because of the avarice and cruelty of a few barbarious leaders, has thus far, affected only indirectly, our glorious land. Truly, California, "stretching down the middle of the world", and facing the Pacific battle fronts has been serving in many ways to help bring to a victorious close this awful conflict, but we, like all sections of our country, have thus far been spared the destruction of our cherished and treasured monuments that the people of many lands have had to face; the stamping out of the well nigh immortal traditions that have made races and mankind the masters of their destiny.

Let us continue to do all in our power to show our men and women, actually participating in this war, that we are with them body and soul. That "our bit" even though it looms large in our own minds is after all, just a "drop in the bucket" compared with the sacrifices being made by those in actual service.

For, after all, as the two organizations known as Native Daughters of the Golden West and Native Sons of the Golden West are built on the foundation stones of patriotism, love of home and native land, loyalty to the builders of our great commonwealth and a desire to perpetuate and revere the landmarks and traditions of our state, this Grand Parlor of 1944, must work toward the cementing with even stronger ties, the bases on which we have built and prospered.

The title, "San Jose, Oldest City in California," may come as a surprise to some of our readers. Many of us already know the early history of the city. It was on November 29, 1777 that El Pueblo de San Jose de Guadalupe came into being, by order of Felipe de Neve, Spanish Governor of Alta California. He selected the group who would compose the personnel of the new town. There were to be nine soldiers and their families from the presidios of Monterey and San Francisco, who knew something of farming. In addition to these there were to be five settlers who had come to Alta California with Captain Juan Bautista de Anza in 1776. These people with their leader, Lieutenant Jose Moraga, sixty-six persons in all, journeyed on foot from the presidio of San Francisco.

The site selected was a parcel of land on the banks of the Guadalupe River, about two miles north of the present site of the city's plaza. This site remained for about twenty years, but owing to the annual overflow of the river which caused damage to flocks and products, it was deemed wise to move the site farther south. The plan for the construction of the early Spanish settlements in California was the same. The missions, the presidios and the pueblos all were built around a central plaza. In this protected area and in the buildings grouped about it were carried on the civic, recreational and industrial life of the communities. By law a pueblo grant included four square leagues.

Each settler, known as a "poblador" was supposed to be allowed, for his own use, a house lot, a tract of land for cultivation, another for pasturing his sheep and cattle and in addition, a loan of stock and implements for a reasonable beginning as a settler.

Although the growth of the pueblos was slow, San Jose managed to survive even though, after a period of twenty years, it numbered only 190 persons. San Jose lays claim to another "first", in being the first American state capital of California. On December 15, 1849, a California State Legislature met for the first time in the State House situated on the eastern side of the plaza, on Market square. The building was of adobe and had been built to be used as a hotel. This building unfortunately was destroyed by fire in the early morning of April 29, 1853.

During that first session of the State Legislature the election of Gov. Peter H. Burnett and Lieut.-Gov. John McDougall was confirmed. They were inaugurated into their respective offices during the session. Other business transacted during that first session was the naming of the counties of the state; the naming of John C. Fremont and William M. Gwin as California's first Senators; and the choice of Edward Gilbert and George W. Wright as representatives to Congress. So we learn that our state government had been functioning for many months before California had been admitted into the Union.

In William H. Seward's address to Congress on the admission of California to the Union, he spoke thus of our state, "California comes from that clime where the west dies away into the rising east. California which bounds the empire and the continent; California the youthful queen of the Pacific, clothed in robes of freedom, inlaid with gold."

Mission Santa Clara is located in the university town of Santa Clara, three miles to the north of the city of San Jose, hence it is only natural that San Joseans look upon this mission as belonging partly to them.

The present site is the third on which the building of the mission was attempted. The first attempt was made on January 12, 1777, when the party from the mission and presidio of San Francisco arrived at a spot on the banks of the Guadalupe River near its mouth.

The party included Father Tomas de la Pena, Lieut. Moraga and nine soldiers. They marched down the peninsula until they reached what was seemingly a suitable location for the new mission. The volume of running water must have appealed to the party. On the morning of January 12, 1777, Father Pena celebrated Mass. Then, the mission goods, implements and cattle were brought from Monterey and the erection of the first mission buildings begun after a square of seventy acres had been laid out by the soldiers for use of the mission.

However, this site did not prove satisfactory, because the flood waters of the Guadalupe rose to such heights as to flood the mission and surrounding grounds. In 1780, the mission was removed to higher ground, the spot selected this time being about 150 yards southwest of Santa Clara's Southern Pacific station. Quite recently traces have been found on this site of buried adobe walls. Evidently these were all that remained of the beautiful structure designed by the architect Padre Jose Murgia. He took much pride in designing the new mission building which was dedicated May 15, 1784. Father Murgia, unfortunately passed away just four days previously. His remains were buried within the walls of the new building.

Here, Mission Santa Clara prospered. Its crops of grain and fruit, including grapes, olives and figs, provided for the temporal needs of the Indians, while the Fathers ably adminstered the spiritual training necessary to make good Christians of the new converts.

An earthquake in 1812 was seriously felt in Santa Clara as elsewhere in the state and a second one in 1818 so injured the mission buildings that it was decided to move once more, this time, to the present site, called by the Indians "Guerquensun" meaning "Valley of the Oaks." Work on the third church on the present site of Santa Clara Mission was completed in 1822, and was dedicated August 11 of the same year. Many changes have been made since the completion of this third mission building, but the interior and its ornamentations and furnishings have been partially preserved.

Santa Clara College was established in the old mission buildings in 1851. Following the decree of secularization and the departure of the Franciscans the lands of the mission and what remained of the buildings were transferred to the Society of Jesus. Father John Nobili S.J. was the founder of the college, and in 1855 it was chartered with all the rights and privileges of a university.

In the right belfry, two of the old bells still ring out their chimes while a third was recast in 1864. These bells are touching reminders of a glorious past. Santa Clara College has been mindful of the inheritance handed down to her, and has made every effort to preserve the relics of former days as a tribute to the faithful teachers of Santa Clara's Indian population.

ALTHOUGH of the same name as the Pueblo de San Jose, Mission San Jose is situated in Alameda County, about fourteen miles north of the city of San Jose.

The mission was founded by Father Fermin Lasuen on Trinity Sunday, June 11, 1797. At the time of its founding, the site was in Santa Clara county and was looked upon as a sister mission of Santa Clara.

The region is noted for its great stretches of rolling, well watered lands. With these resources the mission prospered and yielded bountifully of her products to add to the comfort and luxury of man. But the Indians from the nearby hills were treacherous and cruel and on several occasions proved difficult to handle.

This mission was originally a small wooden structure roofed with mats of woven grass stitched together. Though the buildings were simple in structure and quite modest as compared with those of other missions, they have received considerable attention.

The mission buildings were destroyed by earthquake in 1868. A new chapel was built on the old foundation, but bears no resemblance to the old structure, nor is it of mission design. But within the chapel are preserved many mementos of mission days. The church vestments, some of which are said to have been worn by Father Serra, are of richest silk and exquisite embroidery.

A Dominican convent school is located on the hills back of the mission site and an avenue has been laid out called Rosary avenue with fourteen stations at regular intervals.

"Gone our missions' life midst conflicts,
But the truths they sought to tell,
Shall resist the strife of ages,
For with God its might doth dwell!
Then grieve not at altars broken,
Or decay on cherished shrine,
God is greater than the ages,
Truth is like His life—Divine!"

He came with the light of love in his eyes
And the cross of Christ to the fore;
He kept his face to a star in the skies,
While his burden of pain he bore.

His only staff was the Christ-man's Cross
'Twas his precious burden there;
For he feared no foe, and he found no loss
Where he went with a good man's prayer.

And we who follow have found this way
A beaten path, and a smoother road,
For those good Padres of the olden day
Have lifted the burden and borne the load!

This introduction is a portion of a poetic tribute written to a Franciscan Padre by a Protestant Clergyman.

Thousands of visitors stroll annually in and out of the old Franciscan mission of California, urged in most instances by mere curiosity. I wonder how many of them pause, during their visitation, to reflect on the type of men these Padres were. These self sacrificing friars were the soul of the old mission establishments.

The courage, the fervor, the utter unselfishness of these holy men who labored year in and year out, day after day, along paths hitherto untrod by civilized man, are outstanding in the annals of colonization.

And connected with Mission Santa Clara is the name of the sainted Padre Magin Catala, who perhaps more than any other personality has left an indelible impression on its mission life.

Padre Catala, and his coworker Padre Jose Viader labored continuously for thirty-seven years at Mission Santa Clara. This service terminated with the death of Friar Catala in 1830. Besides his tireless labors for his "red children" during all those years, he practiced austerities that must have found favor with his great Master.

His tiny windowless cell where he slept on the floor, with an adobe brick for a pillow, is still preserved. A wing of the present Jesuit college devoted to relics of the past, contains the above and other mementos of the Sainted Catala.

For years during the height of his missionary labors, Friar Catala was a victim of rheumatism, but he made his painful journeys about the country always on foot, but was often compelled to accept the aid of a companion before reaching his journey's end. The Indian converts, as well as the Spanish colonists loved Catala and felt that in his companionship they were associated with a being from another sphere. They credited him with great prophetic and healing power. It is said that before his death, the good priest foretold many interesting events connected with California's future which have since come to pass.

Catala's love for his people was as outstanding as his fervor in the service of his Creator. In spite of his many spiritual sacrifices, he lost no opportunity in ministering to the temporal needs of the children under his care. Their bodily needs were taken care of, but in addition, he provided a means of recreation for them so they would be happy and contented in the fold.

At his funeral the Indians appeared so grief stricken that they cried out against his burial, and tore his garments from his body and kept the shreds as sacred reminders of the friend who was departing from their midst. A military guard had to be placed around the casket containing the remains of "El Santo" so the burial could proceed.

To the sainted Catala we owe the famous Alameda, the road that connects Mission Santa Clara with the city of San Jose. During the early days of the mission and the pueblo, his kind heart was grieved at the discomforts endured by the pueblo colonists, before a chapel of their own had been erected, in traveling the three miles back and forth to hear Mass at the mission. Their discomforts were especially increased during the hot summer months. Padre Catala planned a road that would be lined on each side with rows of trees. Under his direction the Indians planted the trees and in a very short time they had attained marvelous growth. Their branches reached out and meeting overhead, formed a shaded archway on the avenue named "The Alameda" by Catala.

The Stations of the Cross Padre Catala erected along the way have long since been swallowed up in the march of progress, as have the alamos or poplar trees he planted, but the picturesque Alameda still remains, a monument to the Holy Man of Santa Clara.

"Bells of the past, whose long forgotten music
Still fills the wide expanse
Tinging the somber twilight of the present,
With the color of romance!

Landmarks Listed

SAN JOSE, now a metropolitan city of 80,500 people, traces its colorful history back to the tiny Pueblo de San Jose de Guadalupe, which was founded in 1777, and has inside its limits, or only a few miles away, many old landmarks of the nearer and farther past.

Without attempting to fix the dates in this brief article, the more prominent of the historic spots come to mind. First in point of years and reverence is Mission Santa Clara de Asis, which is situated just outside the San Jose city limits in the adjacent town of Santa Clara.

Back in the foothills, ten miles south, are the New Almaden and Guadalupe Quicksilver Mines, still producing in a limited way.

One of the world's strangest monstrasities is the Winchester Mystery House, four miles from San Jose, a mad jumble of domes, cupolas, towers and minerats built at a cost of $5,000,000 by Sarah Winchester, who believed the spirits threatened her with instant death once she ceased building.

On south Eighth street is the Edwin Markham home, San Jose's memorial to "The Man With the Hoe."

Twelve miles away, near Saratoga, is Villa Montalvo, the beautiful, pillared baronial mansion of the late Senator James D. Phelan.

This area has two famous meccas for scientists, Lick Observatory atop Mt. Hamilton, 25 miles east, and the Father Ricard Memorial Observatory at the University of Santa Clara.

Too, within Santa Clara County there are the Palo Alto Tree, California's first and oldest living landmark, the home of former President Herbert Hoover on the Stanford University campus, and the California State Odd Fellows Home.

Alum Rock Park, a 716-acre municipal playground eight miles east from the heart of San Jose, is an original Spanish grant to the city.

Three blocks west of the Alameda, the city's famous tree-shaded residential street, is the home of the Rosicrucian Order, with its artistic administration buildings, museum and planetarium. A stone's throw away is the Municipal Rose Garden, with one of the outstanding rose collections in California.

Men to Match My Mountains

By Grand President Raymond D. Williamson

ACROSS THE FACE of the Library and Courts building in our state capitol at Sacramento are carved in blocks of granite the words "Give me men to match my mountains".

As we try to visualize the significance of those words, and as we keep in mind the extent of California, her geographical make-up, her extensive boundaries, her natural beauties and wonders, we know that she has much to give to those who meet her standards.

The early history of our great state is replete with the stories of men endeavoring to measure up to that mark.

We contemplate the journey of the pioneer as he crossed our boundary and proceeded through Truckee Pass, and as he looked ahead, his progress seemed to be impeded by almost unscalable cliffs. As he met the challenge of those crags and finally surmounted its summit, he must have felt in his heart the force and import of those words that have since been cut into that stone.

At the very portals of our state, in the days of '49 there seemed to be a sign post upon which were written, not words to be seen, but words that burned from within all those who sought to enter.

In his poem, "The Spell of the Yukon", Robert W. Service committed to writing that challenge that California gave unto her sons.

"Send not your foolish and feeble; send me your strong and your sane—
Strong for the red rage of battle; sane, for I harry them sore;
Send me men girt for the combat; men who are grit to the core;
Send me the best of your breeding; lend me your chosen ones;
Them will I take to my bosom; them will I call my sons."

We pride ourselves on being worthy sons of the great state of California and to her we have dedicated our united efforts.

"Give me Men to Match my Mountains". That was the clarion call that the great State of California that was to be sent forth, not only to the first pioneer who came by way of the overland route, but to all who followed, and only those survived who in some way could measure up to that significant statement of giving California men to match her mountains.

During the next few years we will celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of many great events and throughout the last almost 100 years of our great state's history, that call has been ever present and particularly so in the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West because to us has been handed a sacred heritage, demanding that we provide leadership in our Order, in all our various governmental functions and as the heads of our great commonwealth men who can measure up to the clarion call.

We who know California appreciate the magnitude of our task for in the far north, 14,453 feet high there towers Mt. Shasta, and in the southern end of the state is Mt. Whitney which is 14,496 feet high. These mountains are unmatched in our nation and it seems that nature with all her foresight and the grandeur of her bounty endeavored to equal those mountains with an abundance of foliage and with the great redwood forests she placed upon her mountain sides. It seems that California, fearful that those entering her borders might perchance be unmindful of her challenge, gave us those giants of the forest so they, too, would drive home her message.

Indeed there has been passed to us quite a standard. We have not been remiss in our obligation, for throughout the history of our state we have given, not only to our own state, but to our nation, men who were of outstanding ability and integrity. Today in California, we stand upon the threshold of a new era. Gold gave us our first impetus. Then came the golden era of agriculture; the black gold and our golden climate continued the magnetic force and though the evil of war is terrible, today this gigantic war enveloping the world seems to indicate to California that we are on a threshold of a development greater than was ever contemplated by the mind of man. Mere specks on a map of yesteryear have today become tremendous markets of the future. Today in California there is an industrial development far beyond the dream of any industrialist of the old world, of eastern shores or of California and again the clarion call of California goes forth, "Give me Leadership to Match my Mountains" and that call is directed at the Native Sons of the Golden West and we must meet the challenge.

During the last year, nearly 2,000 Californians have joined our beloved Order and in the next twelve months we have set as our goal a gain of 2500 members. If one out of every ten of each of our members brings in a new member during the year, this goal will be realized. We all know that if we tried, we could bring in many more than that.

We have a great Order. We have great men in that Order and the greatness of those men and the greatness of that Order is exemplified by the pioneer spirit that has always animated itself in our activities and in our work. In the pioneer spirit selfishness had no abiding place. Every member in each of our parlors must lend a shoulder to the wheel, and not sit back and rest upon past laurels. He must not sit back and be petulant like the spoiled child because he hasn't been begged to do the things he knows as a good Native Son he should do. We do not need little men, with little minds, but big men, such as California has asked for to match her mountains.

If we have accomplished great things in the past for our beloved Order, it behooves us to redouble our efforts and accomplish great things, not for any individual, not or any personal aggrandizement but for the love and glory of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

As the directing head of that organization, it is my desire to subordinate individuality and to concentrate upon the things to be done; to get every member of the Order active in a program that will multiply our membership and thereby give us strength to do the things that should be done by the Native Sons of the Golden West for California as we enter upon a new plane of existence in the world order of things.

As the head of that great Order, I feel like the Captain of a football team at the beginning of a tough game, and I in my humble way, as the head of this great Order, ask you, not for me but for your Order, to go forward. I ask as the captain of your team; as the officer in charge of the various squads; in the language of the crowd; in words we all understand, "Come on, Gang, let's go!"

A benefit boxing program staged April 28 resulted in a goodly sum being accumulated for the Homeless Children work. The annual rodeo is scheduled to be held July 1 and 2, a committee having been appointed to plan the event.

Robert Semple and the Constitutional Convention

By Richard Huxtable

Governor Earl Warren congratulates Richard Huxtable (right) of Woodrow Wilson High School, Los Angeles, on his victory in the Native Sons statewide high school oratorical contest finals held recently at Grand Parlor, May 16 in San Jose. Robert Haymie (left) of Mountain View Union High, Mountain View was runner-up. Huxtable spoke on Robert Semple, Santa Rosan who presided at California's first Constitutional Convention in Monterey in 1849, while Haymie's address concerned the life and work of John Muir. The public speaking contest was directed for the Southern California high schools by George M. Cuthbertson of Ramona Parlor No. 109, Los Angeles, and by Reynald J. Biachi of San Francisco Parlor No. 49 for Northern California.

In times such as these when our country is fighting for its very existence against a formidable enemy we are prone to look to the Federal government to watch the President and Congress. So intent are we on watching the activities in Washington that we are likely to overlook the functions and importance of the State governments. Now and then, however, we are suddenly called to attention on an issue which proves to us that the State governments are important and often exceedingly powerful. Recently we had reason to feel that power when the president felt the necessity of conferring with the governors on the matter of the soldier vote bill. In fact the state has always determined who shall vote and who shall not, the manner in which intrastate crimes shall be punished, and the ultimate authority on all issues not involving other states or federal decisions made under the provisions of the federal Constitution.

Like all sovereign bodies of any importance the state too must be controlled by a definite government as set forth in a written constitution or long established code of custom which lays down the governing principles and basic laws of the land.

Paralleling the birth of our federal Constitution, the constitution of the State of California was drafted by a group of distinguished, intelligent, courageous, and pioneering men who met for that purpose. They assembled September 3, 1849 in the second story of Colton Hall in Monterey. This building was at that time perhaps the only building in California suitable to the occasion. The room in which they met was but twenty-five by sixty feet in dimensions and was divided across the middle by a railing which separated the spectators from the delegates who had their chairs drawn up to four long tables. Before the group sat Doctor Robert Semple, the president-elect of that first Constitutional Convention. This man, despite his failing health, was the guiding light in the discussions that followed in the drafting of that all important document.

By birth a Kentuckian whose head towered six feet eight inches above his stocking feet, Robert Semple, a dentist and printer by trade, came to California in the year 1845. The Hastings party, in which Semple was one of twenty-two men was the last to cross the mountains into California before the snows of that year.

Semple joined the Bear Flag revolt in the following year in order to help with the overthrow of the oppressive Mexican government in that region, surrounding the home of General Vallejo at Sonoma and taking him prisoner. It is significant that these Bear-Flaggers represented a movement the aim of which it was to set up a "Republican government" in place of the "military despotism" which seized mission property, treated the people harshly, and placed unwarranted restrictions on trade. In their own words the new government would "guarantee civil and religious liberty, would detect and punish crime, would encourage industry, virtue, and literature, and would leave unshackeled commerce, agriculture, and mechanism." William Ide, the speaker for the revolters, summed up their political credo saying, "that a government to be prosperous and happifying in its tendency must originate with its people; that its people are its guardians, its officers its servants, and its glory their reward."

In 1846 Robert Semple in partnership with Walter Colton, who was at that time the Mayor of Monterey began the publishing of the Californian, the first newspaper in this territory. The press on which the weekly was printed had been brought from Mexico in 1832 by Governor Echandia. It was old and coated with rust but still was the only press in California. They had no rules, no leads, and the only paper to be had was old tobacco wrapper. The type too was corroded and because it was all in the Spanish alphabet there were no "w's", and therefore double "v" or two "v's" were used.

In connection with the six feet eight inches of man that was Doctor Robert Semple many anecdotes were written. For example, some humorists swore they had seen Semple attempt to ride a burro but soon found that he was walking off the animal. Others said he could wade the Carquinez Straits, while many claimed his spurs, to be of use when he was riding horseback, had to be strapped to the calves of his legs.

In the year 1847 Robert Semple obtained by deed from General Vallejo a tract of land five miles square for the erection of a city. On this land he and Thomas O. Larkin laid out and built the city of Benicia which through Semple's efforts was for a brief period the Capital of California and is today a port of entry.

With the coming of the epochal year of 1849, many Californians expressed the desire to become a part of the United States. To make this possible delegates were elected to attend a Constitutional Convention. From the ranks of such farvisioned and courageous men as Dimmick, Boggs, Foster, Snyder and Gwin, Semple was elected the president of that convention.

These men who had met for the drafting of California's first constitution were forced, sooner or later, to meet issues which would bring on great controversies, one of these issues being the matter of slavery. At that time there were fifteen free and fifteen slave states and, therefore, California's decision might change the course of history. These men, all believers in equality, said that no man shall be cast into slavery or involuntary servitude, except as criminal punishment, within the boundaries of California. This matter of boundaries too, was one of great controversy. Some of the delegates wanted a giant state which might in future years break in half and the southern portion become a slave state. Others of the delegates would have a smaller state over which a more centralized control might be exercised. In this a compromise was affected and nature's boundary of the High Sierras was chosen. These are but a few of the history-making decisions in which Robert Semple played a part.

This man who had been described by a current historian as a "good-natured, popular, honorable man of much intelligence, some education, a good speaker," said at the beginning of that first convention, "We are now, fellow citizens, occupying a position to which all eyes are turned. It is to be hoped that every feeling of harmony will be cherished to the utmost in the convention. By this course, fellow citizens, I am satisfied that we can prove to the world that California has not been settled entirely by unintelligent and unlettered men. Let us then go onward and upward and build a greater future for this our beloved state, California!"

Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 NSGW, San Bernardino initiated the following new members April 19: Hugh F. Armel, Robert D. Marks, Warner F. Rohde, Curt A. Sahr, Jr., William E. Bruhl, Dewey M. Campbell and Frank H. Gardner.

The Memorial Day committee arranged for the decoration of graves of departed members. Dr. Robert L. White was chairman and others who assisted were, John J. Cadd, M. G. Hale, James A. Marks and Leslie D. Case, all past presidents of the parlor and Sherman A. Wagner, Harry W. Truscott, Leslie D. Case and Robert White.

Hanford Parlor No. 37 NSGW, Hanford initiated three new members April 19. They are: Harry Verhuel, Anthony Caeton and Manuel Pinheiro. In the absence of President Nestor R. Lewis, the meeting was called to order by First Vice-president Lyman Griswold.

J. Frank Pryor was the speaker of the evening and gave an interesting outline of the history of Hanford and Kings county. Coffee and sandwiches were served following the meeting. Mrs. E. E. Carr made the sandwiches and Joseph Bertaina and his committee "dished them out".

Paul H. Gerrard, member of Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 NSGW, San Bernardino, was united in marriage to Dorothy L. Williams of Long Beach March 19 in the California Heights Methodist church in Long Beach. The Rev. Holland M. Tibscher officiated. Lieut. Gerrard is stationed at San Pedro and the newlyweds will make their home in Long Beach.

Orchids for Mothers

Gifts and words of appreciation were showered upon the mothers of Marinita Parlor No. 198 NDGW, San Rafael, Marin County, May 8. But all was not sentiment for a hilarious program was planned. A breakfast at Sardi's theme with Gresty Mazza as Tom Brennan provided a great deal of amusement. After an exchange of hats, the mothers were invited to the "Mike" where they were asked to relate some episode of their courting days or where they had met their husbands. Each of the honored guests received a gift. Elena Mazza, eighty-one years of age, received the orchid for being the oldest mother present.

Mrs. D. Vossbrink and Mrs. White Roberson, whose daughters, members of Marinita Parlor, are in the service of their country received orchids. Wishing rings were also provided. One mother wished for the safe home-coming of her son and another wished for a size forty coat. Old time songs were sung and everyone enjoyed delicious refreshments in the banquet room which was fittingly decorated. At one end of the room "mother" was spelled out and at the other "hello mom". Gresty Mazza and her committee planned the party.

During May the parlor also honored SDDGP Mrs. J. O. Gossett, supervisor of San Joaquin County and Elizabeth Baker, deputy to Ivy Parlor, Lodi and Harriett Welch, district chairman of publicity by presenting each with a gift. Mrs. Albert Fairfield, chairman, and her committee presented "Chinese Night", a skit with the members dancing in colorful Chinese costumes. A slogan for the committee delegated to send cards, goodies and other luxuries to sons, husbands and sweethearts of members belonging to the parlor was chosen, the winning phrase being "Keep 'em posted!" submitted by Mrs. Sanguinetti. A Maypole centerpiece enhanced the refreshment table planned by Mrs. L. Starin, chairman.

Historical Picnic

Highlights of Monterey's historical merienda (picnic) celebration were given by Mary Greene, custodian of Monterey's Custom House, when she spoke to members of Junipero Parlor No. 141, May 16. The merienda in honor of Monterey's 174th birthday will take place in Memory Garden, Saturday, June 3. Several members of Junipero Parlor are assisting the Monterey History and Art Association in preparation for this event.

An additional donation of fifteen dollars was made to the station wagon fund and another donation of fifteen dollars was made to the Red Cross War fund, making Junipero Parlor a member of Monterey's "Give Again Club". Clara Brown, Americanization chairman, was authorized to purchase silk Bear Flags to be given new citizens.

With the receipt of seven more applications, making a potential membership of ninety-one for the Parlor, it was found necessary to make arrangements for a larger meeting place, since the historic House of Four Winds will no longer accomodate the growing membership.

President Elmarie Dyke announced plans for a theater party at California's First Theater, honoring the cast with a buffet supper following the play, and appointed Carmen Mercante, one of the talented leading ladies as chairman. May birthdays were celebrated with Joan, Ada, and Josephine Giamona in charge of refreshments.

A May day theme featured the reception of Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg when she paid her official visit to La Reina Parlor No. 267, April 27 in the Arlington Masonic Temple, Los Angeles. Baskets of spring flowers bedecked the meeting room and the officers entered attired in white and wearing red flowers in their hair. Carrying bright crepe paper envelope bags filled with sweet peas, they formed an escort for the Grand President. The three candidates initiated were: Ida Esterly, Josephine Sulli and Marjory Pitney.

The Grand President spoke of the duty Native Sons and Daughters owe to our boys in the service. When asked how they feel about the return of Japanese to California, they reply, "How would you feel if you had left your buddies dead or wounded on the other side?" "This is the third year of the war," said the Grand President. "As Native Daughters it behooves us to bring peace out of chaos as our mothers did in 1849. One of the ways we can do this is by donating blood and if we are not able to give the precious fluid we should contribute substantially toward the station wagon fund."

President Orabelle Schmidt turned her gavel over to First Vice-president Frankie Walton while she sang "Come Out My Dearest Dear" to the Grand President and Ruth Verling presented her with a gift from the parlor. Other Grand Officers present were Grand Trustee Anne Schiebusch, Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer, SDDGP Beatrice Wahrmund and Deputy Kate Glavinic. A Garden of Roses

"THIS JUNE the month of roses," and Native Daughters visiting San Jose during Grand Parlor will surely want to see the Municipal Rose Gardens which during the months of May and June are a riot of bloom. Roses for California have a romantic historical significance, for the Spanish settlers coming to these shores in the eighteenth century found wild roses similar in beauty and fragrance to the roses of Castile blooming in abundance. To these they gave the name of "Rosas de Castillas" and many of the original old vines are still blooming in the mission gardens and in the patios of old adobe homes. Brought to this coast in later years was the delicate yellow Lady Banksia rose whose trailing vines have covered the verandas and corridors of many famous landmarks. Thus the study of roses and the part they played in the historical romances of California and the great interest Californians take in their development and culture is a fascinating one and Native Daughters will be thrilled with the rose gardens, lovingly tended and cared for by all the citizens of the city. There too, the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the community have started a miniature Redwood grove, planting a tree every Arbor day and dedicating one of these living monuments to some person or cause deserving of recognition.

San Jose's Municipal Rose Garden of five and one-half acres, devoted exclusively to plants and shrubs of the "rose family" is one of the very few of its kind in the world, and is an important reason why San Jose is noted as "The Garden City" in "The Valley of Heart's Delight."

The Santa Clara County Rose Society has been the inspiration and the real "creator" of the Rose Garden. The idea of the City's having such an outstanding attraction came from the beloved and energetic Mrs. Charles C. Derby, the first president of the Rose Society. November 20, 1927, the City Council, at the suggestion of Mrs. Derby and Mrs. Fremont Older, voted unanimously to set aside five and one-half acres of a previously purchased eleven acre tract of land at Naglee and Dana avenues for a municipal rose garden. The Santa Clara County Rose society obligated itself to provide the roses for the garden. April 7, 1931, ground was broken during appropriate exercises by Dr. J. Horace McFarland, President of the American Rose Society. John McLaren, creator of San Francisco's Golden Gate park, drew the plans for the local rose garden. June 1, 1931, was the date of the acceptance by the City Council of the garden plan.

The City Council of San Jose, the City Planning Commission, the City Parks department, and city officials have provided generously of city funds and of their personal interests and time in making the garden the famous park it is today. The one-time prune orchard has become San Jose's show place with approximately 300 varieties of rose plants, featuring the newest and best hybridizations and its unique sections devoted to special rose groups such as the show rose section, the new rose section and the foreign country rose section. Over 10,000 rose bushes will be found in this garden.

Numerous private individuals and several nurseries donated the hundreds of roses which were planted and which were set out by the members of the Rose Society. Many individuals and organizations have a very personal interest in the garden and this has definitely aided in the beautification of it. The reflection pool in the center of the garden was the gift of the San Jose Rotary club. The beautiful structural entrance was presented by Mrs. Andrew Christeson in memory of her husband. Mrs. Charles C. Derby, in addition to a most generous donation of her time and talents, gave the attractive sun dial. The concrete benches and the blue garden vases were the gifts of Mrs. Ella Reed and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Borchers, respectively and the City Planning Commission presented the bird bath.

The official dedication of the San Jose Municipal Rose Garden took place May 15, 1937, with John McLaren and Dr. Emmett Rixford, Sr., as the speakers, and was marked by the placing of a plaque at the entrance by Mrs. Andrew Christeson, the donor. The Santa Clara County Rose Society, the City Council and the San Jose Chamber of Commerce cooperated in making the ceremony appropriate.

A class of five candidates were initiated after which an inspiring session was held with all of the Grand Officers giving the large delegation of members present enlightening messages.

Historical Sites

A committee of county officials, headed by County Surveyor Alfred Jones as chairman, has been appointed by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors to formulate and carry out a program for marking historical sites in Los Angeles County.

Supervisor William A. Smith, first district, Los Angeles County, has been instrumental in forwarding a definite county program for marking historical landmarks. Mr. Smith is the chairman on historical landmarks for the Roads to Romance association, an organization embracing six southern California counties.

The Board of Supervisors, in addition to making a substantial appropriation for the erection of temporary markers of non-strategic materials, has appointed the following county officers as members oi a Historical Landmarks committee of Los Angeles County: Alfred Jones, County Surveyor, chairman; Helen E. Volgeson, County Librarian, secretary; Hon. Wm. A. Smith, Supervisor, first district; Dr. C. C. Trillingham, County Superintendent of Schools; Eugene Biscailuz, Sheriff of Los Angeles County; Claude H. McFadden, Deputy County Counsel; Arthur Woodward, Curator of History, County Museum; R. F. Flickwir, Deputy County Surveyor, assistant secretary; Dr. Owen C. Coy, chairman history committee of the Board of Governors, County Museum, and Director of the State Historical Association.

The Board of Governors of the Los Angeles County Museum, which constitutes the official county division of history, science and art, is anxious to enlist the active support of historically-minded citizens in order that this program may be widely effective and based upon accurate historical data. Organizations and individuals interested in local history and willing to cooperate are invited to attend, or send representatives to a general open conference to be held at the museum, in Exposition Park, Los Angeles on Wednesday afternoon, June 7, 1944, at two o'clock.

The Carriage Trade, we call it, since Native Sons and Native Daughters, having inherited a flair for riding in hacks and hansom-cabs as did their pioneer ancestors, were seen all over San Jose, enjoying the luxury of upholstered seats, with out the necessity of parting with gasoline coupons.

Honor Sheriff

University Parlor No. 272 NSGW, Los Angeles, will honor Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz at its June 14 meeting. Los Angeles' popular sheriff is a past president of both Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 and Los Angeles Parlor No. 45. Members of Santa Monica Bay Parlor are particularly invited and the visiting parlor having the largest delegation will receive a special war saving stamp valued at five dollars.

President Bernarr Wade, who will not be present has asked Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss to give a resume of Grand Parlor and to officially express the gratitude of the parlor for their support. First Vice-president Al Meyers will be master of ceremonies and has an exceptionally fine program outlined. It is hoped a class of candidates will be presented by the host and visiting parlors. Norman Wenzell is chairman of refreshments. Walter Wells is clean-up chairman and Woody Wade will head the serving committee. Hosts for the evening will include Winton Dapron, Julian Whittier, Jack Curran and Franklin Zello. University Parlor meets at 1832 South Hope street, Los Angeles.

Jap Exclusion

Japanese exclusion organizations with the backing of two California Congressmen launched a campaign to bar Japanese permanently from the Pacific Coast area at a meeting in Fairfield May 12.

W. A. Holley, chairman of the Solano County Japanese exclusion committee declared he received wires from Congressmen Leroy Johnson and Claire Engle stating they are one hundred percent back of Jap exclusion organizations and that they would do everything in their power to help bar Japs from the Pacific Coast.

Dr. John Lechner of Los Angeles told the Assembly that the Japanese have "wanted the Pacific Coast for many years" and urged strong steps to prevent Japs from returning to the coast in the postwar period. Dr. Lechner declared that legal barriers should be set up against the Japs.

Members of the American Legion and of the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West were present at the meeting. Spokesmen for all groups urged the closest cooperation in launching a permanent Jap exclusion movement.

Initiation

Fourteen new members were initiated into Tuolumne Parlor No. 144 NSGW, May 11. Following are the names of the new members: Stanley Arnot, J. M. Brinkenhoff, Chas. W. Golob. Ed. Minners, Norman Kern, Louis A. Volponi, Paul Mangoli, Walter C. Castle, Elmer G. Wight, Robert D. Griffiths, J. M. Sylva, James M. Bucci, Don A. Shimer and Matt F. Lawrence.

Membership Awards

In the February bulletin, "Grand President's Corner" Past Grand President Millington announced to all parlors that those initiating fifty or more members from January 1 to the close of Grand Parlor, May 18, would be awarded a prize of $125.

The Parlors that met the required quota in the designated period are Sacramento Parlor No. 3, which initiated fifty-six; Stanford Parlor No. 76, fifty-eight; Tuolumne Parlor No. 144, sixty-two; Los Banos Parlor No. 206, fifty-four and Santa Ana Parlor No. 265, fifty-two.

Each of these parlors has shown an outstanding achievement during the Grand Parlor year, with members responding with zeal to the call of united action to sponsor the interests of the state and nation. Tuolumne Parlor was very dormant and only in December of last year was reorganized. From a nucleus of a few ardent Native Sons it has become a strong and active parlor. Santa Ana Parlor No. 265 was also quite inactive until this amazing growth, nurtured by loyal Native Sons of the south occurred. The accomplishment of Los Banos Parlor No. 206 is outstanding. The town is small and many are away in service and those at home have had to work doubly hard.

Each of the parlors is to be congratulated on winning the prizes and even more for the spirit of Native Sonism and patriotism shown in rallying more and more Californians to carry on for the glories of the state.

Admiral Joins

Admiral William H. Standley, USN, retired former chief of naval operations and erstwhile American Ambassador to Russia, joined Stanford Parlor No. 76 NSGW, San Francisco, May 16 coincident with the opening of the sixty-seventh Grand Parlor in San Jose.

Admiral Standley acted as Secretary of the Navy after the death of Henry L. Roosevelt and during the prolonged illness of Secretary Claude A. Swanson. He now heads the office of Strategic Services Planning in Washington, D.C. He is a native of Ukiah, where he was born December 18, 1872, son of Sheriff Jeremiah Standley of Mendocino County, a pioneer who crossed the plains from Missouri in 1854. The venerable California naval chieftain was Captain of the USS battleship California in World War One and served in the Spanish-American War, the Boxer uprising in China, the Philippine insurrection, the Vera Cruz campaign, and represented the United States in the London naval conference a decade ago. He was a member of the board of inquiry into the disaster at Pearl Harbor. His home is at La Mesa, California.

James Tuffree, Past President Mother Colony Parlor No. 281, whose subject was "Random Shots"; May 4, Henry I. Dockweiler, "Japanese in California After the War"; May 12, Lieut. Governor Fred Hauser, "Reconversion of California Industries"; May 19, Report on Grand Parlor Convention, Reorganization of Luncheon Club. MISS DORA ZEYN, a member of Eschscholtzia Parlor No. 112, Etna, Siskiyou County, and a native and resident of Anaheim, Orange County, passed away April 28. Deceased was born in Anaheim December 3, 1861, but upon the death of her mother was sent to San Francisco to reside with relatives. When she was eighteen years of age, she returned to the family home where she grew to womanhood and became a leader in the social and civic life of the community, which her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Zeyn helped to establish in 1857.

Hattie Leader

Once more the grim Reaper has entered the Native Daughter Home, to bear away a Native Daughter to a happier realm, where she may see His face, and feel the joy of being near Him. Hattie Leader was born in Vallejo and came to San Francisco in 1875. She was a member of Alta Parlor No. 3 NDGW. Later she became a charter member of Buena Vista Parlor No. 68 which she joined in 1892. She died April 23, 1944, and leaves two sons, Herbert and Russell, one grandchild and two sisters, Sue Platt and Belle Maclennan.

During the nine years she lived in the Native Daughter Home, she was always helpful. She never shirked. If the world had more like her, it would be a kinder and better place in which to live.

To die; to sleep no more
And by a sleep, to say we end
The heartache, and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to; 'Tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wished.

—PGP Mariana Bertola, MD
Chairman, Native Daughter Home

She served in that capacity from the time of her appointment until her death.

58TH GRAND PARLOR

Native Daughters of the Golden West

SAN JOSE . . . JUNE 12, 13, 14, 1944

Today, more than ever before in world history, woman is bearing the brunt of wars.

Surely today woman has a tremendous right and duty to replace chaos. Consequently, our Order should take first place among California organizations in bringing about solutions of the many problems facing the beneficial continuance and even the very existence of Californian and American institutions and ideals.

Encourage membership in the oldest patriotic women's organization in our state; an organization with projects which suffice the needs and wants of every woman.

Invest in these principles...

Love of Home,
Devotion to our Flag,
Veneration of the Pioneers,
And an abiding faith in the existence of God.

THIS IS YOUR ORGANIZATION! THIS IS YOUR CALIFORNIA!

"Where Parking Is Effortless"

An Independence Day Alliance

By Isabel Fages

Over the hand-painted, eighteenth century fan she held before her dark eyes, the lovely Rosalia Vallejo shyly glanced in the direction of a tall, young man, fair of skin and courteous of manner, who at the moment was seating her brother's wife across the room. The Americans had just finished showing the Californians how the Virginia Reel was executed and it was planned that next would come the slow and dignified Contradanza or "contrariwise" dance also known as the Spanish minuet. She had been too timid to attempt the complicated reel, but no lady present could surpass her grace in executing the steps of the dances of her people. "Would it not be fun to show this handsome Jacob Leese the fascinating steps of the contradanza?"

As though he had heard her thoughts, her host turned from paying his respects to Señora Francisca Benicia Carrillo de Vallejo and walked straight to Señorita Rosalia, where he bowed low to her watchful dueña and asked, "Would the Señorita do me the honor?"

Lowering her fan and glancing coyly up at him, she replied in the language of the fan with a slow nod and when the signified music began, they moved toward the center of the room where they formed a group of four with a second couple. Twenty or more couples had gathered thus, many of whom were Anglo-Saxon men gamed with Spanish ladies. There was no time to talk in the Contradanza and it was as all Señorita Rosalia could do to keep her partner moving in the right direction. When the two returned to Rosalia's bench, Jacob Primer Leese seated himself beside her and they engaged in lively but decorous conversation since the dueña sat with her eyes glued to their happy faces and kept her ears attuned to picking up any unbecoming amorous phrases. It is a matter of history, though, that in spite of the vigilance of the chaperon the young man did fall irrevocably in love with the pretty girl and that she returned his affection.

Rosalia was the sister of General Mariano G. Vallejo, comandante of the Northern Department of California and Jacob Primer Leese was a partner in the firm of Spear and Hinckley in Monterey and owned the ship, Don Quixote. He had obtained the grant to a lot next door to the adobe house of his friend, Captain William A. Richardson, who when he had become the first Harbor-master of the newly established Yerba Buena, had erected a shack of wood and canvas. When he constructed a more substantial house on the north side of La Calle de la Fundacion or Foundation Street, it was the first house of the first resident of Yerba Buena.

Leese had material for the construction of his house on his own sailing vessel moored in the bay and when he decided to build, he determined to celebrate the Fourth of July in his own home. As he toiled day and night with his Indian laborers to complete the structure, Captain Richardson offered to make a journey about the countryside, all around the bay into nearby settlements to issue invitations to the unique event and of course, he made a special trip to the home of General Vallejo in Sonoma to invite him, his wife and sister.

At ten o'clock in the morning, July 4, 1836, the house was completed and flags and bunting from the American ships in the harbor were used for decorations. The Stars and Stripes and the flag of Mexico flew side by side in front of the new building. Although the house was large, it was necessary to erect two tents to accommodate the guests and a spacious, temporary dining room covered with canvas provided shelter for the diners.

And what a feast was placed before them! Combining the heartier Spanish dishes with the delicacies brought from Leese's ship, the pleasure of testing new dishes added to the merriment.

Truly, it was an occasion to be recalled by historians as promulgating a feeling of friendship and trust between the Spanish and Mexican citizenry and Anglo-Saxon newcomers. It was California's first American Independence Day party held in 1836, more than ten years before the Treaty of Cahuenga, making California American, was signed.

Toasts were drunk to both countries and their flags and General Vallejo proposed one to George Washington while salutes were fired from the American and Mexican ships anchored in the bay. The dinner was a five hour event. Dancing commencing at ten in the evening did not cease until five the next morning and picnic at Rincon Point was a feature of the second day's festivities.

And so they were married! Rosalia and her handsome American! They were not the first to form an alliance between families of Spanish-California background and the newcomers from the United States and other countries! Capt. Richardson already had wed the vivacious Maria Antonia Martinez, a daughter of Comandante Ygnacio Martinez of the Presidio of San Francisco. Many more daughters of the aristocracy of early California succumbed to the charms of Americans, thus forming a closer tie between them and paving the way for the bloodless conquest that was to follow.

With the birth of Rosalia Leese, daughter of the romantic pair, April 15, 1836, was recorded the birth of the first child of American parentage in the village of Yerba Buena. With the Richardsons, the family became known as social leaders in the settlement. Jacob Primer Leese was responsible for bringing the first grist mill to the town, which when installed in a two story frame building, turned out twenty-five sacks of flour a day. He owned and managed a fine general store, with a luxurious twenty-five thousand dollar stock and he with his Spanish and American friends helped promote good feeling and friendship among Californians of all nationalities. When the first and only American consul to California, Thomas O. Larkin, received his appointment May 1, 1843, Jacob Primer Leese became one of his staunchest supporters.

He is remembered as one of California's finest and most exemplary citizens and his American Independence Day party was a helpful factor in promoting good will among Californians.

The Children's Corner

"Would ye learn the road to Laughter-town,
Oh ye who have lost the way?
Would ye have young heart, though your hair be gray?
Go learn from a little child each day."

The Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West sponsor through a central committee, the Homeless Children, a most worthy project. The Homeless Children is one of two authorized adoption agencies in the State of California. The central office is at 998 Eddy street, San Francisco 9. Telephone ORdway 5241. Mary E. Brusie is executive secretary. The Los Angeles office is located at 3924 Sunset boulevard 27. Telephone OLympic 4105. Dorothy Schlingman is in charge of the Los Angeles office.

THE ravages of war have increased the Homeless Children work, and although the cost is high, we must carry on this great humanitarian effort. It is quite difficult to say we must do more when the members of our Orders have been more and more generous down through the years. But the carrying on of this work depends on the generosity of our members and friends. Now more than ever we need to re-emphasize our slogan, "Every Member, a Contributor."

We have cared for over 6,000 children! Not all were placed for adoption, but all required the expenditure of time and money. This problem is growing and will continue to grow. We must be prepared to meet the increase.

Thirty-four years of this work has surely proved that fraternal organizations, such as ours, can successfully engage in a constructive, humanitarian work with all of its responsibilities and obligations and we know that every member feels a pardonable pride for the part he has played in this success.

Total receipts toward the general fund from April 1, 1943, to March 31, 1944, were $27,965.42 and the total operating expense was $24,459.03, leaving a surplus on hand of $3,506.39.

These figures do not include the hundreds of dollars in money value, nor the hundreds of hours spent in loving work making tiny garments for precious babes, whose entire future and happiness depends on your willingness to share your worldly goods with them.

New Native

A Native son arrived on March 21 at the home of John A. Kingsley, member of Arrowhead Parlor No. 110, NSGW, San Bernardino. The baby is named John Patrick.

Ellen Wilson, president-elect of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 NDGW, has reason to be proud as her husband, Leo J. Wilson, is now "Captain Wilson." He is stationed at the Marine Base, San Diego, California.

WAR CONFERENCE REVIEWED

NOTABLE for its achievements was the Native Daughters War Conference held in Scottish Rite Temple, San Jose, June 12 to 14. Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg was escorted to her station by an escort team of twenty-eight delegates from the southern area and an immediate escort of ten members from Californiana Parlor No. 247 of which she is a member. Flanking the room on each side, the delegates attired in white formals entered carrying flags. After they had formed an "M," the team marched around the room and escorted the Grand Officers through an arch of flags. At the altar they were greeted by Mary Joan Noerenberg, daughter of the Grand President who presented each with a poppy and saving stamp corsage. The Grand President's immediate escort, gowned in pastel formals wore similar corsages. Margaret Kerr of Californiana Parlor No. 247, Los Angeles, arranged and directed the drill.

Orabelle Schmidt, president of La Reina Parlor No. 267, Los Angeles, sang "America," "America the Beautiful" and "I Love You California" during the escort work and was accompanied by Grand Organist Mae Ethel O'Keefe. Two members of the American Women's Volunteer Service escorted the American and Bear flags to the altar.

Grand Trustee Margaret Farnsworth, chairman of arrangements for the Grand Parlor presented a gavel to Grand President Noerenberg who then invited Past Grand Presidents Grace S. Stoermer, Cora B. Sifford and Hazel Hansen to sit with her on the rostrum.

Other Past Grand Presidents introduced during the sessions were, Esther R. Sullivan, Ariana Stirling, Emma Lou Humphrey, Emma G. Foley, Mamie C. Peyton, Mamie P. Carmichael, May C. Charter Member Flora Podesta Ferraro was introduced and escorted to the rostrum. A partial report of the Credentials committee was presented by PGP Anne Theusen. The session had opened with 334 delegates, nineteen grand officers, one permanent member, nineteen past grand presidents and seventy visitors in attendance.

Reports of Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler and Grand Treasurer Agnes Curry were read and approved. Past Grand President Humphrey presented a partial report on the State of the Order, referring recommendations of the Grand President, Grand Secretary and Grand Treasurer to various committees.

An impressive memorial service was then held, presented by the Santa Clara County parlors and Elizabeth Read, Ursula Parlor No. 1, Jackson, Amador County, read an inspiring eulogy dedicated to Emma Forrest Boarman Wright, permanent member.

Commander Wassell

The Monday afternoon session was highlighted by the appearance of Commander Corydon M. Wassell, MC who was accompanied by Grand Treasurer John A. Corrotto, NSGW. Dr. Wassell described his experiences in caring for and evacuating twelve wounded men from Java. He spoke of his seventeen years of missionary work in China with his wife. When they returned to this country in 1927, they warned Americans of Japanese ambitions and treachery, but said people only responded with such exclamations as, "Those Crazy missionaries!"

The speaker commended the Koreans and Javanese for their fine treatment of American boys. He said they had built coffins for the dead who would otherwise have had to be buried in common graves. The Javanese and Dutch gave freely of their own blood to save the lives of our boys.

With his twelve wounded men on board a small ship which had only one out of three chances to escape, the Doctor asked his charges if they wished to be put ashore where they faced equal dangers, but the boys replied, "Stick with the ship, Doc." They did stick with the ship and reached Australia in safety. The speaker's parting admonition to the Native Daughters was, "Stick with the Ship!"

Station Wagons Presented

State Chairman of War Activities Margaret A. Kerr was introduced and presented a check for two station wagons to Mr. Vern Simmons, Pacific Coast Director of the American Red Cross who commended the work of the Native Daughters and cited cases where blood plasma had saved the lives of service men. A pilot who had been severely burned and had been saved by forty pints of plasma, returned home and when completely recuperated donated an equal amount to save the life of some other service man. Mr. Simmons described the American Red Cross as the American people collectively in action.

Other guests for the afternoon were Col. Charles L. Quigley, director of the San Francisco Blood Procurement Center for which one of the Station Wagons was destined; Mrs. George Cameron, chairman of the Red Cross Motor Corps, San Francisco; Mrs. Clifford Jones, in charge of the San

NSGW Official Visit

He was accompanied by Grand First Vice-President Richard McCarthy, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Past Grand President Charles Koenig and Grand Trustees Edward Wren and Peter T. Conmy and Grand Outside Sentinel Roy Tarleton.

The Grand President of the Native Sons extended his compliments to the presiding officer and presented her with an arm bouquet of red roses. He said that since it is claimed that California will have a population of ten million in 1950, it should be the objective of both Orders of the Native Sons and the Native Daughters to have a membership of 100,000 by that time.

N. J. I. Pieper, special agent in charge of the San Francisco office of the FBI outlined the problems of the FBI today. He said in part: "This is one of the most important meetings you have ever had. It comes at a time when titanic efforts on the battle fields are fashioning the future of the world. . . . Our victorious fighters abroad must have the weapons and supplies to carry on their fight. They must also have a good home and a good community to which they can return."

The speaker cited the necessity for alertness to the dangers of espionage, sabotage and crime affecting the war effort and warned, "Beware the careless word!" Of greatest interest to Native Daughters were his remarks on the problem of juvenile delinquency.

"For scores of years, it has been the aim and purpose of your organization to serve nation and state by becoming worthy of responsibilities placed upon you and endeavoring to live up to the highest standards of American citizenship.

The speaker concluded with the exhortation, "You who are met here today are pledged to such high ideals and purposes. Today these can be accomplished by training youth to be good Americans not only as a mother, but as a citizen, the instruction and guidance of youth!"

Mr. Pieper was accompanied by Lewis D. Wine, also a special agent of the FBI.

When the guests had been escorted from the meeting, Grand Parlor was called to order to hear the report of the Native Daughter Home Committee, by PGP Dr. Mariana Bertola, chairman as printed in the Advance Reports. Director of Youth Authority

Karl Holton, director of the state Youth Authority recently created by Governor Earl Warren was introduced Wednesday afternoon. He enumerated many reasons for so-called juvenile delinquency. One of the most important, is the lack of trained leaders in the various fields of youth activity and another is that organizations fail to cooperate in community enterprises, and throw rocks at one another, thus weakening what service they might otherwise extend. Overlapping agencies and co-ordinating offices also tend to weaken the structure. The director said the average age of delinquents had been considerably lessened. Methods of prevention were then outlined. One way to prevent delinquency, he said, is to place youth in industry during spare time; cooperation with the War Council; study of problems in counties; improvement of public agencies; proper attention devoted to detention homes, most of which have been condemned as unfit places in which to live. He also said that the detention of children under sixteen in county jails is against the Federal law.

He concluded with the advice that, "Citizens must have a spiritual rebirth and we must dedicate ourselves to making our boys proud to come home."

Mr. Holton remained to hear the enlightening and interesting report of Mary Bruise, general chairman of the Homeless Children project. At three-fifteen, a Flag Day radio broadcast was heard over Station KQW, when state radio chairman, PGP Grace S. Stoermer and State War Activities Chairman Margaret Kerr discussed the history and projects of the Native Daughters and outlined the history of the American flag.

Flag Presentations

An impressive flag presentation ceremony was then conducted. The Grand President offered silk American and Bear flags to representative citizens of Boys' City, Vincent Butera, city manager and Buster Tarlio, city clerk, who accepted the gift with all the eloquence and confidence of adult civic leaders.

Exalted Ruler of the Elks, BPOE Lodge No. 522, San Jose, Pat Le Deit received a Bear flag to be flown in front of the San Jose club house. He was accompanied by BPOE members B. L. Martin and Louis Rossi.

HOW YOU CAN ASSIST THE JAPANESE LEGISLATION COMMITTEE

By Grand Third Vice-President Walter H. Odemar, NSGW
Chairman of Grand Parlor Committee on Japanese Legislation

THE enlarged Committee on Japanese Legislation of the Native Sons held its first meeting in the Grand Secretary's office in San Francisco, Saturday morning, June 14. The two new members, Frank M. Buckley of National Parlor No. 118 and Wendell T. Robie of Auburn Parlor No. 59 were welcomed by the other members and demonstrated their enthusiasm in the committee's efforts by making several important and timely recommendations.

The most important decision of the meeting was that another solicitation for funds so greatly needed to carry on its work will be made. All members of the Order are to be asked to donate one dollar to the committee and special efforts will be exerted to procure a donation from those members who have not heretofore contributed to this fund. Many members, and others not in the fraternity, want to do everything within their power to prevent the return of the Japanese during the war but do not know how they can help. They may never have been asked to donate towards this cause. Plans are being perfected by which this appeal will reach each member of the Order. They will be told that this is the way they can help and they should send their donations direct to the Japanese Legislative Committee at 414 Mason Street, San Francisco 2, California.

The Committee desires everyone to know that no one has authority to solicit or accept funds for this vital project except the committee at its headquarters and that anyone, member or nonmember, wishing to be a part of this popular cause should send his contribution direct to the office of John T. Regan, Grand Secretary, 414 Mason Street, San Francisco 2. He will receive an official receipt showing the date the contribution was received and the amount thereof.

It is urged that every member of our fraternity send at least one dollar to the committee to carry on its necessary work.

The committee decided to continue its publicity campaign, which has been quite successful, and to expand it by sending the releases to many newspapers in other sections of the country so that the facts regarding the Japanese menace may in that way be made known to the citizens of all parts of the United States.

A second printing of 50,000 copies of the pamphlet, "Why the West Coast Opposes the Japanese" was authorized by the committee. All persons having friends or relatives in other sections of the country to whom they would like to send copies of this pamphlet are urged to communicate with the committee at its San Francisco office or with any member of the committee and pamphlets will be sent them. It is the committee's hope that this pamphlet will be sent to every section of the land and it earnestly asks for the help of all persons interested. Let us know where you would like them sent and we'll send them. Better still, get pamphlets and send them yourselves together with your personal letter.

The committee also decided to ask the California American Legion Committee on Japanese Legislation to meet with them at a joint meeting as soon as possible so that the present efforts on this vital subject may be coordinated. It is hoped that other organizations working toward the same end will be anxious to cooperate in a vast joint campaign to educate the people throughout our country in the fact that the prevention of the return of the Japanese to the West Coast during the war with Japan is actually necessary to protect the military personnel and equipment from every part of the United States.

Many persons from other sections of the United States who rightfully are opposing the War Relocation Authority's efforts to colonize their sections with Japanese are unthinkingly advocating their return to this area and "to those places where the Japanese lived prior to their evacuation." These good people do not realize just what that means. They do not know that every vital war material factory, bridge, airfield, harbor and oil field would be surrounded and could easily be sabotaged by these returned Japanese. Nor do they appear to understand how easily shipping can be watched and how simple it would be to radio ship movements to lurking submarines off our Coast. If the people in the other parts of the United States can be made to understand some of the facts about the Japanese and the reasons why the Army had to evacuate them from this Coast when they did, then they will not be asking that they be returned while we are at war, for they will then realize that their sons may be lost by the treachery of some returned Japanese.

Ours is a problem of education, of letting the persons in other parts of the United States know we don't blame them for not wanting Japanese colonies in their midst but that they should join us in demanding that these evacuated people be kept in the relocation centers for the duration of the war and not sent to colonize any section whatsoever. You can help us in this educational program by sending the pamphlets to those whom you know where it will do the most good.

And don't forget that it takes money to carry on this fight. You may send your contribution to the Committee on Japanese Legislation, 414 Mason Street, San Francisco 2, today!

Mother Colony Parlor No. 281 NSGW, Anaheim, recently celebrated its first anniversary, honoring Charter President Jim Tuffree. The occasion was a success from start to finish. At its meeting June 13, members enjoyed the showing of authentic war pictures. These films were actual scenes of hand to hand combat fighting. John M. Johnston was responsible for arranging the program.

The letter also advised that the resolutions pertaining to the Japanese question had been referred to the War Relocation Authority.

A letter was received from the State of California Division of Beaches and Parks, acknowledging receipt of the resolution adopted at the last Grand Parlor concerning the Mountain Home tract located in Tulare County.

A letter was received from James S. Dean, Director of Finance of the State of California, acknowledging receipt of a letter from Governor Earl Warren and attaching a copy of Assembly Bill No. 1504, an act relating to the National flag and the State of California flag and other flags, in which it provides that—"if only one flag pole is used, the National flag must be above the state flag and the state flag shall be so hung as not to interfere with the National flag above and at all times the National flag must be given first honors." A letter was also received from Isadore Dockweiler, Chairman of the Grand Parlor Flag Committee, giving the same information concerning the display of the Bear Flag.

The committee appointed by former Grand President Wayne R. Millington to report on the contemplated course in California History in The College of the Pacific at Stockton submitted the following: "The undersigned, appointed a special committee by the Grand President to report upon the proposal of the College of the Pacific to establish a foundation for the purpose of research and the publicizing of early California history with particular emphasis on California gold rush days, has carefully studied the proposal as outlined, and makes the following recommendations:

"The Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, from its inception, has been a leader in all efforts to encourage the study of California history, and to preserve historic shrines, and during the Order's existence its record has been outstanding. The proposal of the College of the Pacific for the establishment of an early California history foundation particularly emphasizes the gold rush days, and in view of the approach of the hundredth anniversary of the discovery of gold, and the admission of the state into the Union, makes such a proposal most timely.

"Your committee feels that the Order should encourage the proposal of this university, the oldest college in the state, which was founded in San Jose in 1851, and now located at Stockton in close proximity to the gold rush area. Stockton in the early days was a trade center for the southern mines.

"The plan of the college embodies suggestions for the hiring of a full-time director of the foundation for the purpose of guiding activity; proposes certain allowances for research; the building up of a library to obtain historical references; the scheduling of a caravan tour into the gold region; helping to promote the centennial of the gold rush; holding an annual institute on the College Campus and providing outstanding authorities as speakers. Courses in gold rush history are also included.

"Your committee further recommends that the Order, without assuming financial responsibility for the setting up of such a foundation, lend every possible encouragement, and assist within its means, contingent on total funds being pledged from other sources sufficient to carry out this purpose of establishing such a foundation. Respectfully submitted, Joseph R. Knowland, Peter T. Conmy, Richard F. McCarthy." The report was approved.

Richard F. McCarthy, chairman of the Historic Printing Press Committee, reported progress.

A visiting board official form was submitted, and after various changes were made it was adopted as corrected. Changes were also ordered on the postcard mailed to subordinate parlors by visiting grand officer.

The grand secretary was authorized to have 1500 rituals printed and mail eight copies to each parlor at the cost of one dollar each. It was also ordered that a new ritual be forwarded to each member of the Board of Grand Officers.

Grand Third Vice-president Walter H. Odemar, Chairman of the Committee on Japanese Legislation, reported that a meeting of his committee was held in the morning previous to the Board meeting and that the demand for the pamphlet prepared by the committee has been so great, that another order for 50,000 will be placed. The sum of $2000 was transferred from the fund in the name of the committee on Japanese Legislation to the general fund of the Grand Parlor.

Chairman Odemar requested permission of the Board of Grand Officers to solicit further funds from members. The request was granted and solicitation shall be made to members of the Order.

After a thorough discussion on the financial condition of the Santa Rosa Hall Association it was decided to accept the offer of the Santa Rosa Hall Association for $2500 in cash and $2500 in stock of the corporation in lieu of the $5000 worth of bonds of the corporation now in the possession of the Grand Parlor.

After some discussion on the merits of spending approximately $400 on repairs of the NSGW building at Truckee, or disposing of it for $400, PGP Jesse H. Miller offered to look into the matter and recommend action to the Grand President. The Grand President appointed PGP Miller as a committee of one to make an investigation of the condition of the building.

Grand President Williamson appointed Grand Trustee Peter T. Conmy; A. P. Nasatir, San Diego Parlor No. 108; Daniel C. Murphy, Mission Parlor No. 38; Grand Historian Emmet Joy and Rockwell D. Hunt, Ramona Parlor No. 109 as a committee to suggest names for the honorary roll to be presented at the 1945 Grand Parlor. As the Board of Grand Officers must approve the names suggested by the committee it was ordered that a report be in the hands of the Grand Secretary prior to the last meeting of the Board of Grand Officers held before the 1945 Grand Parlor.

Past Grand President Jesse H. Miller reported that he, representing the Native Sons and I. M. Peckham, Stanford Parlor No. 76, petitioned the Superior Court of San Francisco to divide the funds in the possession of the Grand Parlor known as the Phelan Telegraph Hill Monument Fund, as follows:

The Society of California Pioneers to have half of the principal left by the late James D. Phelan, totaling $12,500 and the Grand Parlor to retain the balance including the interest on this legacy which interest totals approximately $8,000.

The condition agreed upon and submitted to the Court is that the Society of California Pioneers shall use their portion of this legacy to gather historical data pertaining to California and maintain the same in the museum now owned and operated by the Society of California Pioneers, and the Native Sons through its Landmarks Committee shall use the portion given to the Grand Parlor for marking historical spots in California and the name of Phelan shall be inscribed on all monuments or placques.

Past Grand President Miller recommended that the amount of the legacy received be invested and the returns from the investment be used each year for marking the historic spots, and that in no one year shall more than $1000 additional be expended from the fund. Past Grand President Miller also recommended that the expenses for legal work in connection with this matter be paid from the earnings of the fund during the time it has been in the possession of the Order and the amount of these expenses to be fixed by the court.

Miller advised that the Superior Court decided on the plan above outlined. The Phelan estate appealed to the District Court of Appeals and the District Court sustained the decision of the Superior Court. A hearing was denied by the Supreme Court.

Jesse H. Miller was empowered to prepare a return to the Court with the signatures of the Grand President and Grand Secretary. A committee of three was appointed for the purpose of reviewing and approving the report prior to submission to the Court. It was suggested that Grand President Williamson act on this committee and he accepted and appointed Junior Past Grand President Wayne R. Millington and Grand First Vice-president Richard F. McCarthy to act with him.

It was voted that the principal of the Phelan legacy belonging to the Grand Parlor be invested in United States bonds, Series G.

Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss, secretary of the Directors of the Grizzly Bear Publishing Company, reported on the work entailed in publishing the magazine since the reorganization of the directors.

It was decided that Admission Day be celebrated locally in all parts of the state.

Grand President Williamson appointed Grand Trustee Hiss, Junior Past Grand President Millington and Grand First Vice-President McCarthy to prepare a new pamphlet to be used in the solicitation of membership and to make a report by July 15.

Grand President Williamson reported to the board that the net membership gain from January 1 to date was 713 members.

Action, Not Words

By Grand president Emily C. Ryan, NDGW

AS I stand before you in this position, I am filled with varied emotions—with pride for the honor bestowed upon my parlor, Las Lomas No. 72; with gratitude, to the delegates of this and many preceding Grand Parlors, whose assistance and support has made it possible for me to attain this office, with humility, in the memory of the pioneer women who founded our beloved Order, and with faith and hope that I can and will carry on in their distinguished footsteps in faithful service to the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

When this great Order was founded, it was for the purpose of promoting cultural and educational advancement for women. For over fifty-seven years the organization has flourished, increasing its scope of activities from year to year until the present day when it embraces a program broad enough to cover the needs and requirements of women in every walk of life.

It is significant that this installation should take place on June 14—Flag Day, because it was the birthday of one who was an inspiration to me and encouraged me to go on. I refer to Past Grand President Margaret Grote Hill of Alta Parlor.

Today, Flag Day has a deeper meaning than ever before. It is the symbol of our American plan of life. The prayers of the American nation on Flag Day flow from the full and anxious hearts of all our people.

The American flag is physically and visually beautiful and spiritually immortal. June 14, 1777, 167 years ago today, the American Congress brought into official being the flag of the United States, representing a new constellation.

Let us fly it proudly! Let us look upon it adoringly! Let us serve it loyally! Above all, let us be worthy of it now, deserve its benefactions and safeguard the institutions of which it is a symbol. Let us secure those benefactions to all future Americans.

It is my sincere intention, with the assistance and cooperation of the entire membership of the Order, to further all projects sponsored by the Native Daughters, stressing the Homeless Children work, the Native Daughter Home, California missions, scholarships, public speaking contests, war activities, civic participation, history and landmarks, Americanism, young women's activities, music, pioneer roster, drill and drum corps, Junior Native Daughters, Veteran's welfare, education, radio, scrapbooks, roll of honor, and extension of the Order.

It is important that we should increase our membership by inviting eligible California women who may enjoy the many privileges and opportunities offered by our Order to join us. Grand President Raymond Williamson of the Native Sons of the Golden West has set a goal of three thousand new members during his term. Let us accept that challenge for a similar increase in our ranks!

San Jose is a lovely city and this has been a very fine convention. The general chairman Margaret Farnsworth and her committee are deserving of much praise for their splendid efforts. I am especially happy to have been installed into office here, because I served in my first Grand Parlor office, that of Grand Outside Sentinel in the civic auditorium in San Jose, and at the request of San Jose Parlor No. 81, the first official visit of the new term will be held here June 29, the occasion of the Parlor's fiftieth anniversary.

Whatever I may do in the coming year that may be of service to the Order, I dedicate in loving memory to my husband, Cornelius J. Ryan, whose every thought and plan was for this moment which would have been his proudest.

May I congratulate the newly installed officers and wish for them a most successful and happy year. As we face a year together that may have many problems, let us hope that all our efforts will be crowned with the happiness of achievement. Let us be guided by the slogan, "Action, Not Words" and the Native Daughters of the Golden West will emulate the deeds of our pioneer fathers and mothers to greater and better things in a world that will be better and brighter for their having lived a brief time upon its surface.

Marysville Parlor No. 162 NDGW conducted memorial service May 24 in memory of their departed member, Mary Ramsey. Sunday, May 28, members decorated the graves of departed sisters in Sierra View cemetery and the graves of many of the pioneer dead in the Marysville City and Catholic cemeteries, among them being the graves of Mary Covillaud for whom Marysville was named, and Charles Covillaud, the founder of Marysville.

Picnic Under Trees

Copa de Oro Parlor No. 105, NDGW, Hollister, enjoyed a sunset share-a-dish picnic at the country home of Emma Chandler Libao, May 31. Tables were spread with a bountiful supply of hot dishes, salads, cakes, home-made bread and coffee under spreading trees besides the swiftly flowing stream. After all had partaken freely of the appetizing food, a happy hour was spent around the roaring campfire with assembly singing and story telling.

The parlor acted as hostess at the USO for the week of May 29 through June 4, furnishing and serving all refreshments and entertainment. This was their second hostess period during the past few months.

Past Presidents Party

Past Presidents' Association No. 13, NDGW, was entertained by Katherine Black and Bertha A. Briggs, May 29. The social period was devoted to the playing of military Bridge, the contenders being the Army and the Navy. For successfully defending her home base (Hollister) Eileen Hansen received all the American Flags used in the game. Josephine Winn, whose score card bore the word "Victory," was the recipient of a copy of "History of the American Flag". Mary Prendergast, successful contender in a quiz on the "Stars and Stripes" was awarded a book on "Flag Etiquette". Edna Butterfield received an award for outstanding Navy sportsmanship.

Flower arrangements were in the national colors. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening, a surprise feature being a delicious cake contributed by Mayme Moran.

Chispa Parlor No. 40, NDGW, Ione, honored Deputy Grand President Elmerie Tonzi at a special social meeting May 19. Mrs. C. Phillips was chairman of the occasion. Mrs. G. Wemple presented twelve of her pupils in a program of music, dancing and recitations. Dixie Lee George, pupil of Mrs. I. E. Brubeck accompanied the children and Miss Mary Jane Johnson sang three well received songs.

The Deputy Grand President was presented with a gift by her small daughter, Elmerita, and responded graciously. Cynthia Phillips, Mary Johnson and Ella Bacon served ice cream, cake and coffee to an attendance of eighty.

Chispa Parlor held a card party May 24 with Edith Campbell, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee in charge assisted by Barbara Cogely, Lena Musetti, Bell Ashton, Katherine Schmidt and Sophia Hammer.

Civic Leaders Invited

Accenting its close relations with civic life in the community, Reina del Mar Parlor No. 126, Santa Barbara, invited 100 men and women leaders to the reception following their meeting marking the official visit of Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg the afternoon of May 28. The Woman's City Club was beautifully decorated for the event in the colors of the Order.

A class of candidates including the following were initiated: Maybel N. George, Margaret O. Graham, Dolly Bainbridge Hoefling, Alice O. McDougall, Mary Agnes Nagelmana, Viola A. Lugo Schouff and Patricia Lee Winn.

Gowned in white and wearing red and white corsages, the officers formed a flag escort for the Grand President, assisted by a team from Santa Maria Parlor No. 276.

Other honored guests were Grand Trustee Ann Schiebusch, SDDGP, Mary Wagner, DGP, Helen Franz and Charter Member, Soledad Rochin Bierbent. Nineteen out of thirty-five living past presidents were present. The adoption of two babies was announced in honor of the Grand President and eighty dollars was presented to her for the station wagon fund.

The Grand President likened Native Daughters to a temple of loyalty and friendship builded fifty-eight years ago, and asked that members of the Order steel themselves for the needs of life.

Daughters Institute New Parlor

One of the most thrilling experiences of a grand president of the Native Daughters is the institution of a new parlor and to Past Grand President Mary B. Noerenberg, was given the privilege of officiating at two such ceremonies during her term of office. The Last Roll Call

Clara E. Hunt

ONLY to a few outside the membership of the Native Sons and Daughters has been accorded such universal love and esteem as was felt for Clara E. Hunt, wife of the late Clarence M. Hunt, who was editor of the Grizzly Bear for so many years. Mrs. Hunt died June 21, less than a year after the death of her beloved husband.

Although not being eligible for membership in the Native Daughters, Clara Hunt attended every open meeting and party she could and members looked forward to greeting her. She was fondly introduced as the representative of Missouri Parlor.

Clara E. Hunt, daughter of the late William R. Price and Linda Price, was born in Lamar, Missouri, April 1, 1879. Her family moved to Portland, Oregon, thence to Sacramento where Clara finished High School and became the bride of Clarence Hunt, March 22, 1900. In 1904 they moved to Los Angeles where they resided the remainder of their lives.

Mrs. Hunt was the mother of Lucille Bullard, member of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 and Carvel P. Hunt. She is also survived by her mother, Linda Price and three grand-children, Donna and Jack Bullard and Lorraine Hunt. To Clara E. Hunt, we dedicate these words of the poet Holmes:

Can we not dream that those we love,
Are listening in the world above?
And smiling as they hear
The voices, known so well,
Of friends that still are dear.

In Memoriam

To the Officers and Members of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 NDGW: We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of love and respect to the memory of our beloved and esteemed friend Clara E. Hunt, submit the following:

Our Heavenly Father has called unto Himself our friend and confidante; thus taking from her home a devoted mother, daughter and grandmother, and from us a loyal, faithful and true friend who in her dealings with mankind exemplified all the attributes and requisites of gracious womanhood; and while we bow to the will of our Heavenly Father we will retain in our hearts a lasting memory of love and affection for Clara E. Hunt;

That we extend our sincere and heartfelt sympathy to her daughter, Lucille Bullard, member of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, to her son Carvell and to her mother, Mrs. Price, and may golden memories lessen their sorrow;

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, and a copy be sent to the Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Respectfully submitted,

ANN SCHIEBUSCH,
JUANITA PORTER,
GRACE J. NORTON,

Nellie Sherwood

Nellie Sherwood, a member of Albany Parlor No. 260, NDGW, passed away Saturday, May 27, at Berkeley General Hospital. She was a charter member of the parlor and quite active on all committees. A native of San Francisco, she had been a resident of Albany for the past twenty years. Services by the parlor were conducted with Marguerite Aguayo, Hazelett Taylor, May Ellis Olson, Margaret Cannon, Mildred Johansen and Nellie Graham as officiating officers.

Marjorie Hogan

Marjorie Hogan, late president of Lugonia Parlor No. 241, was born in Los Angeles, November 4, 1903. She was a resident of Los Angeles for a number of years, and married Richard Hogan. They had two children, a son Dickie and a daughter Ann. Mr. Hogan's health failing him, they moved to San Bernardino in 1930. Mrs. Hogan was employed in the sheriff's office for several years and was also active in civic affairs being a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club. She joined Lugonia Parlor No. 241 several years ago and at the time of her death held the office of president. She was loved by all who knew her and Lugonia Parlor has suffered a great loss.

In Memoriam

To the Officers and Members of Lugonia Parlor No. 241, NDGW: We, your Memorial Committee, submit the following resolution:

Whereas, The precious ties of love, friendship, and fraternity once again have been suddenly severed and our hearts are filled with sorrow in the loss of our Sister and President, Marjorie Hogan.

Whereas, In God's living providence we have been asked to give up one of earth's dearest gifts. This sudden breaking of golden threads is only another of the many mysteries that surround us, but we are assured that for each mystery there is a key and that sometime we will understand.

It is resolved, That we extend to her bereaved family our sincere sympathy. May they find much comfort in knowing the world was made better by her having lived in it, and the spirit of kindness she exemplified in her daily walk of life will stand as a monument time cannot erase.

Had she not loved as kindly,
Had we not loved so dearly,
Never had we met, nor parted,
We would not have been so broken hearted.
—Robert Burns.

Be it further resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to her family, to The Grizzly Bear Magazine, and that it be spread upon the minutes of the parlor.

Respectfully submitted,

ELIZABETH TYLER,

Sons See Drunkard

Appropriately celebrating their fifty-seventh institution anniversary by witnessing the gay nineties melodrama, The Drunkard, at the Theater Mart, Ramona Parlor No. 109, NSGW, Los Angeles, wrote the occasion down as one of the most riotous in its history.

Attending such plays with serious intent, fifty-seven years ago Native Sons and their wives and sweethearts could not have been more generous with their applause for the redeemed hero nor more vociferous in their dislike for the villain. Refreshed with beer, pretzels and sandwiches, the members and their guests raised their voices in song during the hilarious olio or after show. Among notables present were PGP Eldred Meyer, Grand Third Vice-president Walter H. Odemar, Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss, Deputy Sheriff George Contreras, Hon. Joseph Scott. Ray Howard was chairman of arrangements for the evening.

Mrs. Noerenberg deplored the conditions prevailing in California due to the migration of many undesirables to this state and warned Native Sons and Native Daughters of the necessity for watchfulness, especially in the problem of old age pensions. "Keep this state, a state for Californians. Feel important in the job you are doing no matter how small," was the Grand President's advice. California's Plymouth

July 16, 1769, civilization began in California in San Diego, where Mission San Diego de Alcala was founded by Father Junipero Serra. On the site of the old presidio where this event occurred, a celebration will be held at two-thirty in the afternoon, Sunday, July 16. There Europeans first settled in California and there the first military fortification, the first irrigation ditch and the first cultivated fields were created.

For sixty years the presidio was held by Spanish Leather Jacket soldiers and artillery reinforcements. It was manned by Mexican military for another fifteen years and after 1846, officers and personnel of the United States army and navy were stationed there.

It has been well said that what Plymouth Rock was to the region facing the Atlantic, so Presidio Hill and the Serra Museum on its crest are to the great empire facing the Pacific—the Plymouth rock of the West!

Exercises will be conducted under the auspices of the San Diego Historical Society and a citizen's committee; after which a reception will be held in Junipero Serra museum, a monument to the pioneer priest whose names it bears.

Dr. A. P. Nasitir, Professor of History, San Diego State College and member of San Diego Parlor No. 108, NSGW, will speak on the "Spanish Military Occupation."

Judo Strategy

Exposé of Judo (jiujitsu) strategy as incorrectly taught by Japs to Americans is to be told and demonstrated by Galen Gough at the Native Sons Friday Luncheon Club, Los Angeles, July 14 at the Rosslyn Hotel. Mr. Gough will be docilely assisted by Pat Hogan in showing how the Japs in seeming to teach Judo tactics to Americans in the armed forces were actually making them vulnerable to quick death at the hands of Judo-trained Japanese soldiers on the battlefield. Mr. Gough is available to Native Son and Daughter parlors to bring them his story and may be contacted through the Luncheon Club.

At the July 21 meeting, Edwin A. Meserve, dean of past presidents of Ramona Parlor No. 109, will be honored on the occasion of his eighty-first birthday. He will be presented with a fifty-year pin to replace one he lost.

Families Honored

Grace Parlor No. 242, NDGW, Placentia, entertained their families in observance of Mother's and Father's Days with a covered dish supper May 18. After the dinner, old time songs were sung and an old fashioned spelling bee was held. The contest ended in a tie between Nellie Cline and James Campbell. The prize was conceded to the gentleman guest. Mary Williams received the mystery package.

At the regular meeting June 15 with Pauline Johnson presiding, the following were elected to office: President, Mae Lemke; first vice-president, Edna Gendar; second vice-president, Helen Hilliard; third vice-president, Elsie Campbell; marshal, Viola Watts; recording secretary, Evelyn Stroscheim; financial secretary, Matilda Enfield; treasurer, Ella Watters; trustees, Sylvia Meyers, Lillie Lopera, Mary Williams; inside sentinel, Mary Apalategui; outside sentinel, Ollie Mae Grainger; organist, Olive Watson.

The parlor's eighteenth baby was adopted to be named Lena Rebecca for Past Presidents Lena Lawson and Rebecca Hasson. The parlor contributed 100 per cent to the station wagon fund and two Fifth War Loan drive bonds were purchased.

Flag Day Observance

San Diego Parlor No. 208, NDGW, San Diego Parlor No. 108, NSGW, and the San Diego Historical Society, together with the Old Town Chamber of Commerce sponsored ceremonies June 14 in honor of the 167th anniversary of the American Flag. Albert E. Smith, son of Albert B. Smith, now 90 years old, raised the American Flag above the historic plaza where his father in 1846 nailed the Stars and Stripes to the mast after it had been pulled down for fear Mexican soldiers would steal it.

San Diego Parlor No. 208, NDGW, initiated several candidates during the month of June. Emily Welch was elected president for the ensuing term at the regular meeting June 13 and $50 was voted for the purchase of war bonds. Following the meeting members participated in a program dedicated to Flag Day.

Full Calendar

For the past two months members of El Tejon Parlor No. 239, NDGW, Bakersfield, have been having a very full calendar of events. At the official visit of their DGP Lucille Kane and SDDGP Evelyn Towne of Miocene Parlor No. 228, Taft, an enjoyable gathering was held at the Woman's Club Tea Room. Formal initiation was held and five members were brought into the Order. Deputies were presented with handsome gifts and refreshments were served by the social committee: Initiation also was held at the May 19 meeting bringing in six more members.

The hay ride and barn dance held May 12 was hailed as a successful affair. .. ..

Another big day for El Tejon Parlor and Bakersfield Parlor No. 42, NSGW, was May 19 when a bear flag was presented to the Bakersfield Woman's Club with Mrs. Walter Kane and Mr. John Shortridge making the presentation on behalf of the two parlors.

Twenty girls of the escort team, dressed in pastel formals, received a round of applause as they escorted the honored guests to their stations and presented a drill spelling out "California."

A check for $100 was sent to the Red Cross station wagon fund. Mrs. Ralph Sanders headed the War Activities Committee. Members are meeting once a week at the Red Cross headquarters to assist in rolling bandages, sewing, etcetera.

The Young Women's Activity group gathered for their meeting last month at the home of Mrs. W. G. Rea, Jr., where a "Kid Party" was enjoyed by all who attended. Assisting Mrs. Rea were Mrs. A. S. Sandrini and Mrs. D. M. O'Hare, Jr.

Historic Mokelumne Hill

By Grand Historian Emmet Jay, NSGH

Odd Fellows Building, Mokolumne Hill, sketched by author

MOKELUMNE HILL, enjoying one of the most beautiful locations on the Mother Lode, is situated about two miles south of the Mokelumne River and about nine miles northwest of San Andreas, the county seat of Calaveras County.

Historic Mokelumne Hill is a favorite spot of the southern mines. The present-day quiet and peaceful atmosphere which pervades the famed mining community is a strange contrast to the avtivity, trouble and strife which characterized the years immediately after its founding in 1848.

Gold was discovered at Big Bar on the Mokelumne River in October, 1848. A pioneer party from Oregon discovered it and a rush started to Big Bar. A member of the party was induced to haul in provisions for the people mining here and he drove a wagon load of supplies in at the beginning of November, opening a store on a hill one mile from Big Bar. A settlement soon arose to be named and known as Mokelumne Hill. Its name was derived from Mokelumne, an Indian tribe which inhabited this locality. However, it was commonly known among the miners as "Mok Hill" or "The Hill." Mining soon started on The Hill as it was a veritable gold mountain. Its slopes and gulches and adjoining flats yielded fortunes in rapid succession for many years. At the end of the Mexican War many discharged soldiers of the Stevenson Regiment came to mine the valuable ore.

"In an incredibly short space of time," says the Calaveras Prospect, dated November 24, 1923, "the diggings proved wonderfully rich." Then followed discoveries on Nigger Hill and French Hill, followed by discoveries in Rich Gulch and Chili Gulch. The country seemed literally carpeted with gold.

"In time Mokelumne Hill had a population of 20,000 within her own borders, with another 10,000 directly tributary to her, as the metropolis of the district in which were Chili and Rich Gulches. A flood of gold poured into the town. Stores had to keep open all hours to serve customers clamoring to change their gold for something to eat and wear. Saloons opened their doors never to close for many years."

It was during this exciting period, when Mok Hill was one of the most thriving and successful mining towns, that it aspired to become the state capital. The peak of the excitement did not last long as some of the placer claims began to wane and The Hill therefore failed in its ambitions to become state capital.

During this time Amador County was a part of Calaveras County. The court house originally located in Double Springs was re-established in Jackson. The county seat remained in Jackson until 1852 at which time it was transferred to Mokelumne Hill.

In 1854 Amador County was separated from Calaveras County and Jackson became the county seat of the new county. The court house of Calaveras County remained in Mokelumne Hill until 1866 when it was moved to San Andreas.

The greatest amusement of the town during the gold excitement was the bull and bear fights. Sunday was the day reserved for this unique form of entertainment as it was on this day the settlers of the surrounding camps came to town.

Thompson and West's History of Amador County, 1881, gives the following description of the bull and bear fights.

"A large part of the population would turn out to see the fight. Spanish cattle were plentiful, but bears were not easily caught and handled. They were valued all the way from one to four thousand dollars. The bull was lassoed just before the fight and his horns sawed off. When the bull was turned into the pen, the fight would start."

It was also said that in some of the events the bull's horns were not sawed. When he charged the bear, tied with a chain in the middle of the arena, he became so infuriated that he charged the fence which separated the hundreds of spectators from the arena. This added to the thrill of the spectacle. The bear was victor in most contests though the bull also won in some of them.

Mokelumne Hill was reputed to be one of the liveliest places in the mining region. Proof of this is also given in Thompson and West's History of Amador County.

"For seventeen weeks, according to Dr. Sohr, a man was killed between Saturday night and Sunday morning. Five men were killed in one week. The condition was so bad that a vigilante committee formed but did not last long." However, through their efforts law and order was again restored within the community.

A stage line was established through Mokelumne Hill, running from Sacramento to Sonora. The roads were very rough, in places following trails around the hills. There were no bridges over the creeks or the rivers and at times the coaches and wagons were lost in the high waters. Highwaymen were troublesome and the stage was in constant danger. It carried gold and passengers on their trips from The Hill, which filled it to capacity.

The yield of the gulches surrounding The Hill and the leads traced to the adjoining hills, was enormous during the period of 1850 and 1851. In 1851 a company of Frenchmen found rich deposits of gold on a hill east of Mokelumne Hill and christened it French Hill. It is said that within a few days, it yielded $180,000. The French swore themselves to secrecy but their findings were revealed by intoxicated miners. As in the case of similar rich strikes, French Hill soon became the scene of extensive diggings. Quarrels ensued over mining claims which developed into the French and Chilean Wars.

The business section of town flourished. Stores, saloons and hotels were erected on both sides of Center and Main streets. Chinatown on East Center street was very large, with a population of over a thousand. One of the first Joss houses in the state was built by the creek which runs through the town. On Sundays the miners all came to The Hill and the streets were almost impassable with the crowd blockading them.

In 1854 a great conflagration struck the town while in the height of its prosperity and destroyed most of the business section; sweeping Center and Main streets on both sides. The town was soon rebuilt and activity was revived. The Hill once more became a busy mining center. The Wells Fargo and Adams Express Companies were buying gold in large quantities. The newspaper of the town was the Calaveras Chronicle founded in 1851 by James J. Ayres.

During the year 1854 stone buildings were erected, most outstanding among them being a store consisting of two stories built by A. M. Sturges and later known as the Wells Fargo Office building. In 1861 the building was acquired by the Odd Fellows. The IOOF built an additional story, revamped the structure from an express building and used the third floor as lodge quarters. This structure is distinguished as the first of this dimension to be erected in the interior of California.

The oldest Congregational church building in the state was founded and erected in 1856. According to records the church is the fifth in point of service and the original structure still remains.

The Leger Hotel and the old court house buildings erected in the early fifties are in an excellent state of preservation. The writer, when a boy, resided ten miles from Mokelumne Hill and enjoyed visiting the old lobby of the Leger Hotel and listening to the exciting tales recalled from the past by the early settlers. According to the San Andreas Independent

PLEASE COOPERATE!

WAR creates many problems in many fields and the publisher is no exception. When your Grizzly Bear is late, there is always a reason for it which could not be avoided. There are paper, type and labor shortages to be surmounted.

Greatest of all our problems is the "late copy" bugaboo. Your late copy may delay the magazine production schedule an entire day. When the deadline date is set for the twentieth of the month and yours arrives, with several other items on the twenty-fourth, you have helped to make the publication four days late. Rewriting, editing, setting of type, dummying pages, make-up and so on must precede going to press. Then too, you slow up production by leaving half the necessary information out of your articles, and not clearly writing the names of your members. Remember, for women, full first names are desired and for men, full first names or two initials are required. When you list deputies or visiting members, include the name and number of their parlor. Include the date of your events, not the statement "at our last meeting." We cannot take the time to look up your meeting dates.

Our plea is, "Please cooperate! This is your official publication! Your news contributions are desired."

The September issue is our Admission Day number. It is the biggest Grizzly Bear of the year. Preparing a larger magazine entails advance preparation. The deadline date for September copy is August 18. Plan your events far enough ahead so that your notices will receive the proper attention. Appoint a Grizzly Bear chairman! Send us his or her name and address!

SEPTEMBER DEADLINE AUGUST 18!

Lieutenant Speaks

Complimentary to members of Copa de Oro Parlor No. 105, NDGW, Hollister who have relatives in the armed forces, guest speaker Lieut. George Gordon of the local Naval Air base, gave an inspiring and reassuring message at the June 21 meeting.

Four charter members of the Parlor were introduced and presented with corsages as the membership sang "Auld Lang Syne." Reports were given of the recent NDGW War Conference held in San Jose. Members celebrating birthdays in April, May, June, July, August and September were given seats of honor.

Independence Day formed the theme of the meeting July 5. Historian Erma Pivetti gave an interesting talk on the significance of July 4. Entertainment features consisted of a quiz on flag history and etiquette. The American's Creed and the Preamble to the Constitution of the United States were recited.

Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs reviewed "The Story of Dr. Wassell." The Parlor members manned a bond-selling booth each day during the Fifth War Loan Drive.

God gives us love. Something to love He lends us.—Tennyson.

The Children's Corner

"Would ye learn the road to Laughter-town,
Oh ye who have lost the way?
Would ye have young heart, though your hair be gray?
Go learn from a little child each day."

The Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West sponsor through a central committee, the Homeless Children, a most worthy project. The Homeless Children is one of two authorized adoption agencies in the State of California. The central office is at 998 Eddy street, San Francisco 9. Telephone ORdway 5241. Mary E. Brusie is executive secretary. The Los Angeles office is located at 3924 Sunset boulevard 27. Telephone OLympic 4105. Dorothy Schlingman is in charge of the Los Angeles office.

"Our Son"

"Dear Friends—I have been wanting to write you for some time to let you know about our son. He is now a Lieutenant in the Army Air Force (pilot). He went through his training with high honors and is now on his way to India. I know in my heart that no mother could have known a finer son. He has been so loving and thoughtful and interesting.

David was married on ————, 1943. His wife is a lovely girl and a student. They are really a fine-looking and well-suited couple, and devoted to each other. We parents feel sure that they always will be happy together.

We are now in this country place for sixteen months, one and a half acres and an attractive and comfortable home. We raise chickens, have two cows. It is hard work, but we both prefer it to city life.

I always have prayed for peace of mind and contentment of heart and it is wonderful to have both. Naturally, I worry about our son, but I hope and pray.

I am making baby clothes, as I expect to be a grandmother in four or five months. I believe that I am having as much fun with these layettes as I did with our little redheaded baby we brought home in 1922.

I have a precious letter I want you to read. It will give you somewhat of an idea what he has been and is and will always be to us. As ever, R————."

New Natives

With both parents as avid natives, what chance will there be for Lawrence Paradiso, Junior, to be anything else? The young man is the son of Private Lawrence Paradiso of San Jose Parlor No. 22, NSGW, and Helen Paradiso of San Jose Parlor No. 81, NDGW, and weighed in at seven pounds and one ounce, the latter part of June.

A delightful little daughter, Marcia Anne is being made to feel at home by two bran new parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Neikirk. Marcia's mother is Edna Neikirk of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124. The young lady "moved in" July 12.

Jack Ryan of Pacific Parlor No. 10, NSGW, San Francisco, and Mrs. Ryan have named their newly arrived baby girl, Sandra.

NATIVE SONS ROLL OF HONOR

Peter T. Conmy

By Grand Trustee PETER T. CONMY NSGW

AT the sixty-sixth session of the Grand Parlor, NSGW, held in San Francisco in May, 1943, a Roll of Honor containing the names of men ineligible to membership because of birth elsewhere but who have rendered distinguished service either to the Order or to the State of California, was adopted. Three names were placed upon the Roll of Honor at the time of its adoption and three more were added at the 1944 session bringing the total to six. Because this is a new venture on the part of the Native Sons of the Golden West it may be well to state the theory in back of it and just what it is expected will be accomplished by a Roll of Honor.

The idea of maintaining a Roll of Honor of distinguished Californians ineligible to membership is neither new to, nor original with the Native Sons of the Golden West. The Native Daughters of the Golden West assembled in Grand Parlor in 1910 made provision for a Roll of Honor of distinguished women not qualified to join their order. The resolution was introduced by the late eminent and progressive past grand president, Eliza Douglas Keith. Through this medium she saw a means by which a great society of California-born women might honor certain other women who had made signal contributions to California. The first name on the Native Daughters' Roll of Honor, placed thereon in 1910, was that of Sister Anna Raphael of Notre Dame College, then located in San Jose. The names of Lovell White, clubwoman; Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes, originator of the mission bell sign posts; Phoebe A. Hearst, philanthropist; Jane Lathrop Stanford, co-founder of Stanford University; and Susan Lincoln Mills, founder of Mills College. Twenty-three names in all have been placed on the NDGW Roll of Honor.

There are those who believe both Orders are active phases of a movement known as sectionalism which has flourished from time to time in various sections of the United States. This, of course, is not true. Neither Order was founded as an attack upon those who come to California from afar. The Native Sons of the Golden West were organized as a society that would both honor the pioneers and keep alive the history of California. Had the Order been founded fifty years later it would probably function solely as a historic and civic organization. At the time of its foundation in 1875, secret, benevolent and fraternal societies were in their heyday and the Native Sons followed the existing pattern and became a fraternal society. The Native Daughters were founded eleven years later as a feminine counterpart of the Native Sons. There was no thought on the part of the founders of either to build up sentiment against those who were born elsewhere.

As a basis for understanding of the need for the Roll of Honor it may be well to sketch briefly the history of membership eligibility of the Native Sons of the Golden West. The earliest pronouncement upon this point is that which is to be found in the first constitution of the Native Sons adopted in 1875 wherein it is provided that membership shall be open to white males born in California or west of the Sierra Nevada Mountains after July 7, 1846. This date was selected because it was the day upon which Commodore Sloat took possession of California and from then on all persons born were citizens of the United States. Later on it was found that there were loyal American citizens born in California before that date, but who had previously been citizens of Mexico. In 1885 the Grand Parlor permitted these men to become members.

On the Articles of Incorporation filed with the Secretary of State in 1876, S. P. Harmon, born in Albany, Oregon, July 12, 1851, H. F. Harmon, born in Albany, Oregon, March 9, 1855, and A. S. Owen, born in Oregon, June 9, 1852, are listed as members. It was possible for these men to hold membership because they were born west of the Sierra Nevada Mountains. In 1879 the Grand Parlor voted to restrict membership to white males born in California. Under the previous rule there was some doubt as to whether a man born within the boundaries of California but on the east side of the Sierra Nevadas might be eligible to membership.

In 1889 a group of negroes born in California made an unsuccessful plea to have the word "white" stricken out so that they might be eligible to membership. Representatives of this group appeared before the Grand Parlor sitting as a committee of the whole. They resented the decision adverse to their request which barred them from membership. In 1892 it was decided that a quarter breed Indian might become a member. In 1895 Grand President Frank H. Dunne ruled that a man born off the coast of California but within the three mile limit was not eligible to membership. This ruling was reversed by the Grand Parlor in the following year which accepted the view that the territorial limits of the state extend three miles off shore. In 1910 Napa Parlor No. 62 denied membership to a man born in California of Mexican parents. Upon appeal this was reversed by Grand President Joseph R. Knowland and his decision was sustained by the Grand Parlor, it being held that Mexicans belong to the caucasian or white race.

When the Order was founded a provision was made for honorary membership. Only two such members were elected. They were General Albert M. Winn, founder of the Order, who was born in Virginia, April 27, 1810. The other was George W. Anthony in whose hall the Order was founded. He was born in New York, March 5, 1845. Honorary membership was abolished in 1876. Anthony apparently passed out of the picture. General Winn continued to consider himself a member and upon his death in 1883 was buried under the auspices of the grand officers. Under the original constitution, honorary members had the same rights and privileges as regular members.

In 1931 and in 1938 attempts were made to extend membership to men not born in California. In 1931 the resolution introduced contemplated a literal interpretation of the words, Golden West, and provided that the Order should accept men born in any western state as members. This proposition was not acted upon by the Grand Parlor, having been withdrawn by its proposers. In 1938 the Grand Parlor considered a proposal to permit parlors to elect to membership a small percentage of men born in other states, such members to be social only, not to be eligible to hold office or to be delegates to the Grand Parlor. This resolution also was withdrawn.

After an existence of sixty-nine years the Order remains an organization whose membership is composed of men born in California. The records of the Order show no exception to this rule except the two honorary members and the three original members born in Oregon and these membership types were illegal after 1876 and 1879 respectively. The Native Daughters of the Golden West have consistently restricted membership to white women born in California. There may be arguments for admitting persons born elsewhere, but there are also strong sentiments against it. In the first place, by restricting membership to those who are California born, both Orders are made strictly Californian. Secondly, recent population trends point

Assume Duties

Indicative of the fine cooperation and good fellowship enjoyed by Central Parlor No. 284, NSGW, and Santa Maria Parlor No. 276, NDGW, Santa Maria was the enthusiastic turn-out for the joint installation of officers held July 19 in IOOF hall. Assuming offices in Santa Maria Parlor were the following:

Annie Elliott, president; Barbara Sumner, first vice-president; Laura Wiley, second vice-president; Loraine Wineman, third vice-president; Emily Rodrick, marshal; Ida Hawkins, recording secretary; Josephine Finey, treasurer; Laura Minetti, inside sentinel; Alice Foy, outside sentinel; Rachael Niverith, Isabel Wineman, Inez Lukeman, trustees. Deputy Mabel Irwin of Reina del Mar Parlor No. 126, Santa Barbara, assisted by Amelia Acres of the same parlor acting as marshal, conducted the ceremonies.

Central Parlor's new officers are: Ernest Righetti, president; Harry Goodchild, first vice-president; Holmer Hoskins, second vice-president; Tom Minetti, third vice-president; Leon Julian, marshal; Reg Evans, recording secretary; L. Rutherford installed with the assistance of R. Romero, of Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116, NSGW. Brief acceptance speeches were made by the newly installed presidents and visiting guests and refreshments and a social hour followed.

The Native Sons are sponsoring a baseball team and are cooperating with the City Recreation Board in producing some fine games between the Sons team and the Army teams from camps located in the district.

Sons Install

Harry Pacheco was installed as president of Observatory Parlor No. 177, July 11. District Deputy Grand President Harold Semichy was the installing officer. The new staff includes: Walter Penney, first vice-president; Clarence Leese, second vice-president; Robert Drexel, third vice-president; Russell Carlson, marshal; Herman Mager, junior past president: Edward Gibbons, senior past-president; Norton Mahon, inside sentinel; Louie Doerr, outside sentinel; Jesse Waterman, recording secretary; William Compton, financial secretary; Walter Klein, trustee.

The parlor's recent annual family barbecue held at Long Bridge was a success in spite of shortages and rationing. It was estimated that 175 persons enjoyed the old-fashioned pit roasted lamb prepared by H. Fred Withycombe and his hard working committee.

Los Angeles' Birthday

Los Angeles will celebrate the one hundred and sixty-third anniversary of its founding September 4 with plans being formulated by the History and Landmarks Committee of the Women's Auxiliary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. Edgar I. Magnin is chairman. The Native Daughters and Native Sons have been asked to assist. On the committee are Past Grand Presidents Mary B. Noerenberg and Grace S. Stoermer, Margaret Kerr, Florence Schoneman and Isabel Fages of the Native Daughters and Grand Third Vice-president Walter H. Odemar of the Native Sons.

The celebration will commence with a reception for the descendants of pioneers in the Avila Adobe on Olvera street and a program will be staged at three o'clock in the old plaza on the Latin-American War Finance committee's platform.

A plaque dedicated to the memory of Captain Fernando Rivera y Moncado, who recruited colonists and soldiers for the pueblo and was killed during the tragic Yuma massacre will be dedicated, with Isabel Fages in charge. Dr. Owen C. Coy, Director of the California Historical Society and recently placed on the Native Sons Honor Roll, will be the speaker.

An interdenominational vesper service will close the program of colorful music and dancing portraying the various periods in California history from the time the Indians roamed the state until the turn of the nineteenth century.

You ought not to be displeased with in a moment. —Sadi.

Old Timers Revel

The Thirty-fourth anniversary of its institution was observed by Fruitvale Parlor No. 252, NSGW, Oakland, July 10. The gathering was in the nature of a real old timers' get together and took place in a well known Oakland cafe, where dinner was served to more than one hundred members and friends.

Since fifty-seven of the younger members of the parlor are in the service of their country, old-timers truly predominated the scene. Dan Billings acted as master of ceremonies and presented a program of music and songs. Past Grand President Edward Schnarr, a member of Fruitvale Parlor, spoke eloquently in behalf of members who are overseas and "early timer," George Hans, presented Robert C. Wilson with a twenty-five year membership pin.

Charles Real, member of Piedmont Parlor No. 120, NSGW, Oakland, was a delegate to the Republican convention held recently in Chicago, and Patrick J. Macdonough attended the Democratic convention in the same city last month.

Colorful Ceremony

With a colorful ceremony, Marion McGuire and her corps of officers of Sequoia Parlor No. 272, NDGW, Berkeley, were installed July 27. The affair took place in the Finnish Brotherhood Hall. Officers carried large bouquets of summer blooms which were also used in the hall decorations. Several grand officers were guests of the evening. Deputy Elza Paul of Piedmont Parlor No. 87, Oakland, was the installing officer, assisted by officers of her own parlor. Officers of Sequoia Parlor presented silver friendship bracelets to Helen Garrison, the outgoing president and to the newly installed leader.

During the opening portion of the program the parlor's choral group presented a number of appropriate songs with Tessie Socker at the piano. Following the installation, refreshments were enjoyed in the banquet hall with a large committee assisting in the serving.

Elect Officers

Past Presidents Association No. 2, NDGW, held election of officers June 26 with Ethyl Young being elevated to the office of president. At the close of the meeting the members participated in a hi jinx, in honor of Adele Wentworth, retiring past president, who was the recipient of a beautiful blanket as a gift from the members of the association. Elizabeth Goodman, assisted by Anne Enos, Ella Mullins, Roslyn Corriea and Isabel Snediger, had charge of the evening's entertainment.

Rasmussen reported that several articles had been received for the service hospitals in Alameda County which activity is being sponsored by the parlors of Humboldt County. Refreshments were enjoyed at the conclusion of the meeting.

Daughters Install

The officers of Piedmont Parlor No. 87, NDGW, Oakland, were installed by Louise Benedetti of Encinal Parlor No. 156, Alameda, assisted by the members of her parlor and Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler.

Cora Welch, newly installed president, was escorted by the acting grand marshal to her station through arches of roses being held by six members dressed in white formals. Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler and Grand Trustee Marion E. White were guests of honor.

It is clever to say sharp things; but it is generally far cleverer not to say them.
—Isabel Carnaby.

Hazelett Taylor was chairman, assisted by Sophie Ottewill, Peggy Aguayo, May Ellis Olson and Mildred Johansen. Past President Marie Vargas presented the past president's jewel to Marguerite Aguayo. Grand Secretary Sallie Thaler acted as grand marshal. The parlor has purchased $450 in War Bonds to date, and there are eleven blood donors among the members.

Headed by Jeanette Krull as president, officers of Liberty Parlor No. 213, NDGW, Elk Grove, were installed July 14 with DGP Ruby Lorett and a team from La Bandera Parlor No. 110, Sacramento, officiating. Guests present were DGP Lorett; Grand Trustee Henrietta Toothaker; SD DGP Genevieve Didion. La Bandera, Califia and Woodland Parlors were represented. Miss Jeanette Krull became the new president.

The bond auction sale sponsored by Liberty Parlor June 20 was a splendid success. Bonds amounting to $22,056 were sold, of which sum Elk Grove Parlor No. 41, NSGW, contributed almost $6000. His subject will be, "Camps and Training for Juvenile Delinquents." Mr. Zuck is a well known authority on juvenile problems. Natives as well as their guests are invited to attend the meeting.

Golden Jubilee

THE Golden Jubilee of San Jose Parlor No. 81, NDGW, was held June 29 and proved to be an outstanding social function. The Women's Catholic Center was the setting for the gala event, which opened with a dinner at 6:30 in the spacious ballroom, which had been elaborately decorated for the occasion with gold as the predominating color scheme. Gold candlesticks and ribbon streamers added beauty to the profusion of yellow and white flowers with greenery used on the tables, where more than a hundred guests were seated. Programs were gold printed on white.

Kathryn Nelson gave a brief address of welcome as dinner hostess and introduced Grand President Emily E. Ryan, who had honored the occasion by making it her first official visit. During the dinner hour, members by the score gathered in the assembly hall. Acting as chairman, Augusta Singleton called the meeting to order, and the officers entered wearing spring formals in pastel shades.

President Elsie Fisher presided over the session, and the following were escorted to seats of honor: Grand President Ryan, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Trustees Margaret Farnsworth and Elmarie Dyke, Grand Organist Mae O'Keefe, Grand Outside Sentinel Jewel McSweeney, San Francisco; Past Grand Presidents Bertha A. Briggs, Claire Lindsey, Evelyn I. Carlson and Esther R. Sullivan.

Other distinguished visitors were: SDDGP Elizabeth Forbes of Santa Clara County, and May L. McDonald of San Francisco; Deputy Grand Presidents Emilia Reichly, Pearl Bishop, Sue Engfer and Mabel Irwin of Santa Barbara and Frances E. Maloney of Menlo Park, state president of the NDGW Past Presidents Association.

The Native Sons were represented by SDDGP John L. Sullivan and Deputy Harold Semichy. Delegations from twenty-two parlors were announced.

Mr. Sullivan addressed the assembly and presented the Grand President with a lovely bouquet of golden roses, and Mr. Semichy presented the hostess parlor with a handsome gavel in behalf of San Jose Parlor No. 22, Native Sons. Thirty of the thirty-six past presidents of the Parlor were present and were escorted to the altar and presented with souvenirs of the occasion.

Speaking for the past presidents, Mary Newton expressed appreciation for honors accorded them and in return presented the parlor with a substantial sum donated by the Past Presidents for the purchase of a white ballot box. A class of candidates was initiated including Louise Goble, Birdie Munson, Ella Mathewson, Hazel Brown and Rosalie Donovan.

An interesting feature of the evening was the reading of the minutes of the first meeting held fifty years ago and an expression of regret from PGP Mary E. Bell who paid her official visit to the Parlor on its silver anniversary, twenty-five years ago.

The charter members were escorted to the president's station by a drill team of twenty-four members attired in pastel formals with gold colored muffs, trimmed with gold ribbon and flowers, where they were introduced to the Grand President who, with kindly words of praise, pinned gold 50-year pins on Mena Johns, Elizabeth Wardlow, Antoinette Williams and Matilda Moak.

Mrs. Moak made the hit of the evening when she responded for the charter members by singing an original song wherein she likened the charter members to "Old Man River." In addition to the 50-year pins, the honored members were presented with certificates of life membership in San Jose Parlor, President Fisher making the presentation.

Grand Trustee Margaret Farnsworth presented Mrs. Ryan with a check for $250 for use in her pet project, California History and Landmarks. This sum was presented on behalf of the joint committee on arrangements for the grand parlor held in San Jose in June, being a credit balance after all expenses were paid.

The Grand President complimented San Jose Parlor on the success of its Golden Jubilee. Following the session, a gay hour was passed at the refreshment tables in the ballroom. Happy Birthday was sung as the Grand President and the charter members cut the birthday cake, brilliantly lighted with fifty yellow candles. Original songs were sung with Grand Trustee Elmarie Dyke acting as song leader. Past Grand President Clara Briggs presided as hostess.

The theme of the occasion was "Fraternalism" and was emphasized in the decorations. "Fifty Years of Fraternalism," in gold letters, arranged over the president's station with a background of trailing ferns, proved very effective.

Clara Briggs and Kathryn Nelson were co-chairmen on arrangements and subchairmen were Mary Champion, Lucille Castro, Nettie Richmond, Helen Trengove, Dora Dunn, Pearl Bishop and Amelia Hartmen.

Tour Missions

Junipero Parlor No. 141, NDGW, Monterey, conducted a highly successful tour of the Royal Presidio Chapel and Mission San Carlos de Borromeo on July 16. These two historic edifices are popularly known as the Monterey and Carmel Missions. The tour was for the benefit of the Mission Nuestra Senora de la Soledad Restoration Fund and a marker for the mission site and nearly $140 was realized.

Among guests was Lady Maria Antonia Field, a member of the distinguished Munras family which has extensive holdings surrounding the Soledad Mission site. At the time the town of Soledad was named officials wished to call it Munras, but the Munras family insisted that Soledad be used in order that the name of the mission might be preserved, even though the buildings returned to dust. Lady Field made a generous gift to the parlor for the marker and restoration fund.

Following the tour a tea in honor of Grand Trustee Elmarie Dyke was held in San Carlos Parish Hall. Vocal duets were sung by Alice Bentley and Gladys Stalter, accompanied on the guitar by their father, E. E. Scholes. Anne B. Fisher, noted author and lecturer, sketched the history of Mission Soledad. Clara Brown, chairman, was assisted by a capable committee.

Four new members were initiated July 18. They were: Ellen Peace, Sarah DiMercurio, Matilda Lopez, and Margaret McKinlay. The war activity committee reported Alva Banta and Elmarie Dyke, four star generals representing the NDGW in the "Third Army," were honored by the Pacific Grove merchants together with twenty other "generals" at a dinner held in Del Monte Lodge when Allison Stillwell of Carmel and a daughter of General Joe Stillwell, spoke of her life in China. These two members sold $17,500 worth of bonds during the drive. The parlor voted $100 for an additional bond and made plans for the regular sale of war stamps at all parlor meetings.

"When we uphold the principles of Native Daughters, we are upholding the living faith of our pioneer fathers and mothers," said Charlotte Carpenter, the newly installed president of Californiana Parlor No. 247, NDGW, Los Angeles, as she accepted her office July 8 in the Elks Temple. Many members and visiting friends observed the impressive ceremonies.

Opening the meeting in a novel manner, outgoing president, Emma Osborn, entered the room, flanked by her sister and "right hand man," Isabella Granz and Ora Evans, who had served as secretary during her term. Preceding the trio were Mary Joan Noerenberg and Junior Native Daughter, Shirley Bennett, attired in yellow formals, who later escorted the American flag.

Mrs. Osborn thanked her officers for their efforts in making the past term an outstanding one and then presented the gavel which had been used by Past Grand President Mary B. Hail Sonoma Mission Restoration

CALIFORNIA's legendary past was brought into sharper focus today as historic Sonoma Mission, once almost a complete ruin, stood restored in virtually the same form as that of the original 121-year-old structure. Colorful dedication ceremonies were held at the mission July 4 under sponsorship of the State Park Commission.

The story of its early days and its abandonment and subsequent decay to such an extent that its chapel was used as a hay mow and other portions of the building as a saloon, was told by Commission Chairman Joseph R. Knowland, Past Grand President and chairman of the Grand Parlor committee on Historic Landmarks, NSGW. Present also were Grand President Raymond D. Williamson and other members of his board.

STEAKS!

Hanford Parlor No. 37, NSGW, Hanford, held its first annual barbecue July 19 at Coe's Park. Lewis, Mike Freitas, Peter DeMont, N. R. Lewis, Lyman Griswold, Kenneth Hurlbut, Joseph Leal, A. Fissori, Joseph Bertania, Leo Cassela and Paul Cassella dispensed the food.

Admission Day

The ninety-fourth anniversary of California's admission into the Union will be celebrated fiesta style at the Los Angeles Police Academy, Elysian Park, by Native Sons and Daughters of the southland, September 9. There will be a barbecue, games and contests, swimming and a program.

Preliminary arrangements have been handled by the Native Sons District Deputies' Association of Los Angeles County. Supervising Deputy Grand President Robert A. Ziegler will call a meeting of both Sons' and Daughters' ninth of September committees of southern parlors to consolidate their support of the event.

Although travel restrictions have curtailed the annual statewide celebration of Admission Day, it is believed they will not interfere with the Los Angeles program, as the police academy is located within a few miles of the downtown area. The academy is a model of municipal recreational development located in a wooded glen of Elysian Park and is much sought after by organizations for occasions such as the Admission Day celebration.

Happiness grows at our own fireside, and is not to be picked in stranger's gardens.

Bond Sale

Noerenberg and Florence Dodson Schoneman.

Santa Barbara Plans Admission Day

Santa Barbara's 1944 observance of Admission Day will be celebrated by Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116, NSGW, and Reina del Mar Parlor No. 126, NDGW, cooperating in a community program at Rockwood, the Mission Canyon home of the Santa Barbara Women's club. Planning meetings are being held jointly by the two parlors, with full realization of responsibility to the new citizenry coming into the Golden State because of the war.

Thomas McDermott, president of the Sons, and Mrs. George E. Tackberry, president of the Daughters, have placed program responsibility with Paul G. Sweetser and Dr. Anna E. McCaughey. Mrs. A Stanley Clem, chairman of War Activities and Mrs. John D. Ross, in charge of Homeless Children activities, are cooperating.

A special effort will be made to round out the joint roster of Santa Barbara County pioneers. Mrs. M. C. Harrison and Mrs. R. J. Schuld will be in charge of this portion of the Admission Day program.

It is easy to sympathize with people who fail where we have failed—this is ordinary humanity; but to rejoice with those who succeed where we have failed is a more difficult matter—that is Christianity.

—Isabel Carnaby.

Mokelumne Hill

of February 26, 1859, there is evidence that a gas works was established as follows:

"The gas works situated on a lot near Center street, Mokelumne Hill, was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning, February 18, 1859. The energy of the citizens prevented the flames from spreading."

The Mokelumne Hill Fire Department was organized in May, 1861. Mokelumne Hill was again struck by a conflagration in March, 1865, and the disaster was recorded in the Calaveras Chronicle of March 4, 1865, as noted below:

"The alarm of fire was given at 12 o'clock on Saturday night, and it was discovered that the Union Hotel was in flames.

"As soon as the fire bells sounded the alarm our firemen were promptly on hand. The Mokelumne Engine No. 1 was on blocks, undergoing repairs, but was gotten out and in motion in a few minutes. Pennsylvania No. 2 has not been in use since the fourth of July, and owing to that fact would not work at first. The company had offered their machine for sale and did not expect to have her used again in this place. It was over half an hour before they were enabled to force any water through their hose. The Eagle Hook and Ladder Company did good work during the night; pulling down houses, chopping away awnings and drawing off lumber.

"The fire swept down Center street, destroying all the wooden buildings on the south side as far down as Ankener's Saloon. Crossing the street it caught into the roof of Shear's building and licked up all the frame houses on that side of the street down to Hadlock's house.

"Mokelumne Engine Company for which H. B. Mayhew is foreman did some splendid work and had not the water given out in their main cistern would have saved the wooden buildings above."

Some of the names and amounts of those who lost by the fire were: Union Hotel, $13,000; Dr. L. Soher, $2,500; A. Stern Cigar Store, $4,000; M. Raphael, $1,000; Union Stable, $4,000; China Wash House, $300; Center Street Market, $1,000.

It is interesting to note some of the businesses in existence in 1879, taken from the Calaveras Chronicle. Prominent among them were, Leger Hotel, George W. Leger; C. B. Robertson, M. D.; William Todd, M. D.; R. Wise, general merchandise; Hemighofen and Suesdorf Brewery; New Blacksmith Shop, John Reetz; Terrill and Peters, Miners Drug Store; Peek and Wells Livery and Feed Stables.

The Chilean Hospital building located on West Center street was demolished February, 1880.

The hungry quest for gold at last subsided and the community settled to a more tranquil and stable mode of living. The population continued to diminish and in 1885 it was composed of 600 inhabitants who remained to work and develop the quartz mines in the vicinity of the town.

These are but a few of the many chapters contained in the colorful history of Mokelumne Hill, which today remains a quaint and peaceful community. The many early landmarks here should be preserved for posterity. History exists in the very heart of The Hill and it is rich in gold rush lure.

to future work for both Orders, namely to fight economic racketeers from other states. If and when this becomes necessary it is best that it be done by a completely Californian group. Thirdly, by restricting membership to those born within California both Orders acquire a personnel possessing a homogeneous background of thought and culture, making for harmony of decision and action. Fourth, those born in California, whose fortunes are cast here and whose home is here, have a true love for their native state and therefore will promote its best interests.

That native born Californians owe a debt to men who have come from other states, who have brought lustre to California, and have made worthy citizens of this western land, is recognized by the action of the Grand Parlor taken in San Francisco in 1943 whereby a Roll of Honor was created. The names thereon follow:

The first name on the Roll of Honor is that of General Albert Maver Winn, who was an outstanding pioneer and founded the Native Sons of the Golden West in 1875.

Charles Edward Chapman, 1880-1941, was the first holder of a Native Sons History Fellowship. He served as professor of California History in the University of California from 1915 until his death in 1942. Born in New Hampshire, Chapman spent most of his life in California. He was an exemplary citizen and deep scholar.

Herbert Eugene Bolton, born in Wisconsin in 1870, has lived in California since 1909. He has been a professor of history at the University of California since 1910 and his books on California are legion. The number of students to whom he has taught California History have reached the thousands.

The following names were added in 1944:

Owen Cochran Coy, born in Iowa in 1884, who is Director of the State Historical Association. This position makes him practically the state historian. His work in promoting the search for California's historic truth has been outstanding.

Lieutenant General John L. De Witt, USA, born in Nebraska, was placed upon the Roll of Honor for two reasons: First, while in charge of the Fourth Army and the Western Defense Command, he conscientiously did all in his power to awaken the people of California toward taking such civilian defense measures as might be necessary in the event of an attack upon this coast by the enemy, and for other military decisions. Second, finding the Japanese in California to be a military menace he brought about their exclusion from the coastal area.

Herbert Clark Hoover, born in Iowa in 1874, has lived in California since 1892. A graduate of Stanford University in 1896, he became President of the United States in 1929, the only citizen of California to have achieved that honor.

When the resolution providing for a Roll of Honor was adopted in 1943, the Grand Parlor provided a method for adding names. Each Grand President appoints a committee on the Roll of Honor. This committee shall initiate names for consideration by the Board of Grand Officers. Such names as they approve shall then be presented to the Grand Parlor and if accepted shall be placed on the Roll of Honor. The report of the Committee on the Roll of Honor submitted in March, 1944, contained four names, one of which was deleted at the request of Grand President Wayne R. Millington who took the stand that not more than three additional names should be added in any one year. This was a wise precaution against the roll's becoming too large. It is expected that as time brings more publicity to this movement the placing of a name on the roll will be accepted as a state-wide honor and probably should be accompanied by the presentation of a certificate.

BUILD

GOVERNOR EARL WARREN, member of Fruitvale No. 252, Oakland.

WE observe Admission Day this year with proof abundant of our industry, ingenuity and productiveness in times of national emergency. We have proved anew that we have the tools with which to build a more glorious future.

We know that when this war is over this State of ours can be made the most pleasant place in the world in which to live. But, what is more, we know it can be made the most useful place in the world in which to live, not only for ourselves but for all mankind.

Ours is the task of encouraging this development. Through the study of all opportunities and possibilities we must reveal the facts which will inspire others to help us promote this better life. It is a worthy task for every true Californian. It is a task in keeping with the vision and the courage of those pioneers whom we this day honor.

Recall Historic Events

ONLY two months after the formal or ganization of the Native Sons of th Golden West, in San Francisco, the infan Order celebrated its first Admission day In a souvenir official program printed Sep tember 9, 1890, an account of the 1875 fes tivities is printed. It reads:

"The Society met at their hall on th morning of September the 9th, and, gail appareled in their new regalias, with flag flying and old Bruin held proudly aloft leading the van, marched through the prin cipal streets of the city, escorted by th French Zouaves out to Woodward's Gar dens . . ." The line of march is given an the evening exercises are outlined.

President John A. Steinback opened th program. A flag was presented in behal of the Native Daughters of California Since the Native Daughters of the Golde West was not organized until 1886, thi must have been a San Francisco club. Banc music enlivened the day.

A photostatic copy of a letter written by R. B. Woodward, proprietor of Wood ward's Gardens was sent to Clarence M Hunt by D. Q. Troy August 16, 1918. Th letter reads:

"Committee Arrangts. Sons of the Gold en West Celebration, Sirs, I will accom modate you for holding your coming cele bration on the 9th of Sept. next on the fol lowing terms: I will give you 400 tickets which you may dispose of for your own benefit and give 200 invitations to give to the California Pioneers. You to get up some interesting exercises, to be given in the evening, consisting of at least an ora tion, poem and some songs by some good artists and all the volunteer talent that you can command. I will furnish the music for the evening and dancing till 12 p.m also the gas and do the advertising. Re spectfully R. B. Woodward."

THE NEWS CAME LATE

By Grand Historian Emmett Joy, NSGW

WELL did Senator W. H. Seward vision the future of the nation, when he uttered on the floor of the United States Senate, "The Unity of our empire hangs on the decision of this day," during a debate which was being held in Washington preceding the admission of California into Statehood. On September 7, 1850, the bill passed both Houses, and two days later, September 9, 1850, President Millard Fillmore signed it. Without territorial childhood, California entered statehood with a constitution which provided it should enter as a free and not as a slave state.

There were no telegraph wires across the continent in 1850, nor were there railroads to carry the news of what had happened at Washington. Thus the news of the passing of the bill had not reached the people of California until the middle of the following month.

During the month of October, 1850, the Autumn sun hovered over the calm waters of San Francisco Bay. The infant city of San Francisco was growing day by day and gold was the magnet luring early adventurers. During this month they became restless awaiting the arrival of the mail steamer "Oregon." Since the advent of ships came at frequent intervals, sighting them sailing through the Golden Gate was a monotonous event in the lives of the early populace, but the news of the Admission of the state to the Union was eagerly awaited. Red shirted miners from the hills came prepared to stay for days so they too, could enjoy the celebration, they knew would follow.

The morning of October 18, 1850, the silence of the day was interrupted by the usual music emanating from hotels and other places of amusement. Suddenly the "Oregon" was seen entering the harbor. She fired repeated signals, making known to the citizenry, the glorious news. California had been admitted to the Union!

San Franciscans were wild with excitement. Businesses of all kinds were closed; courts adjourned; people rushed from houses and buildings to hail the steamer carrying the welcomed message. As the ship rounded Clark's Point over 10,000 voices were heard cheering from the streets, wharves, surrounding hills and house tops. Every public place was crowded with inhabitants seeking particulars of the news. The first newspapers issued an hour after the arrival, were sold for from one to five dollars each. Enthusiasm increased as the day advanced. At night every public place of entertainment as well as the streets were thronged with people.

The city authorities immediately convened and appropriated $5,000 for the celebration, which it was determined, should be held October 29. Mayor Geary was authorized to make the necessary arrangements. The California Courier of Saturday morning, October 19, 1850, stated:

"Every one seemed happy and we do not believe that the news of a brilliant victory was ever received by any people with greater joy than was the news of yesterday that California is now one of the brightest stars in the glorious galaxy of States."

The preparations for the celebration were elaborate and included a parade, a display of fireworks from Telegraph Hill and a grand ball at the Union hotel.

The Courier gave more than a column to a report of the meetings of the arrangements committee headed "Celebration." A meeting of arrangements was held Sunday afternoon at the Mayor's office and John W. Gray, chairman, and John H. Geken, secretary were appointed. The official "programme" read:

"1—Signal rocket for bonfires to be lighted on Yerba Buena Island and on the hills in the rear of North Beach and Rincon Point. 2—Flight of rockets, thirty ordinary rockets and one grand rocket with golden stars. 3—Roman candles. 4—Bengal lights. 5—Wheel pieces and rotating pieces.

"A salute of 100 guns will be fired from the plaza by a detachment of Company M, Third US Artillery under the command of Lieut. H. G. Gibson.

"The first division of the parade: Two buglers mounted; three marshals; native Californians mounted; commanded by General A. Piece; a band of musicians; Society of California Pioneers.

"United States Marines, California Guards, Officers of the Army and Navy, Officers and Soldiers of the Fremont Battalion and First Regiment of New York Volunteers and all other volunteers who served in the war with Mexico.

"The Governor and Lieutenant Governor of the State in a barouche; state officers and members-elect of the legislature; exgovernors of the diffierent states of the Union and of California while under Mexican rule. Judiciary of the state, district and counties; members of the bar. The Reverend, the clergy, Medical Society and E. H. Thorp, marshal in charge with marshals T. B. Shaffer and Dr. Hubbard; Calhoun Benham, aide; D. W. E. Thompson, aide. The other six divisions followed in the regular line of march."

On the morning of October 29, the celebration was held. The parade consisted of seven divisions. The first order of formation consisted of Grand Marshal Col. J. W. McKenzie and aids, William C. Parker, D. C. McCarthy, Lieut. H. C. Gibson and Lieut. J. H. Ledrum.

The story of the celebration is told thus in the History of San Francisco by John S. Hittell:

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, CALIFORNIA!

By Grand President
Raymond D. Williamson, NSGW

IN CONJUNCTION with the Native Daughters of the Golden West we are going to send a B29 bomber to make a personal call on Hirohito.

A statewide bond drive for the purchase of a B29 bomber will be conducted on Admission Day, September 9, 1944. It is suggested that each parlor arrange for a bond booth for the sale of bonds on Admission Day. Arrange with your local bank for the necessary blank forms to issue the bonds. The War Finance committee will credit all bonds sold at our bond booths on September 9 towards our "Buy a Bomber Drive." If there is a Native Daughter parlor in your town, endeavor to arrange for a joint drive.

Be prepared to buy as many bonds as possible as a parlor and individually on Admission Day. The price of the B29 Bomber we are to buy is $600,000.00 Help send the "Bear Flag Bomber" to Tokio.

CALIFORNIA'S BIRTHDAY!

FRED HOUSER

Lieutenant-Governor
State of California

Ramona Parlor No. 109, NSGW

By Grand President
Emily E. Ryan, NDGW

AS WE approach the ninety-fourth anniversary of California's Statehood, we are mindful of its many accomplishments in the past and inspired to the furtherance of a brilliant future for this golden state. California is celebrated for a development unrivaled in the history of the world. No other land has such scenic grandeur, such matchless mountains, lakes and streams, such diversified resources and industries. Nowhere in history are there such colorful pages as those which record the story of California with its romance, glamour and hospitality.

Due to present day restrictions it is impossible to participate in a statewide celebration, but we have an opportunity of serving our state and country in a concrete manner.

Because of the successful War Bond drive held on September 9, 1943, the Treasury Department has asked the Native Daughters and Native Sons to launch a "flash" campaign, in commemoration of our state's birthday, to purchase sufficient bonds to sponsor one or more B-29 Super fortresses.

We will be the first fraternal organization to promote such a program and with the assistance and cooperation of each Parlor and its membership. we can do it.

What a privilege for Native Sons and Native Daughters to aid in bringing our boys and girls in service home soon to enjoy the peace, progress and prosperity our pioneer fathers and mothers envisioned for posterity. With this work accomplished, we may truly say "Happy Birthday" to California.

Let us re-dedicate ourselves to the service of our state and country and in the plans of a post war world. May our own beloved California hold its place in the union of states.

Dance at Napa

Admission Day, September 9 will be celebrated by members of Napa Parlor No. 62, NSGW and Eschol Parlor No. 66, NDGW at a gala "get-together" dance.

Hubert Peter, of Napa Parlor, entertained members at the August 14 meeting with an entertaining talk on the history of Monte Cassino. The speaker was first of a number who will appear on the parlor programs through the ensuing term.

Admission Day in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO'S Buy a Bomber drive will be conducted September 9, with co-chairmen, Eugene H. O'Donnell and Contance Warshaw directing the bond sales, according to a late wire from the office of Grand Secretary John T. Regan. In the evening, a banquet and grand ball will be staged in the Palace Hotel. Governor Earl Warren and Grand Presidents Emily E. Ryan, NDGW and Raymond D. Williamson, NSGW will be honored guests.

WHAT President Webster K. Nolan, Stanford Parlor No. 76 NSGW, San Francisco, terms "colossal" in his best press agent style, will be his parlor's Admission Day observance. In order that members of the parlor may be free to attend any other celebration they may wish on September 9, Charles Roberts, chairman, announces the gala ball and midnight buffet supper will take place Friday night, September 8, in the Gold Ball Room and the Red Room of the Fairmont Hotel.

President Nolan has asked his members to contact him if they plan to help the Extension of the Order Committee with the "Buy a B-29" bond drive Admission Day.

WEBSTER K. NOLAN, President of Stanford Parlor No. 76, who announces his parlor's Admission Day plans.

LETTER BOX

Editor: I find the Grizzly Bear Magazine a very interesting one to read. I am a Native Son, a member of Guadalupe Parlor No. 231 in San Francisco.

I have a grandson who was born during the Diamond Jubilee while the state was celebrating its seventy-fifth anniversary, September, 1925. He received the half dollar which the state presented to babies born on that day. Guadalupe Parlor adopted him as their mascot and had an application made out and put on file and when he reached the age of eighteen, he became a member. His name is George D. McDonald.

Since he was one year old, George has had his parlor in the Admission Day parade wherever it was held, and since he was two, he walked in all of them, never missing one. His father, George D. McDonald, Jr., has been a member of Guadalupe Parlor No. 231 for twenty-three years. George's great grandfather was born in San Francisco and was one of the first babies of Anglo Saxon parentage born there.

George McDonald, Jr., is now in the U. S. Navy and has been overseas somewhere in the South Pacific for fifteen months. He has a scrap book of all the accounts and pictures of the different celebrations held all over California in which he has participated. Since this is the first Admission Day he has missed, could you print an article in your September issue about George so he may add it to his collection of clippings? George will be nineteen years old September 9. Thanking you, Mr. Frank Neto, 240 Naples street, San Francisco, August 14, 1944."

Suggestion Box

Establishment of a "suggestion box" at meetings of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230, NDGW, San Pedro, has proven an innovation of much interest to the members. Recommendations of various members for future activities of the parlor are dropped into the box, placed at the past-president's station, and are read before the meetings adjourn.

The parlor has voted to adopt a baby, to be known as Mabelle in honor of Past President Mabelle Simpson. A considerable sum recently was realized from a fish pond, over which Florence Blanke presided as chairman. The members recently held a kitchen shower for Annette Collier. Florencita Thimble Club met at the home of Margaret Kreider August 16, when a shower was given Irene Haas, formerly Irene Caresse.

News Came Late

"On the twenty-ninth instant, a procession of the various public bodies and inhabitants of the city, with appropriate banners, devices, music and the like, marched through the principal streets to the plaza."

"The Hon. Nathaniel Bennett, of the Supreme Court, delivered a suitable oration to the people, and an ode composed for the occasion by Mrs. Wills, was sung by a full choir.

"During the day, repeated discharges of firearms and a proper salute from great guns carried off some of the popular excitement, while the shipping displayed innumerable flags. In the evening, public bonfires and fireworks were exhibited from Telegraph Hill, Rincon Point and the islands in the bay."

"The ball was another outstanding affair. "Some 500 gentlemen and 300 ladies met at the grandest public ball that had yet been witnessed in the city and danced and made merry until daylight, in the pride and joy of their hearts that California was truly now the thirty-first state of the Union."

Honoring their mother, Edith Adams of Californiana Parlor No. 247, NDGW, on the occasion of her seventieth birthday, Mesdames Edgar Parmelee and Guy Dennis entertained August 15 with a reception and tea.

Guests included members of Mrs. Adams' parlor and other organizations to which she belongs. Charlotte Carpenter, President of Californiana, poured at the attractively appointed tea table. Margaret Omelich sang a number of Mrs. Adams' favorite songs. Lois Ormond accompanied on the vibraharp.

OFFER FINE PROGRAMS

President F. G.Tyrrell of the Los Angeles Friday Luncheon club sends out an urgent appeal for greater attendance. Since the cultural value of the meetings increases under the capable program chairmanship of member E. E. Cuff, and the future of California is largely in the hands of Native Sons, they should be alert to the current problems facing the state. The Friday Luncheon club meetings are featured by talks by authorities in all phases of welfare.

John M. Zuck, chief probation officer of Los Angeles county, spoke on "Camps and Training for Juvenile Delinquents" August 11. He stated that the majority of delinquent cases are native born youngsters, and placed the responsibility for improvement in the deplorable situation squarely on the shoulders of Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Honor Fifty Year Member

Julia Weaver, who joined Camellia Parlor No. 41, NDGW, Anderson fifty years ago, was honored by members of that parlor August 15.

The Masonic hall lodge room was decorated in gold and green, with gold bear and gold numeral "fifties" placed in conspicuous locations. Mrs. Weaver was presented with a fifty-year pin by Elsie Morgan, newly appointed deputy to the parlor and each member gave her a dainty handkerchief.
